MAD

A NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

With this issue, MAD is increasing its frequency from four to six issues per year. Happily, this means more issues of MAD for you and, tragically, a lot more work for me and the staff of the magazine! The next issue of MAD (#505) will go on sale August 17. A new issue will follow approximately every two months thereafter. MAD subscribers will automatically have their subscriptions adjusted to reflect the additional issues. Cat Fancy subscribers will be unaffected.

Additionally, as we went to press, Cartoon Network announced that they would be airing a new MAD animated TV show in the fall of 2010. Look for more details about the show in the next issue of MAD (#505) which, as I just said above, goes on sale August 17. If you were paying closer attention, I wouldn't have to repeat myself!

WEAK PREVIEWS

I read on the internet how you are not doing many movie parodies because of the nature of theatrical releases today. Have you considered lampooning cult movies like The Rocky Horror Picture Show and Harold and Maude? And what about satirizing older blockbuster movies that were made before your magazine existed, like you did with Gone with the Wind, The Wizard of Oz and Casablanca? Even if you're finding it harder to spoof recent movies, there's still plenty of fertile ground from the past.

Troy Cox, Wichita, KA

Think Outside the Cox — Thanks for writing — your letter was fertile ground — in that it was absolutely LOADED with crap! However, we're going to take your advice and spoof some classics we never got around to. Keep your eyes peeled on upcoming issues for our parodies of The Birth of a Nation ("The Dearth of Narration"), and Battleship Potemkin ("Battleship Potrzebie"). By 2014, we'll really start laying into the "talkies" — starting with The Jazz Singer ("The Jazz Stinker")! Hoo-hoo — the estate of Cecil B. DeMille is going to be PISSED! —Ed.

PROSE AND CONFUSED

My name is Brandon and I always enjoy reading your magazine. One of my favorites I think would be Spy vs. Spy — they are pretty hilarious in fact. I also enjoy just going through and reading all of the comics and parodies, especially Strip Club and The Fundalini Pages. They make my day better when I am going through a rough time. One thing that I have noticed that became extinct from MAD is that one comic about a family always engaging in ridiculous adventures. I can't remember what it was called, but I'm sure you can help me.

Brandon N., Grandforks, ND

Off-Brand — No problem! The strip you're thinking of is called "Family Circus" — and while it never ran in MAD, it still appears in countless newspapers across the country! That Dolly is a freakin' pistol! —Ed.

GIVE P's A CHANCE

I have written many, many times to you. And even though none of these letters have made it into the actual magazine, I have hope that one day it will! MAD has taught me a lot of things. For instance, patience, perseverance, passion, political humor, practicality, peace of mind, pan-handling, pent-up frustration and pathos (I don't even know what that last one meant, but it sounds smart, right?) Thanks for all the pretentious humor that has been puked out by your petty magazine.

Beatriz Lopez, West Warwick, RI

Sweet-N-Lopez — Thanks, we learned a lot from your letter, too. Actually, just one thing — shred any mail that comes from West Warwick! —Ed.

MAD CELEBRITY VISITS!

Here at MAD, we get a lot of visitors — some days it's the guy who empties our trashcans, other days it's the guy who fills the vending machines! (Actually, our trashcans have to be emptied so often because they're full of snack wrappers. It's a vicious cycle, we know). So, we were delighted to be visited by none other than the stars of Mystery Science Theater 3000, who were in town to perform as Cinematic Titanic!

L-R: Frank Conniff (TV's Frank), J. Elvis Weinstein (Tom Servo), and Trace Beaulieu (Dr. Clayton Forrester, Crow T. Robot); Inset: Joel Hodgson (Joel)

TREBEK YOURSELF BEFORE YOU WRECK YOURSELF

Last issue, we mentioned that on April 7th, Jeopardy! would be devoting an entire category to MAD. And, as sure as Trebek's upper-lip is creepy, they did just that! What we DIDN'T know was that the title of every single category in Double Jeopardy was going to be a reference to MAD! In case you didn't catch it, here's what you missed:

DRAWN-OUT DRAMAS	LETTERS IN TOMATOES	SPY VS. SPY	WHAT, ME WORRY?	THE USUAL GANG OF IDIOTS	MAD

WITH FRIENDS LIKE THESE, WHO NEEDS ENEMAS?

My girlfriend and I recently moved into our first apartment together and had a hard time deciding what to put in the magazine rack in the bathroom. As it turns out, I found an old dusty stack of your magazines amongst the crap I've had for years. Now my bathroom is the number one pit stop for all my friends on their long drives home from work. Thank you MAD.

Brandon Poulter, Modesto, CA

Ann Poulter — Wow! So your friends now go out of their way to poop at your house? That sounds like a dream come true! Just a thought, but after all your friends' "downtime making-brown time," you should probably take those magazines out of circulation. Those things must be more disgusting and germ-ridden than the hot tub on Jersey Shore. Either way — start buying Purell in bulk, Poopsie! —Ed.

WHEN THE "SHH" HITS THE FAN

I have no money, so I have to go to the library to read your mag. While I'm reading it, everyone gives me looks because I'm laughing so hard. I really enjoy reading your magazine, could you please make it less funny, so I can enjoy it in peace?

Chris Larkin, Ithaca, NY

Larks and Recreation — We promise to do what we can to make the magazine less enjoyable and entertaining. We think that printing your letter was a good first step! —Ed.

MAD READER ALERT

Once again, it's a good month to be a MAD letter-writer! If you were lucky enough to have your missive printed, you're in for a butt-load of awesome stuff! Namely, Prince of Persia: The Forgotten Sands for the Wii, courtesy of our pals at Ubisoft, Ripped: T-shirts from the Underground from our amigos at Universe Publishing, a DVD collection of Discovery's Life series (available at discoverystore.com) courtesy of our chums at Discovery, DC Comics Super Heroes and Villains: Fandex Deluxe from our buddies at Workman Publishing, and iSatiristas! by Paul Provenza and Dan Dion, courtesy of our compadres at It Books! If you weren't lucky enough to have your letter printed, they're all on sale now! So stop sulking and write in next month for a chance to score more ridiculously cool gear!

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS — LOST EDITION!

With Lost coming to an end and answering long-running questions, we thought we'd pose a mystery that's TRULY perplexing — namely, why would so many of the show's stars agree to pose with an issue of MAD? Try explaining that in the next DVD commentary, Carlton Cuse and Damon Lindelof!

WALL-FRED E. NEUMAN

Renowned graffiti artist BG183 was inspired by the cover of MAD #503 to create a huge mural featuring Alfred, the Spies, AND a shout-out to his graffiti crew, Tats Cru (below). If you're at Hunts Point in the South Bronx, you can check it out yourself! And while that's pretty incredible, BG and other members of Tats Cru took it a step even FURTHER by revealing an amazing Fold-In mural at "Rooftop Legends" in Manhattan's Lower East Side! If you take a picture of the wall and fold it in, you'll see that it actually works! Unreal! Both of these pieces make a REALLY strong case against vinyl siding!

What if a Member of the New York Yankees Was a Serial Killer?

- His idea for a super promotional night: The first 10,000 fans 14 and under get their throats slit.
- Breaks up a double play by sliding hard into the second baseman, then beating him to death with a claw hammer.
- He'd be the first major leaguer to have endorsement deals with a sneaker company and a chloroform manufacturer.
- He'd be delighted by the silly antics of the Philly Phanatic. (Even though he's a serial killer, he's not made of stone, you know.)
- The "foreign substance" found in his system would turn out to be the ear of a missing player.
- Roger Clemens would still be the most hated man in baseball history.

The 5 Worst Things About 3D Movies

1 Just when you thought movies couldn't get any dumber, along comes a technology that makes plot and dialogue even less important.

2 The sickening realization that once 3D technology moves into the home, your two-year-old plasma screen will become as obsolete as Colecovision.

3 The small but fervent bunch of reverse-snobbs who'll soon insist on only seeing the 2D version of 3D films.

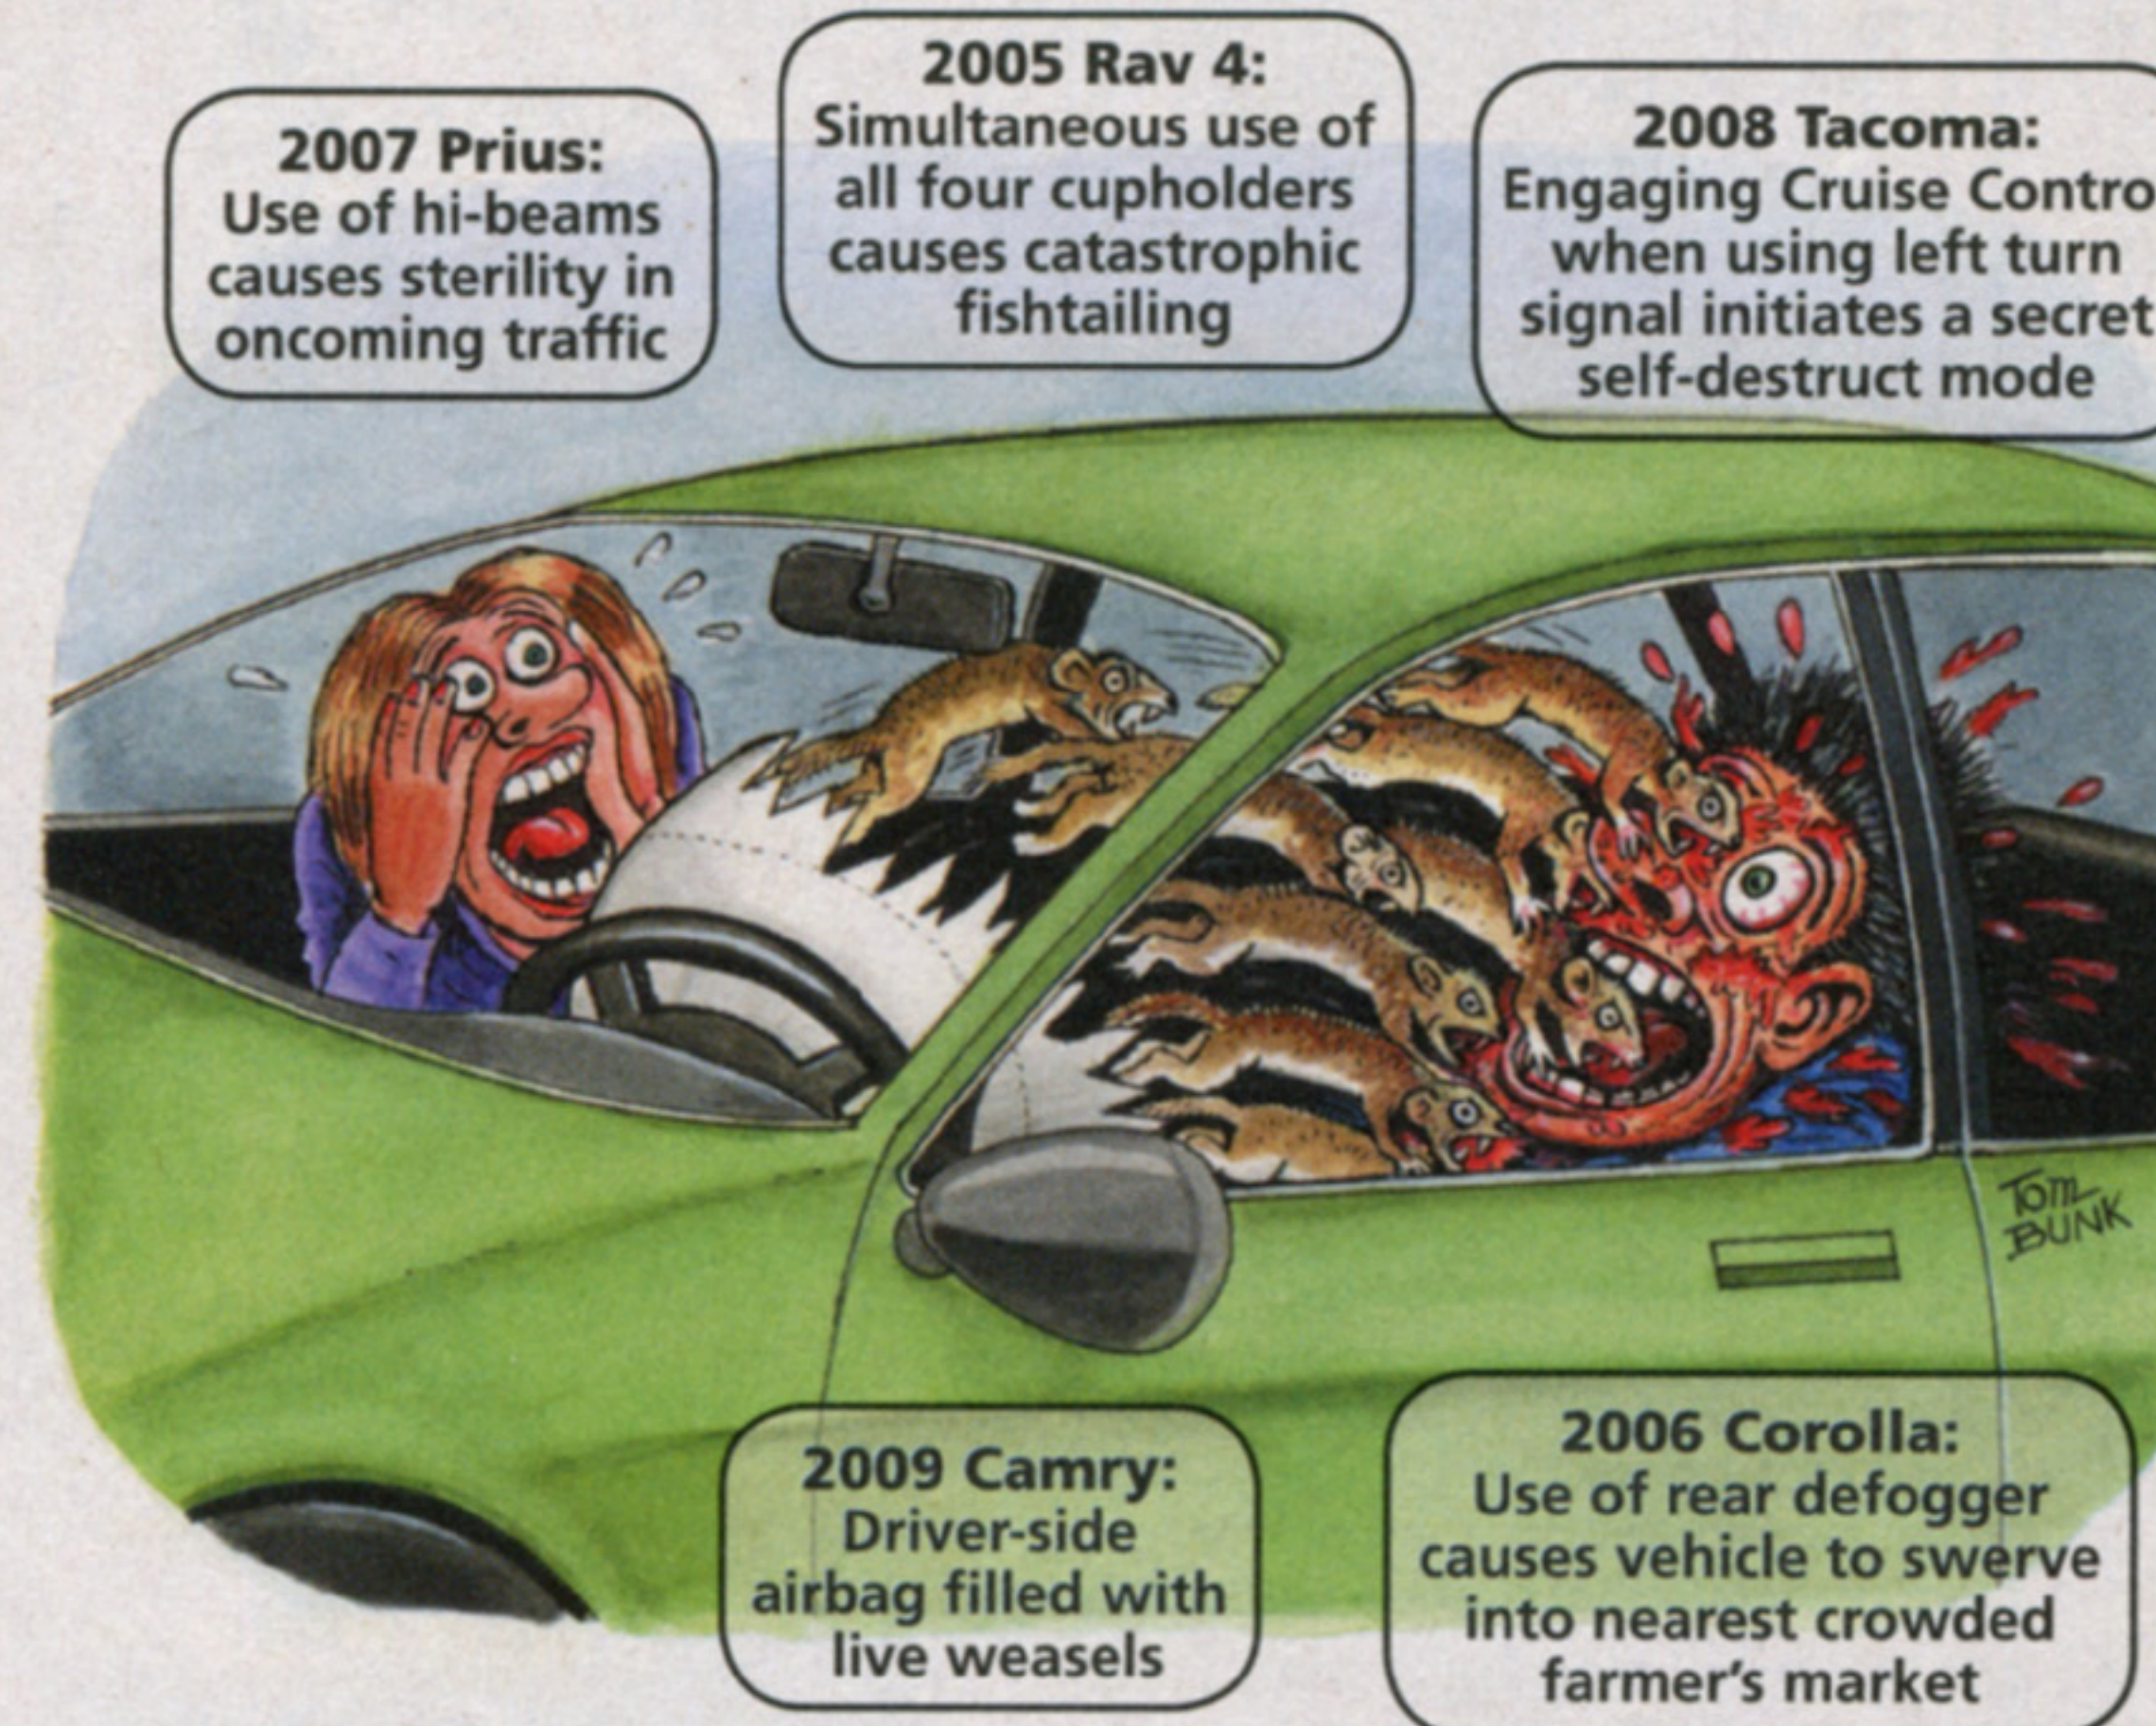

4 It's only a matter of time before desperate studios begin re-releasing such classic "flatties" as Larry the Cable Guy's Delta Farce and Mariah Carey's Glitter in glorious 3D.

5 Anything that encourages egomaniacal, self-indulgent poop-throat James Cameron to continue making movies is pure evil.

#500 In A Series

An important message from MAD's
Director of Business & Development,
JEFFREY LOZENGE

It is often said that "the fruit doesn't fall far from the pond" and that "if you want something done right, forget it." To that, I might add, "a pound of cheese is good, especially if it's good cheese." My point is clear.

MAD — the magazine whose time is and was and continues to be — was never read by Vikings. They were too busy marauding and being fitted for helmets. You, on the other hand, can have the best of both worlds. You can subscribe to MAD and be a Viking.

But who in today's modern world has time to be a Viking, you ask? Who indeed? The hours are long and the pay meager. Which is why you should subscribe to MAD. Yes, MAD. If Vikings had their own mail service and knew how to read and weren't so busy marauding and getting fitted for helmets, it would have been their magazine.

So, be like me. Be like a Viking.

SIGNS YOU'RE TOO FAT TO TRAVEL ON A COMMERCIAL AIRLINE

The flight attendant has to keep reminding you that you're not allowed to use your deep fryer during takeoff.

Every time you get up to use the bathroom, the plane does a barrel roll.

You keep setting off the metal detector until you realize you forgot to remove one of the aluminum trays of baked ziti from your carry-on.

You once joined the mile high club with a hoagie.

Now, even on domestic flights, you're prohibited from smoking hams in the bathroom.

You're outraged to learn you can only bring on three ounces of Thousand Island dressing.

At one point during the flight, the captain comes on and says, "If you look towards the left, you'll see one of the fattest humps of man I've ever seen!"

When they announce "Now boarding rows 17 to 24," that's you, big boy.

FOR VARIOUS

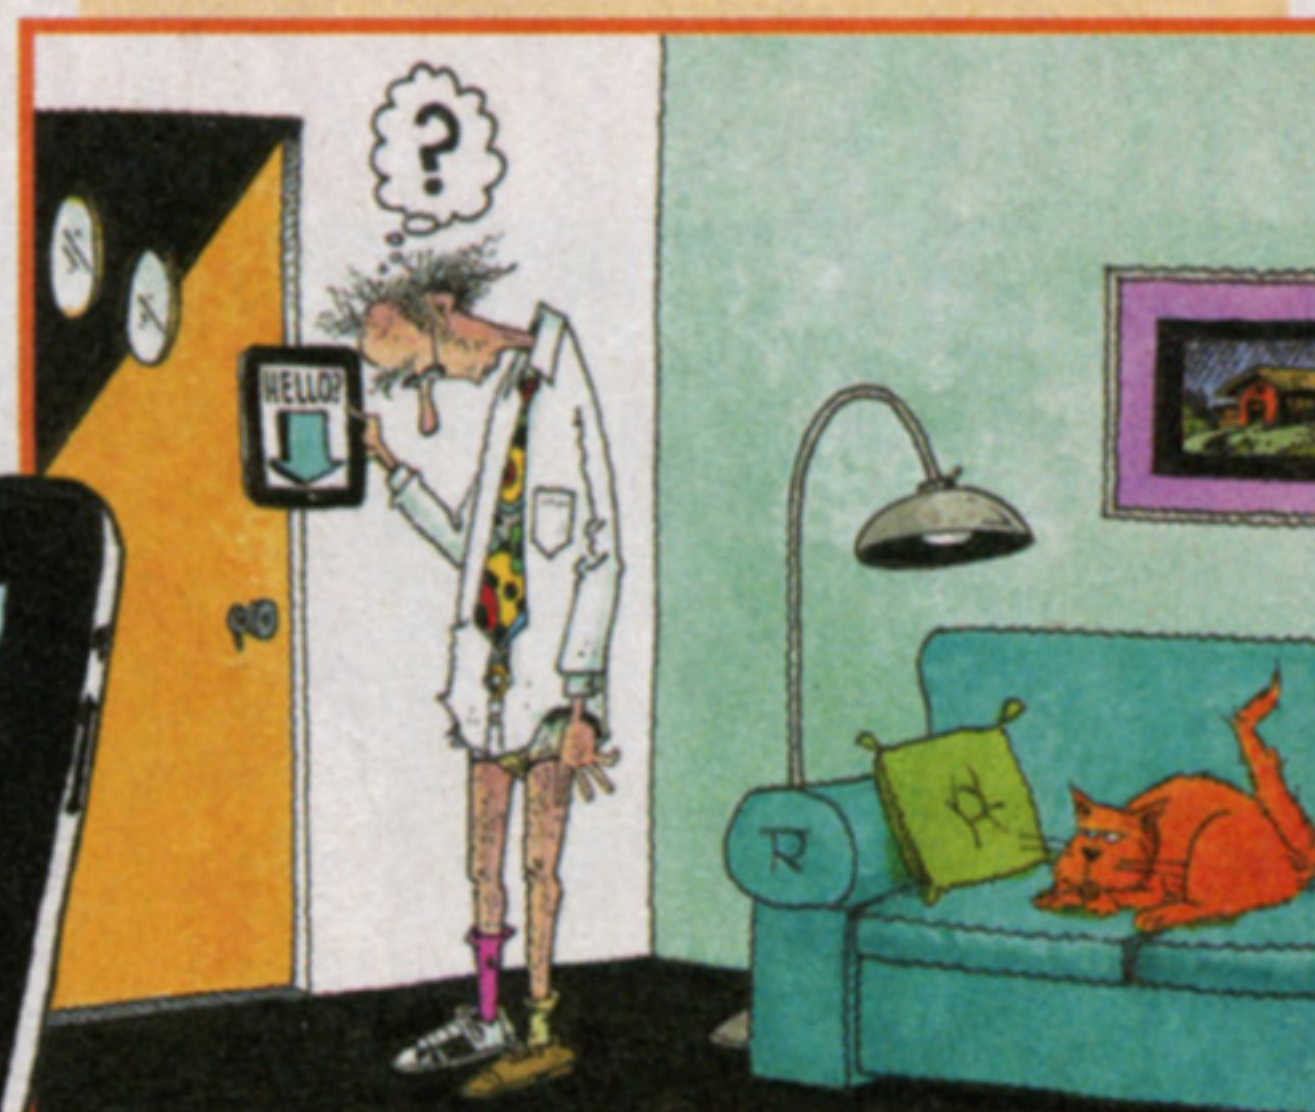

DEMOGRAPHICS

WRITER AND ARTIST: JOHN CALDWELL

THE ELDERLY

PROS

- The hip, high-tech design means it will never be mistaken for your insulin pump.
- Yes, there's a Bingo App.

Customizable home page means you can leave yourself a daily reminder to wear pants.

CONS

- Unlike your customized, pimped-out Jazzy Scooter, Medicare won't pay for it.

When reading, the old habit of licking fingers before turning pages can sometimes result in mild electrocution.

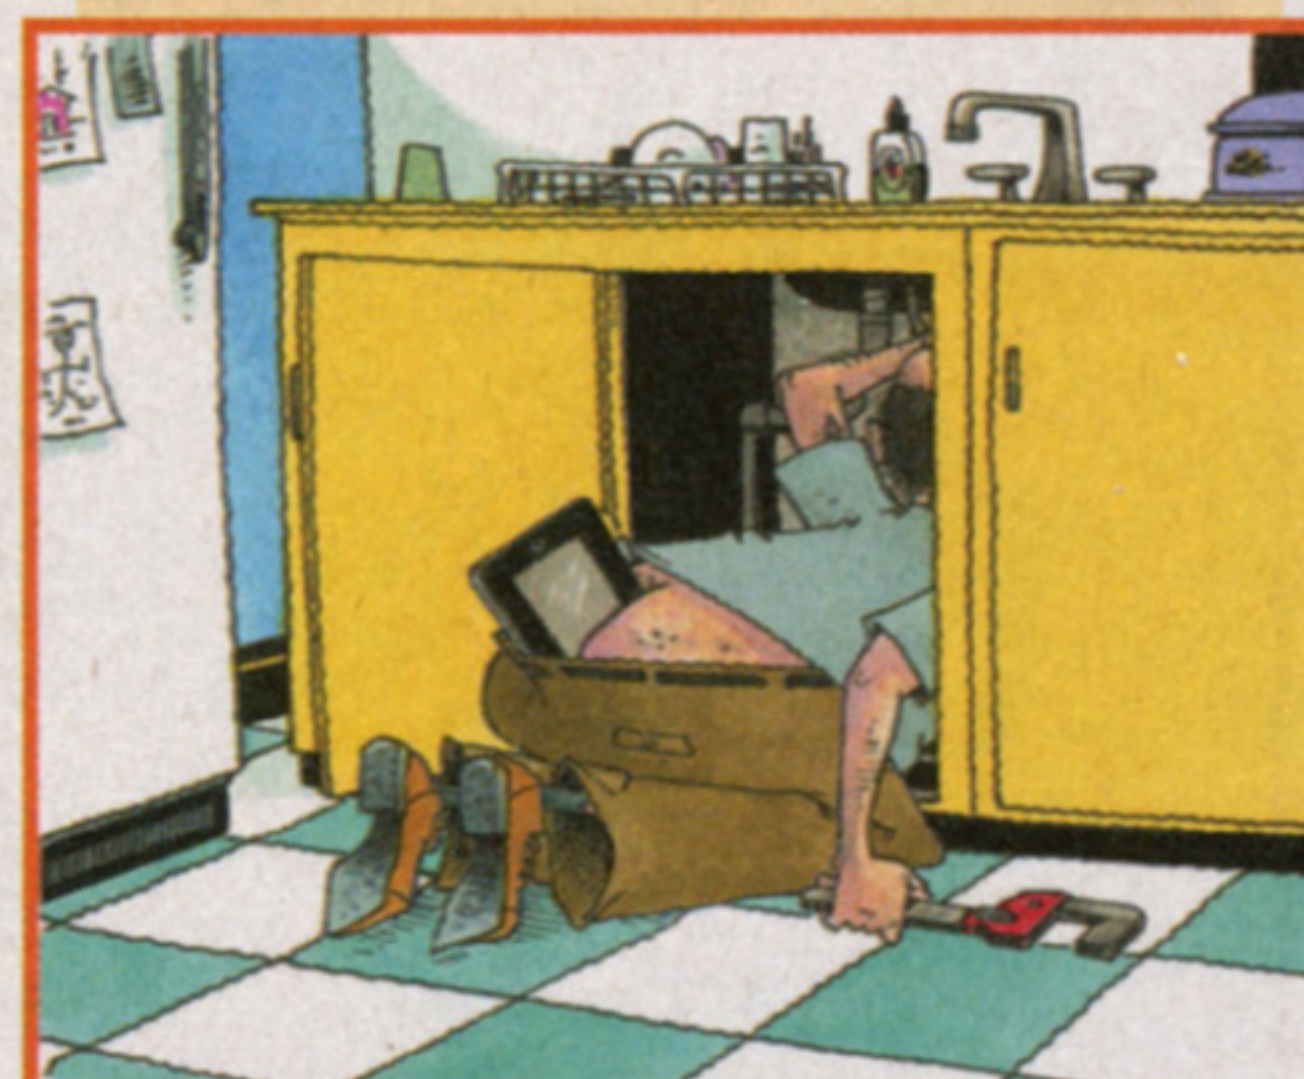

- Google is utterly useless when searching for misplaced dentures.

BOTTOM LINE:
Need we repeat, Grandpa?
MEDICARE WON'T PAY FOR IT!

PLUMBERS

PROS

- Who's to know you're stretching your hourly rate by watching movies under the sink?

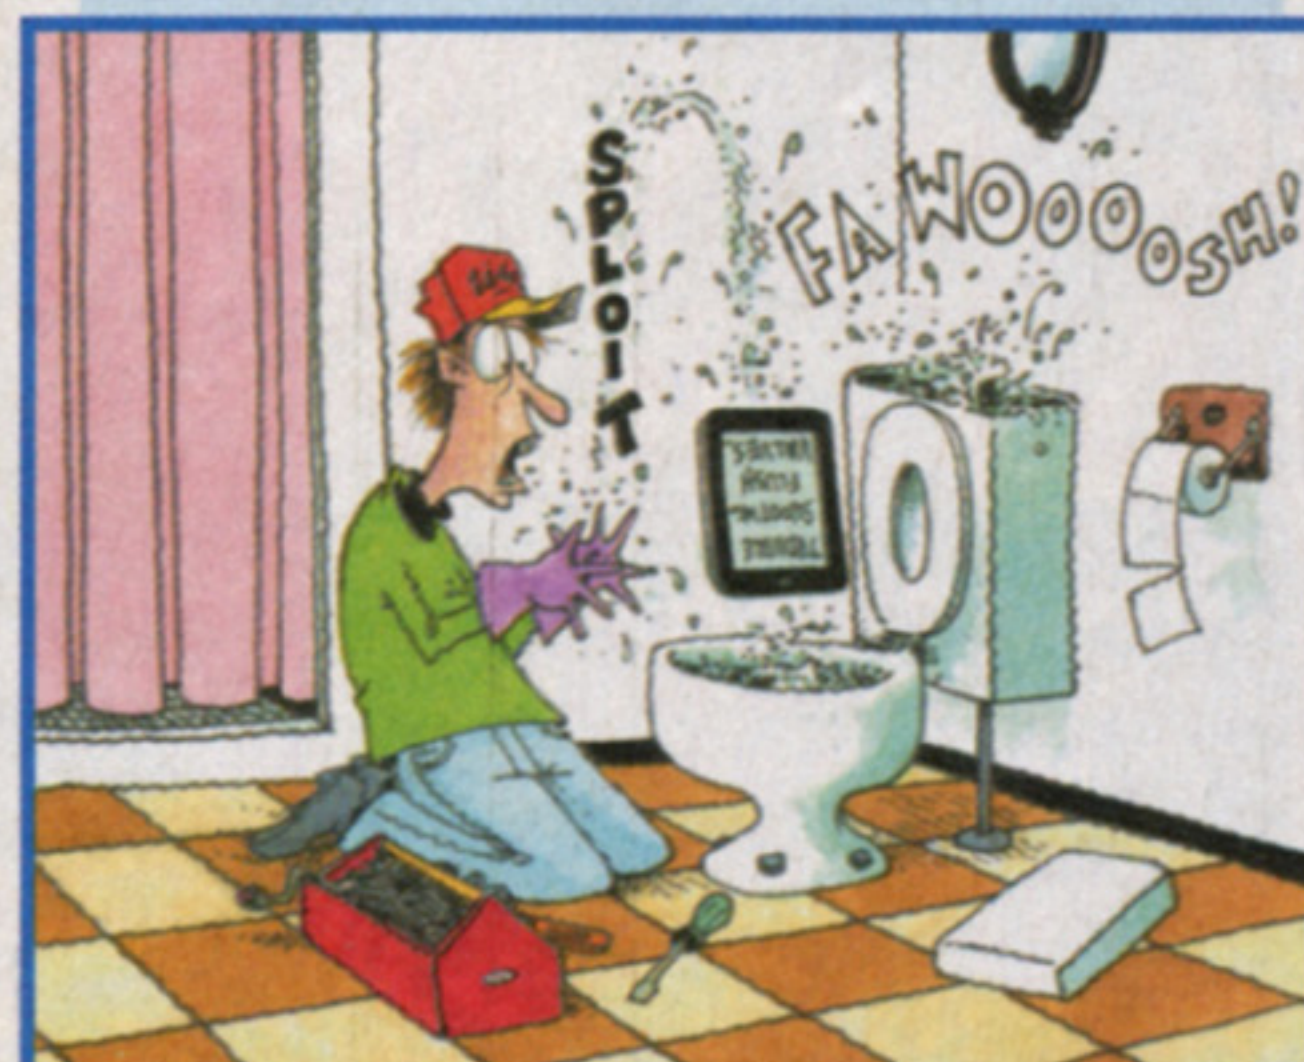

Easily stored while you're working.

- Access to unlimited and complex industry data means you'll never again screw up the "lefty loosey, righty tighty" rule.

CONS

- It's really depressing that your excellent rubber washer replacement videos just never seem to go viral.
- The built-in high tech calendar is no match for your ol' school "PVC Pipe Dancing Bikini Babes" paper edition.

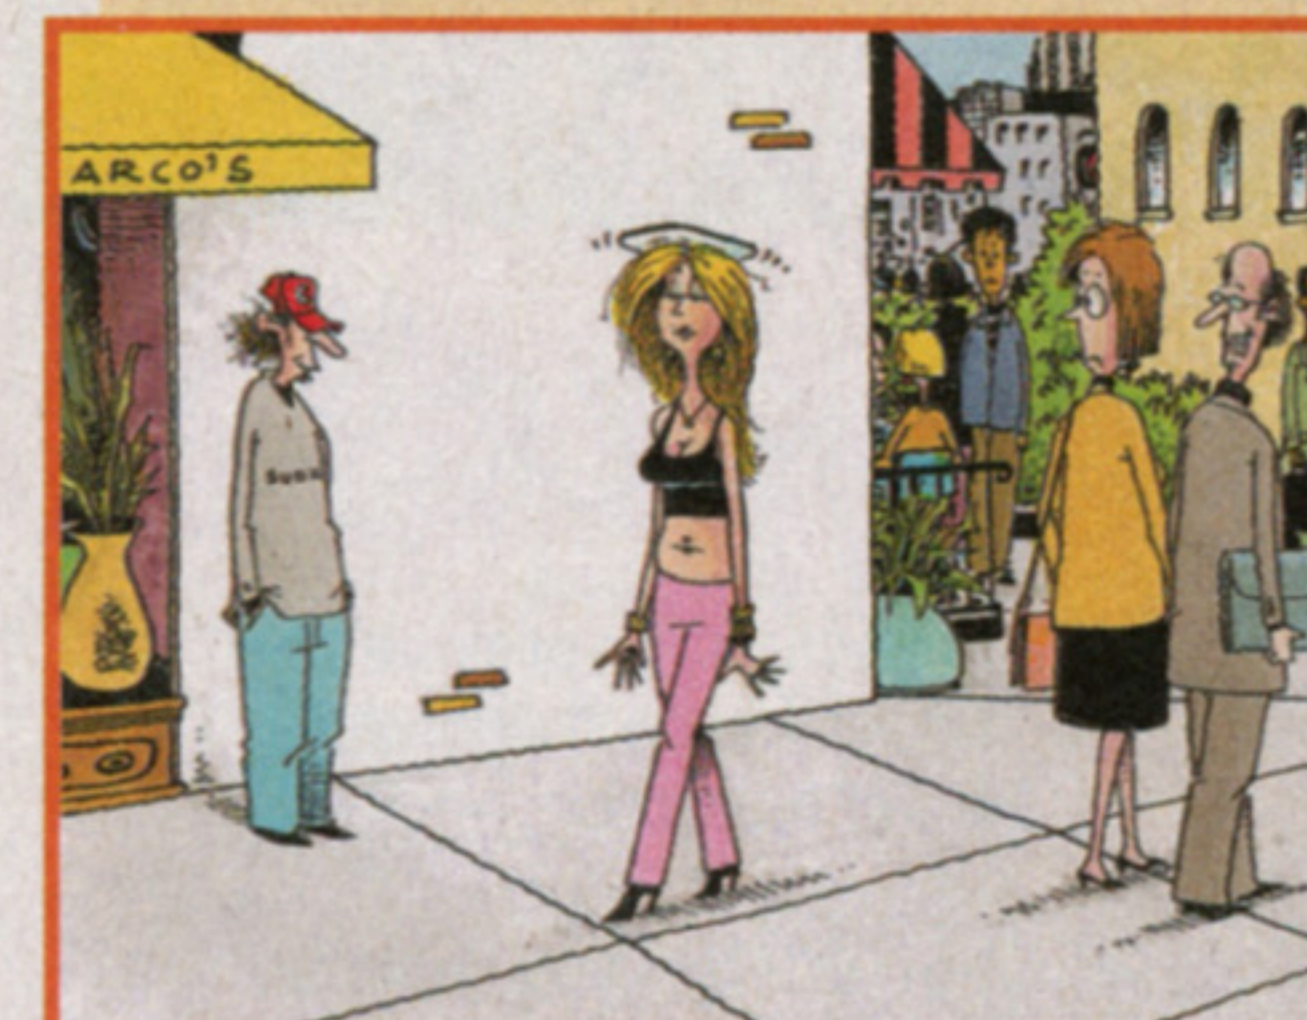

It doesn't float.

BOTTOM LINE:
It's like flushing a grand down the toilet.

SUPER MODELS

PROS

- Instant web access means no more wondering how many calories there are in a single raisin.
- Frequent crashes, glitches and screen freezes are bound to bring out your sexiest pouts.

Just click on iBooks, select a hefty volume, then balance that bad boy on your head for a little high-tech poise practice.

CONS

- Touch screen technology is a real nail-breaker.

There's no getting around the fact that it's thinner than you'll ever hope to be.

- $500 is a lot to spend on something that — let's face it — you're mostly going to be doing lines of coke off.

BOTTOM LINE:
This thing is already
so April 2010.

MOB GUYS

PROS

A giant step in bringing the perp walk into the 21st century.

- We were surprised to learn there's an App available for determining who's wearing a wire.
- Built-in GPS means that you always know where the bodies are buried.

CONS

- You find out the hard way that the oath of Omerta also applies to Tweets.

Once all the guys have one, it becomes necessary to keep a made cyber geek around for tech support.

- They don't make a shoulder holster for the damn thing.

BOTTOM LINE:
Not for nothin', but this is a
@#$*in' offer we could easily refuse.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

PROS

- FAQs like, "Why is this a closed casket service?" can now be answered on the spot and in high definition.
- The chance to tag on an additional fee for iPad-friendly version of online obit? Ka-ching!

Easy access to old Facebook photos is a big help in making the deceased look natural.

CONS

- The complexion of wakes and services change drastically once word gets out that your funeral parlor is a WiFi hotspot.

It turns out that an iPad photo gallery of the embalming process is not the selling point you thought it would be.

- Tech support glitches could easily result in some guy named Mohammed showing up to speak at the Ginzberg service.

BOTTOM LINE:

Our condolences to anyone who buys this piece of crapola.

HITCHHIKERS

PROS

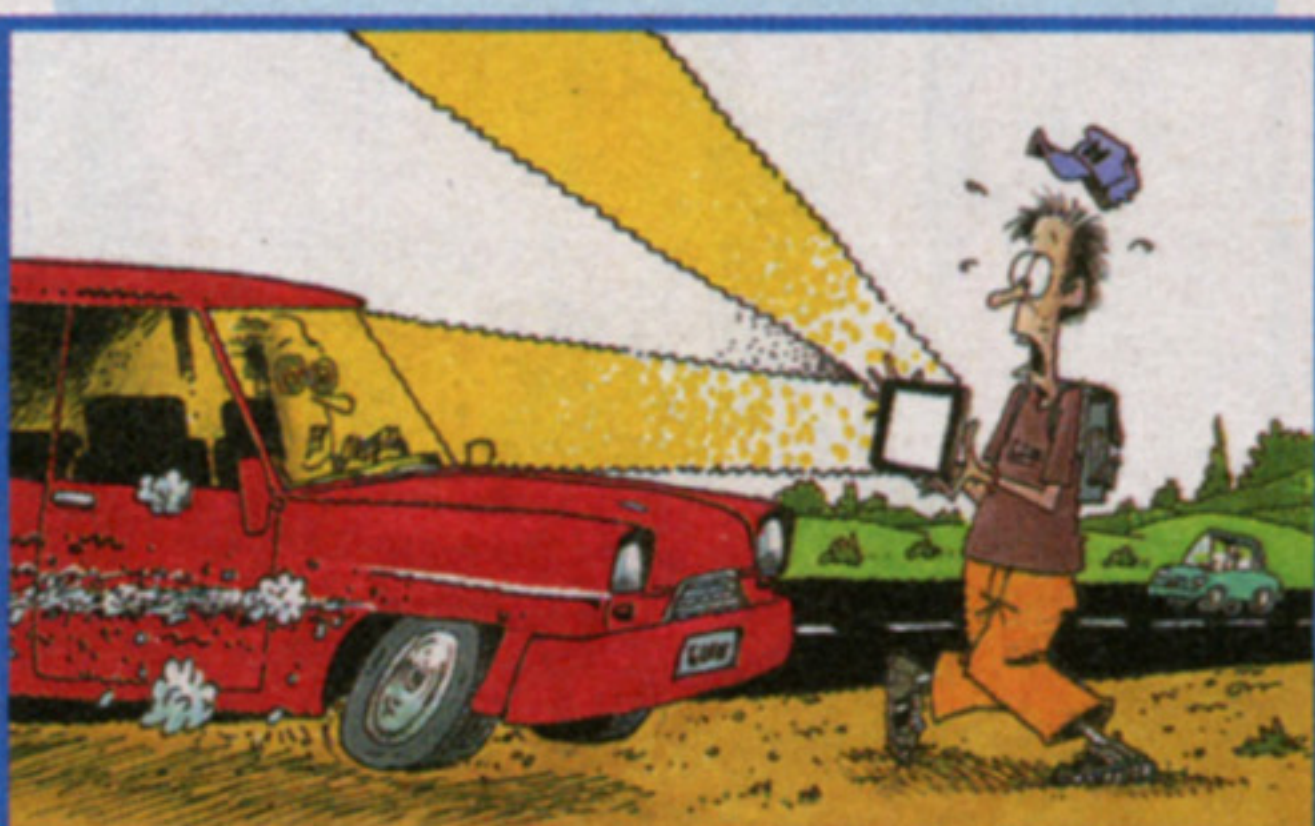

Spell-check especially helpful for destinations like Minneaplias and Cinsinatti.

- Photo application provides room for a handy thumbnail gallery of thumbs.
- Built-in GPS lets you know if the trucker who picked you up might be a serial killer headed to a desolate location.

CONS

- So, since this thing isn't a cell phone, what are you going to do if the trucker who picked you up is indeed a serial killer headed for a desolate location?
- Eats up considerably more of your traveling budget than a Sharpie and some empty pizza box found in a dumpster.

Be aware that a shiny reflective screen coupled with just the right angle of the sun, can turn a potential ride into a 70-mile-an-hour, two-ton sayonara.

BOTTOM LINE:

A hitchhiker's thumb down!

PIRATES

PROS

- Availability of Google Maps eliminates the need for bulky treasure maps.

There's a sweet doubloon conversion App.

- Brings a whopping five dollars (U.S.) at the local open bazaar. (Somali pirates only.)

CONS

- Hook leaves unsightly scratches on the screen.

The necessity of WiFi accessibility means goodbye pints of rum and hello Starbucks macchiatos.

- Unwieldy touch screen keyboard means cutting way down on the number of AAAAARRRRGHs in your emails.

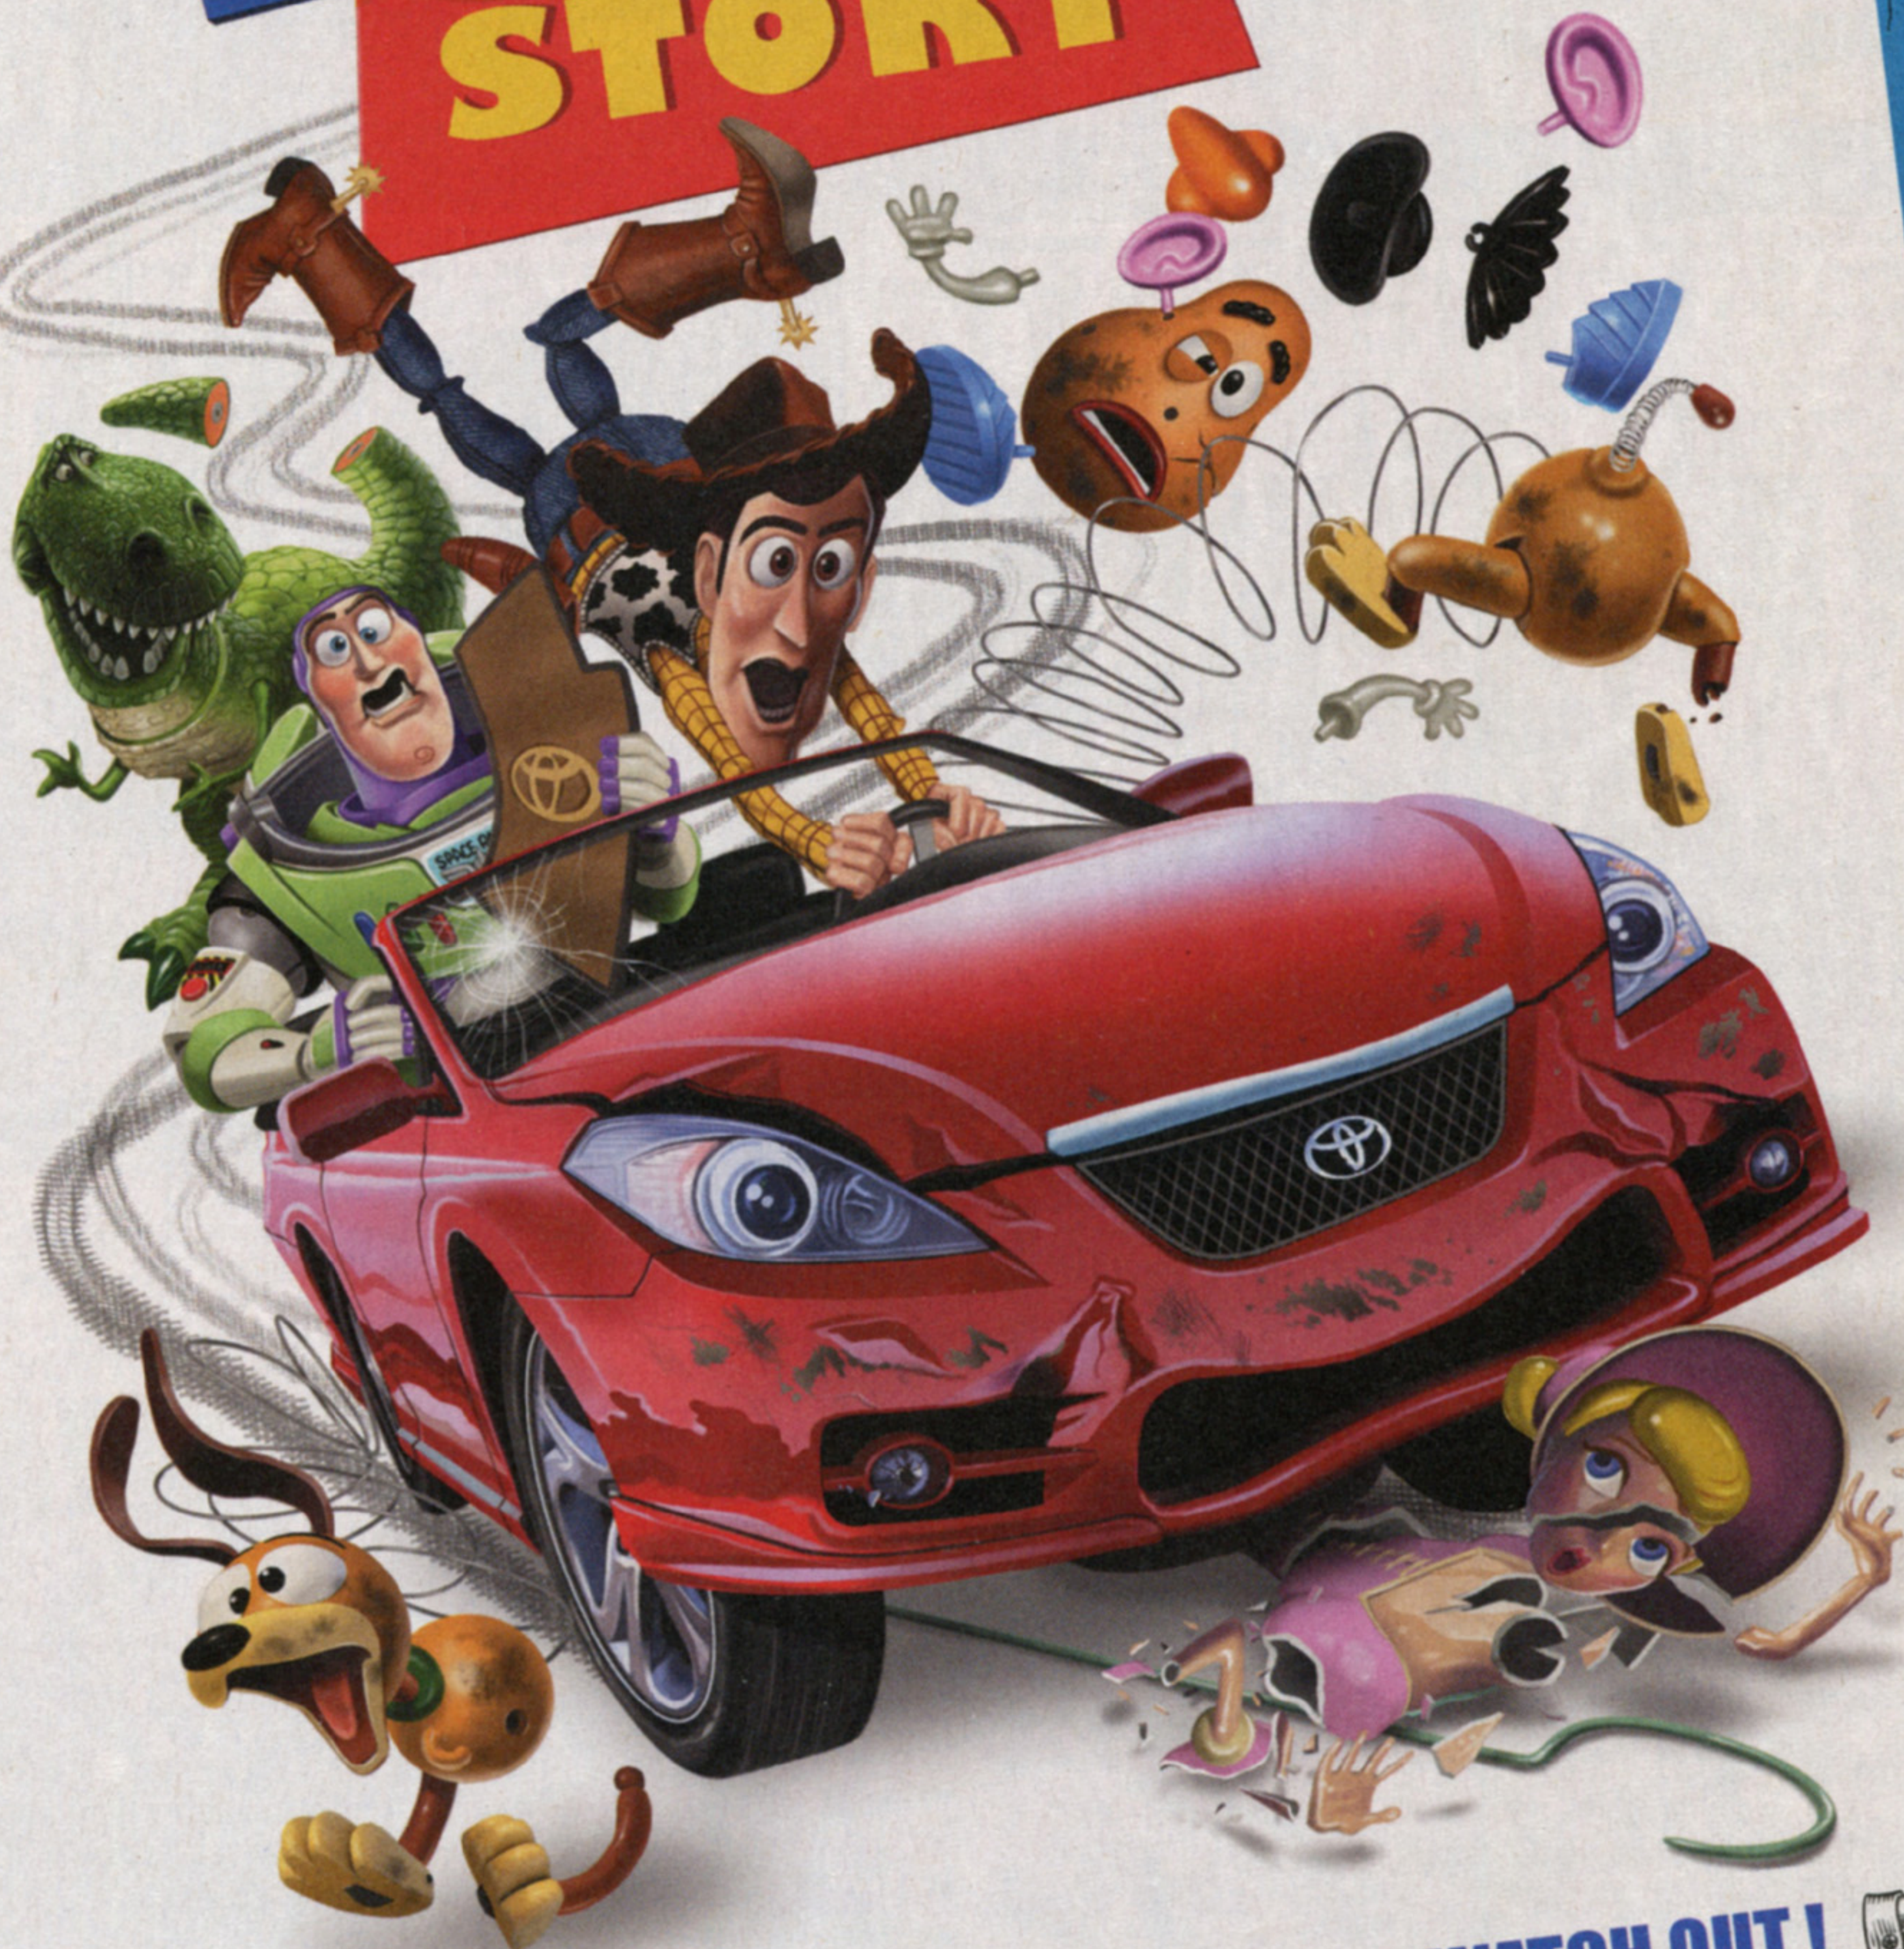

BOTTOM LINE:

The iPad walks the plank.

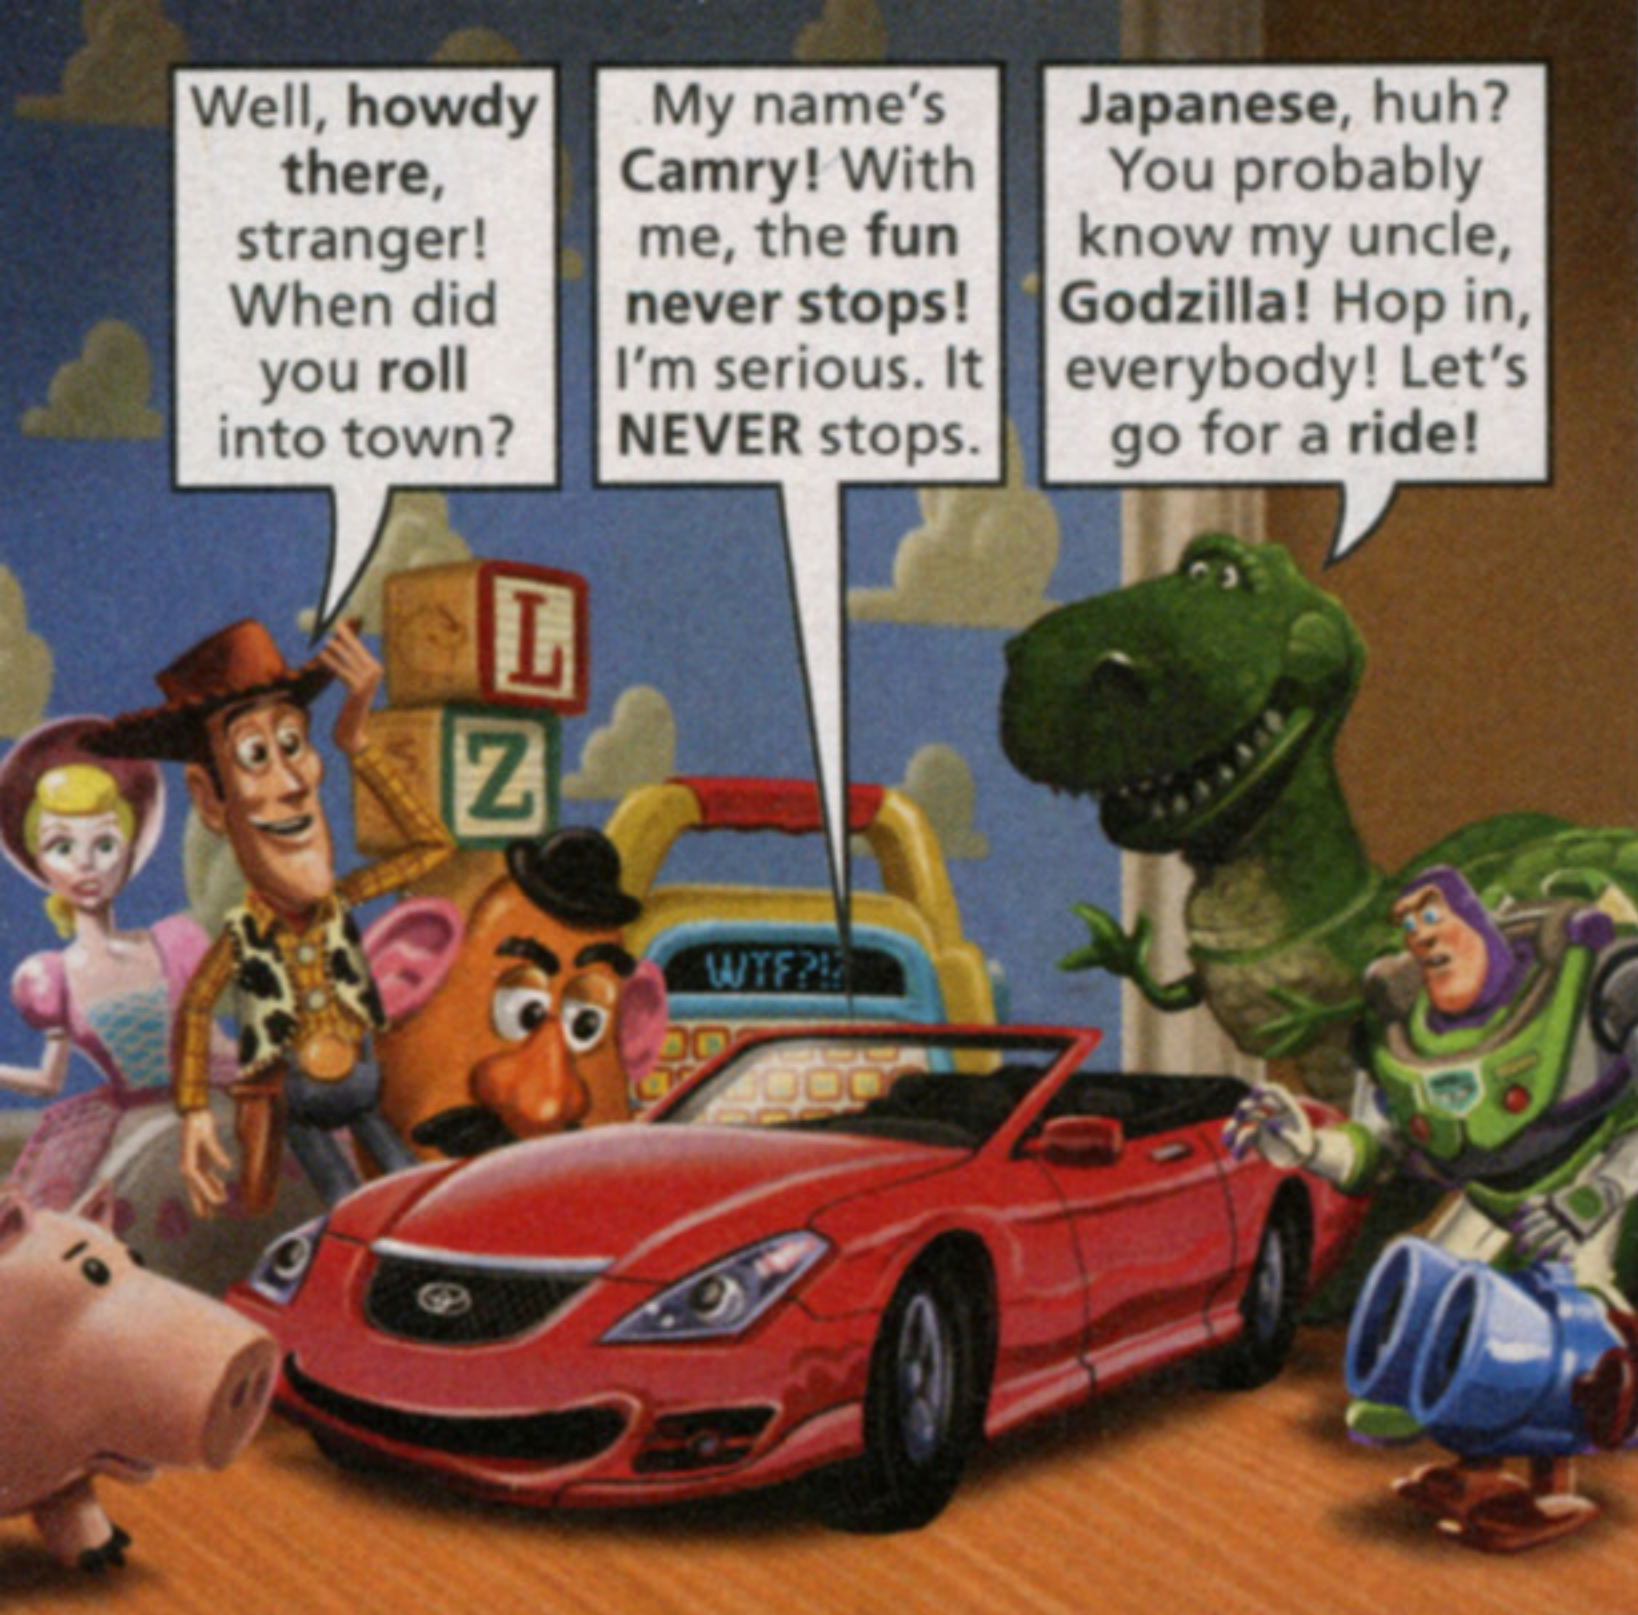

THE RUNAWAY SMASH
FROM THE MAKERS OF CARS!

TOYOTA STORY

COMING AT YOU ON THE NEXT TWO PAGES — WATCH OUT!

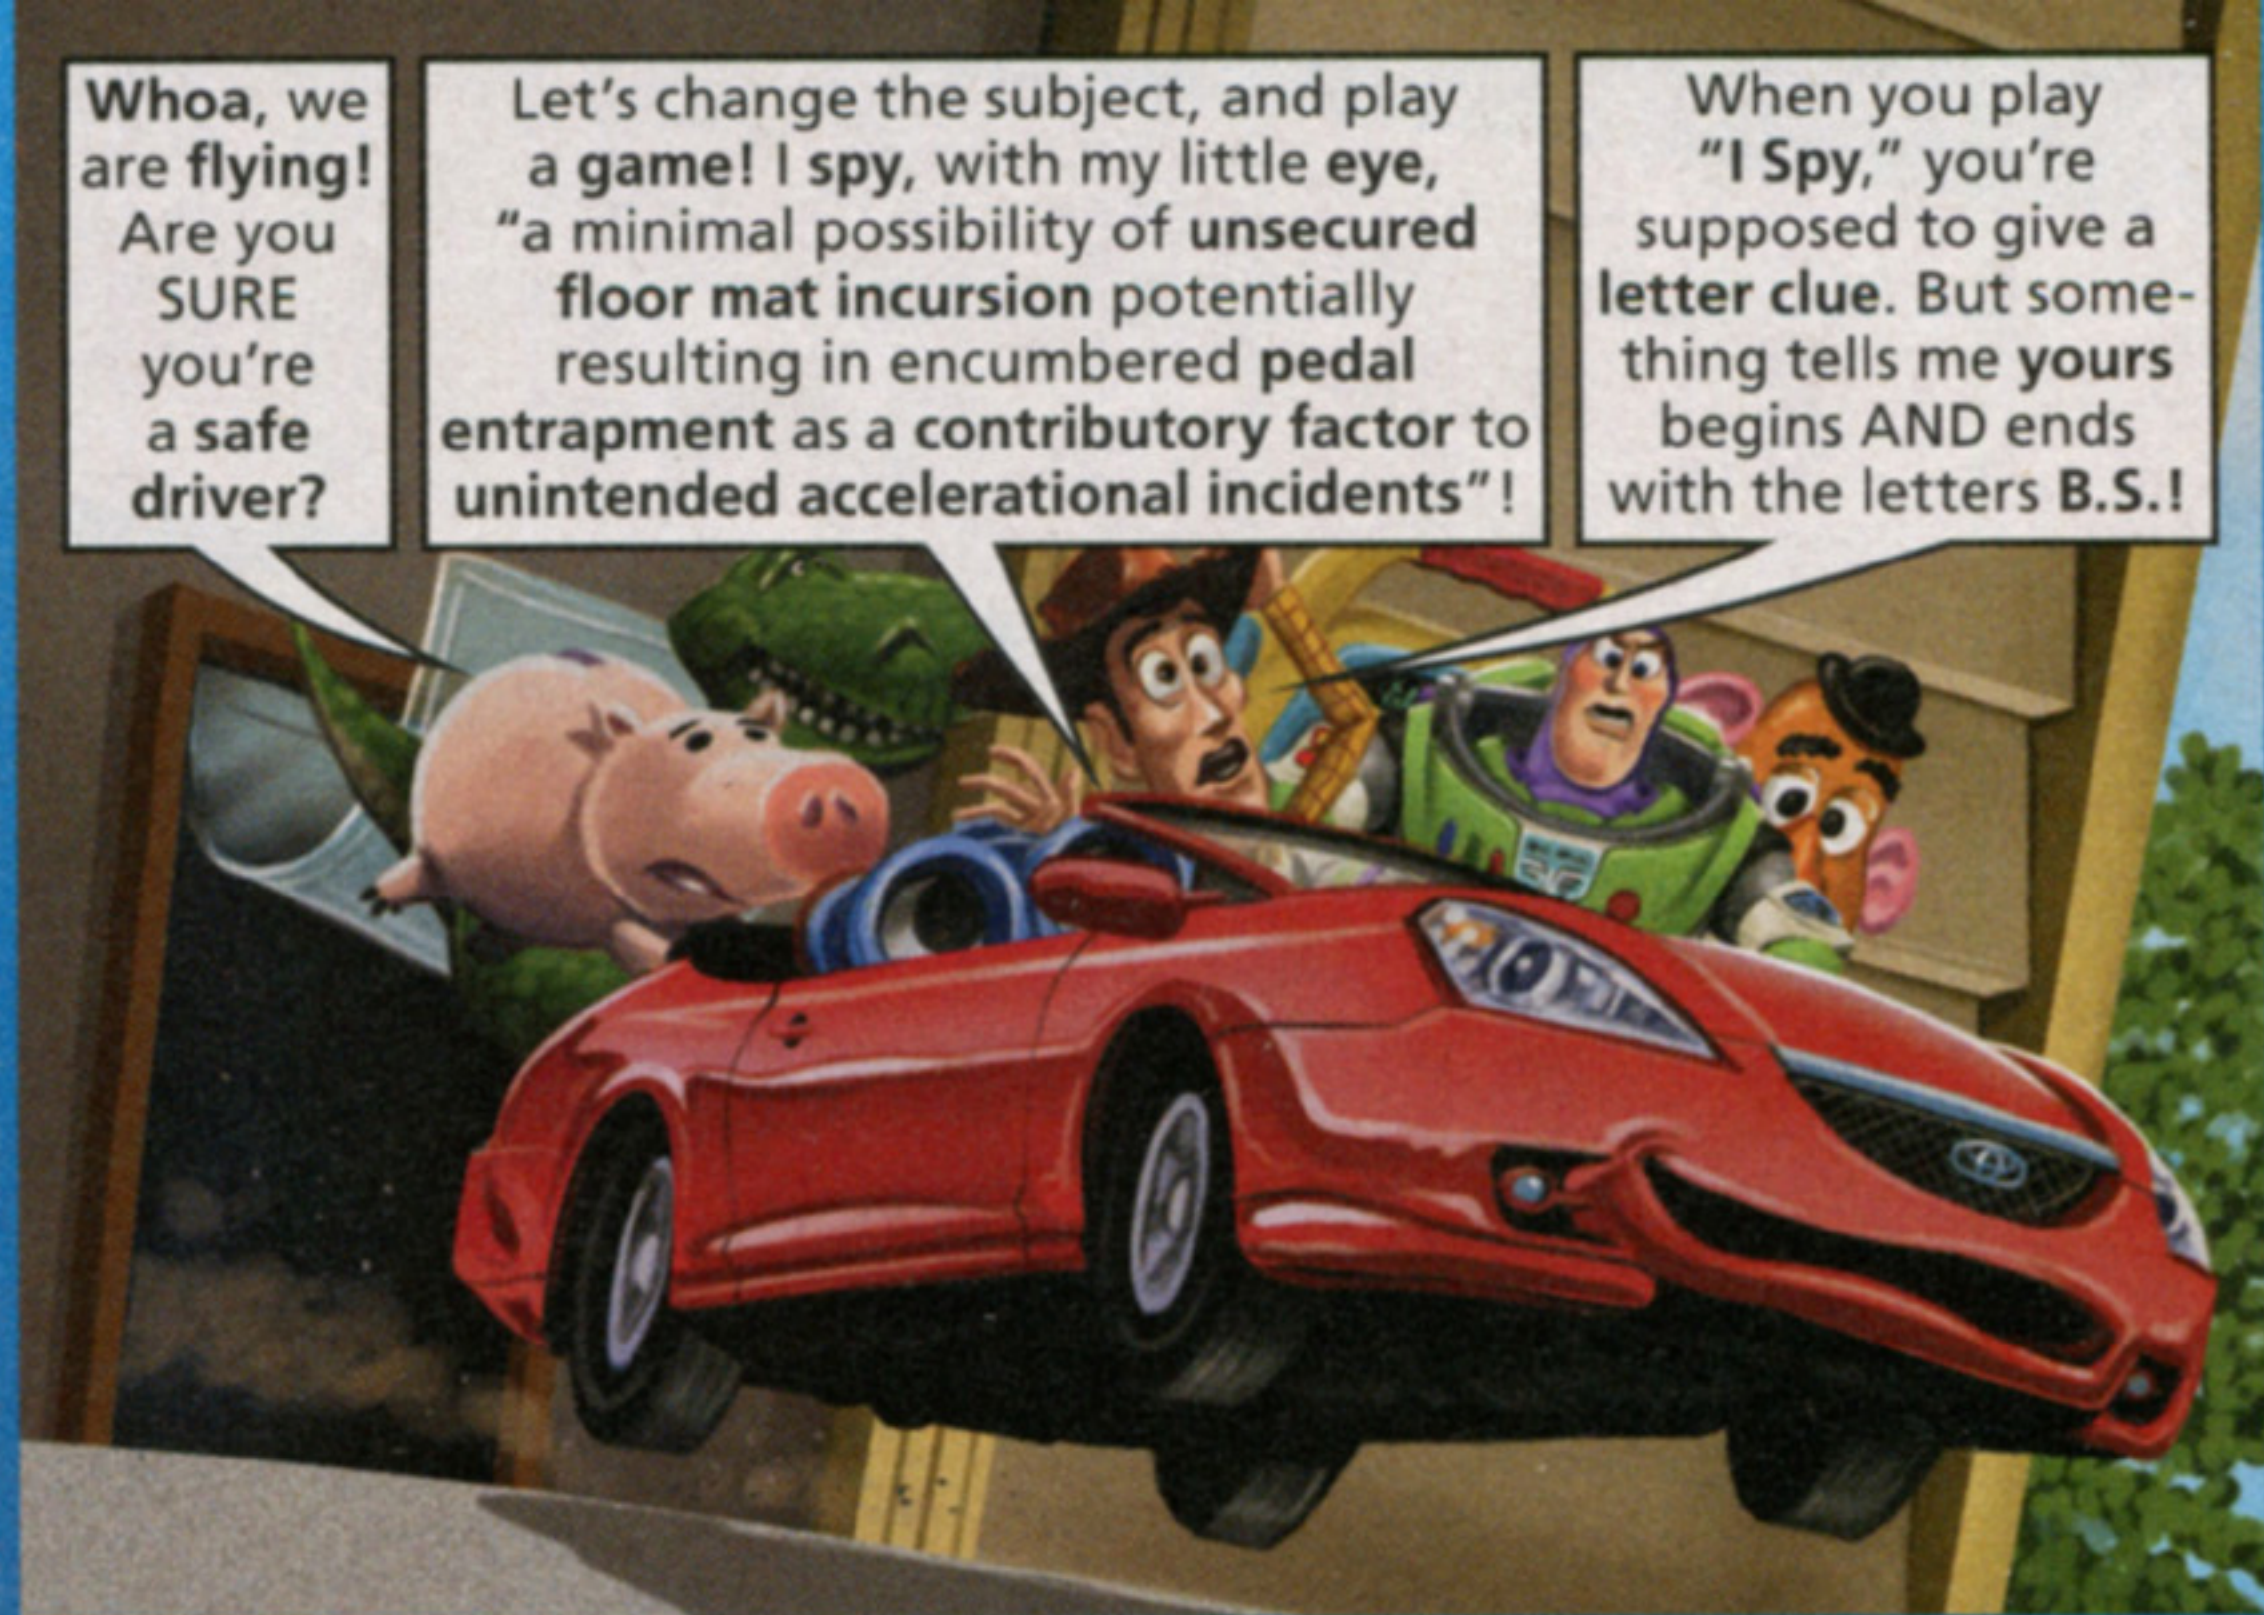

Well, howdy there, stranger! When did you roll into town?

My name's Camry! With me, the fun never stops! I'm serious. It NEVER stops.

Japanese, huh? You probably know my uncle, Godzilla! Hop in, everybody! Let's go for a ride!

Whoa, we are flying! Are you SURE you're a safe driver?

Let's change the subject, and play a game! I spy, with my little eye, "a minimal possibility of unsecured floor mat incursion potentially resulting in encumbered pedal entrapment as a contributory factor to unintended accelerational incidents"!

When you play "I Spy," you're supposed to give a letter clue. But something tells me yours begins AND ends with the letters B.S.!

Now we're doing 95! The floor mat's hopelessly wedged under the brakes! How do we stop?!!

Don't ask me! My usual vehicle only has one horse-power!

Aim for something soft, then! Does Nerf make trees?

Lenny! Use the hand brake!

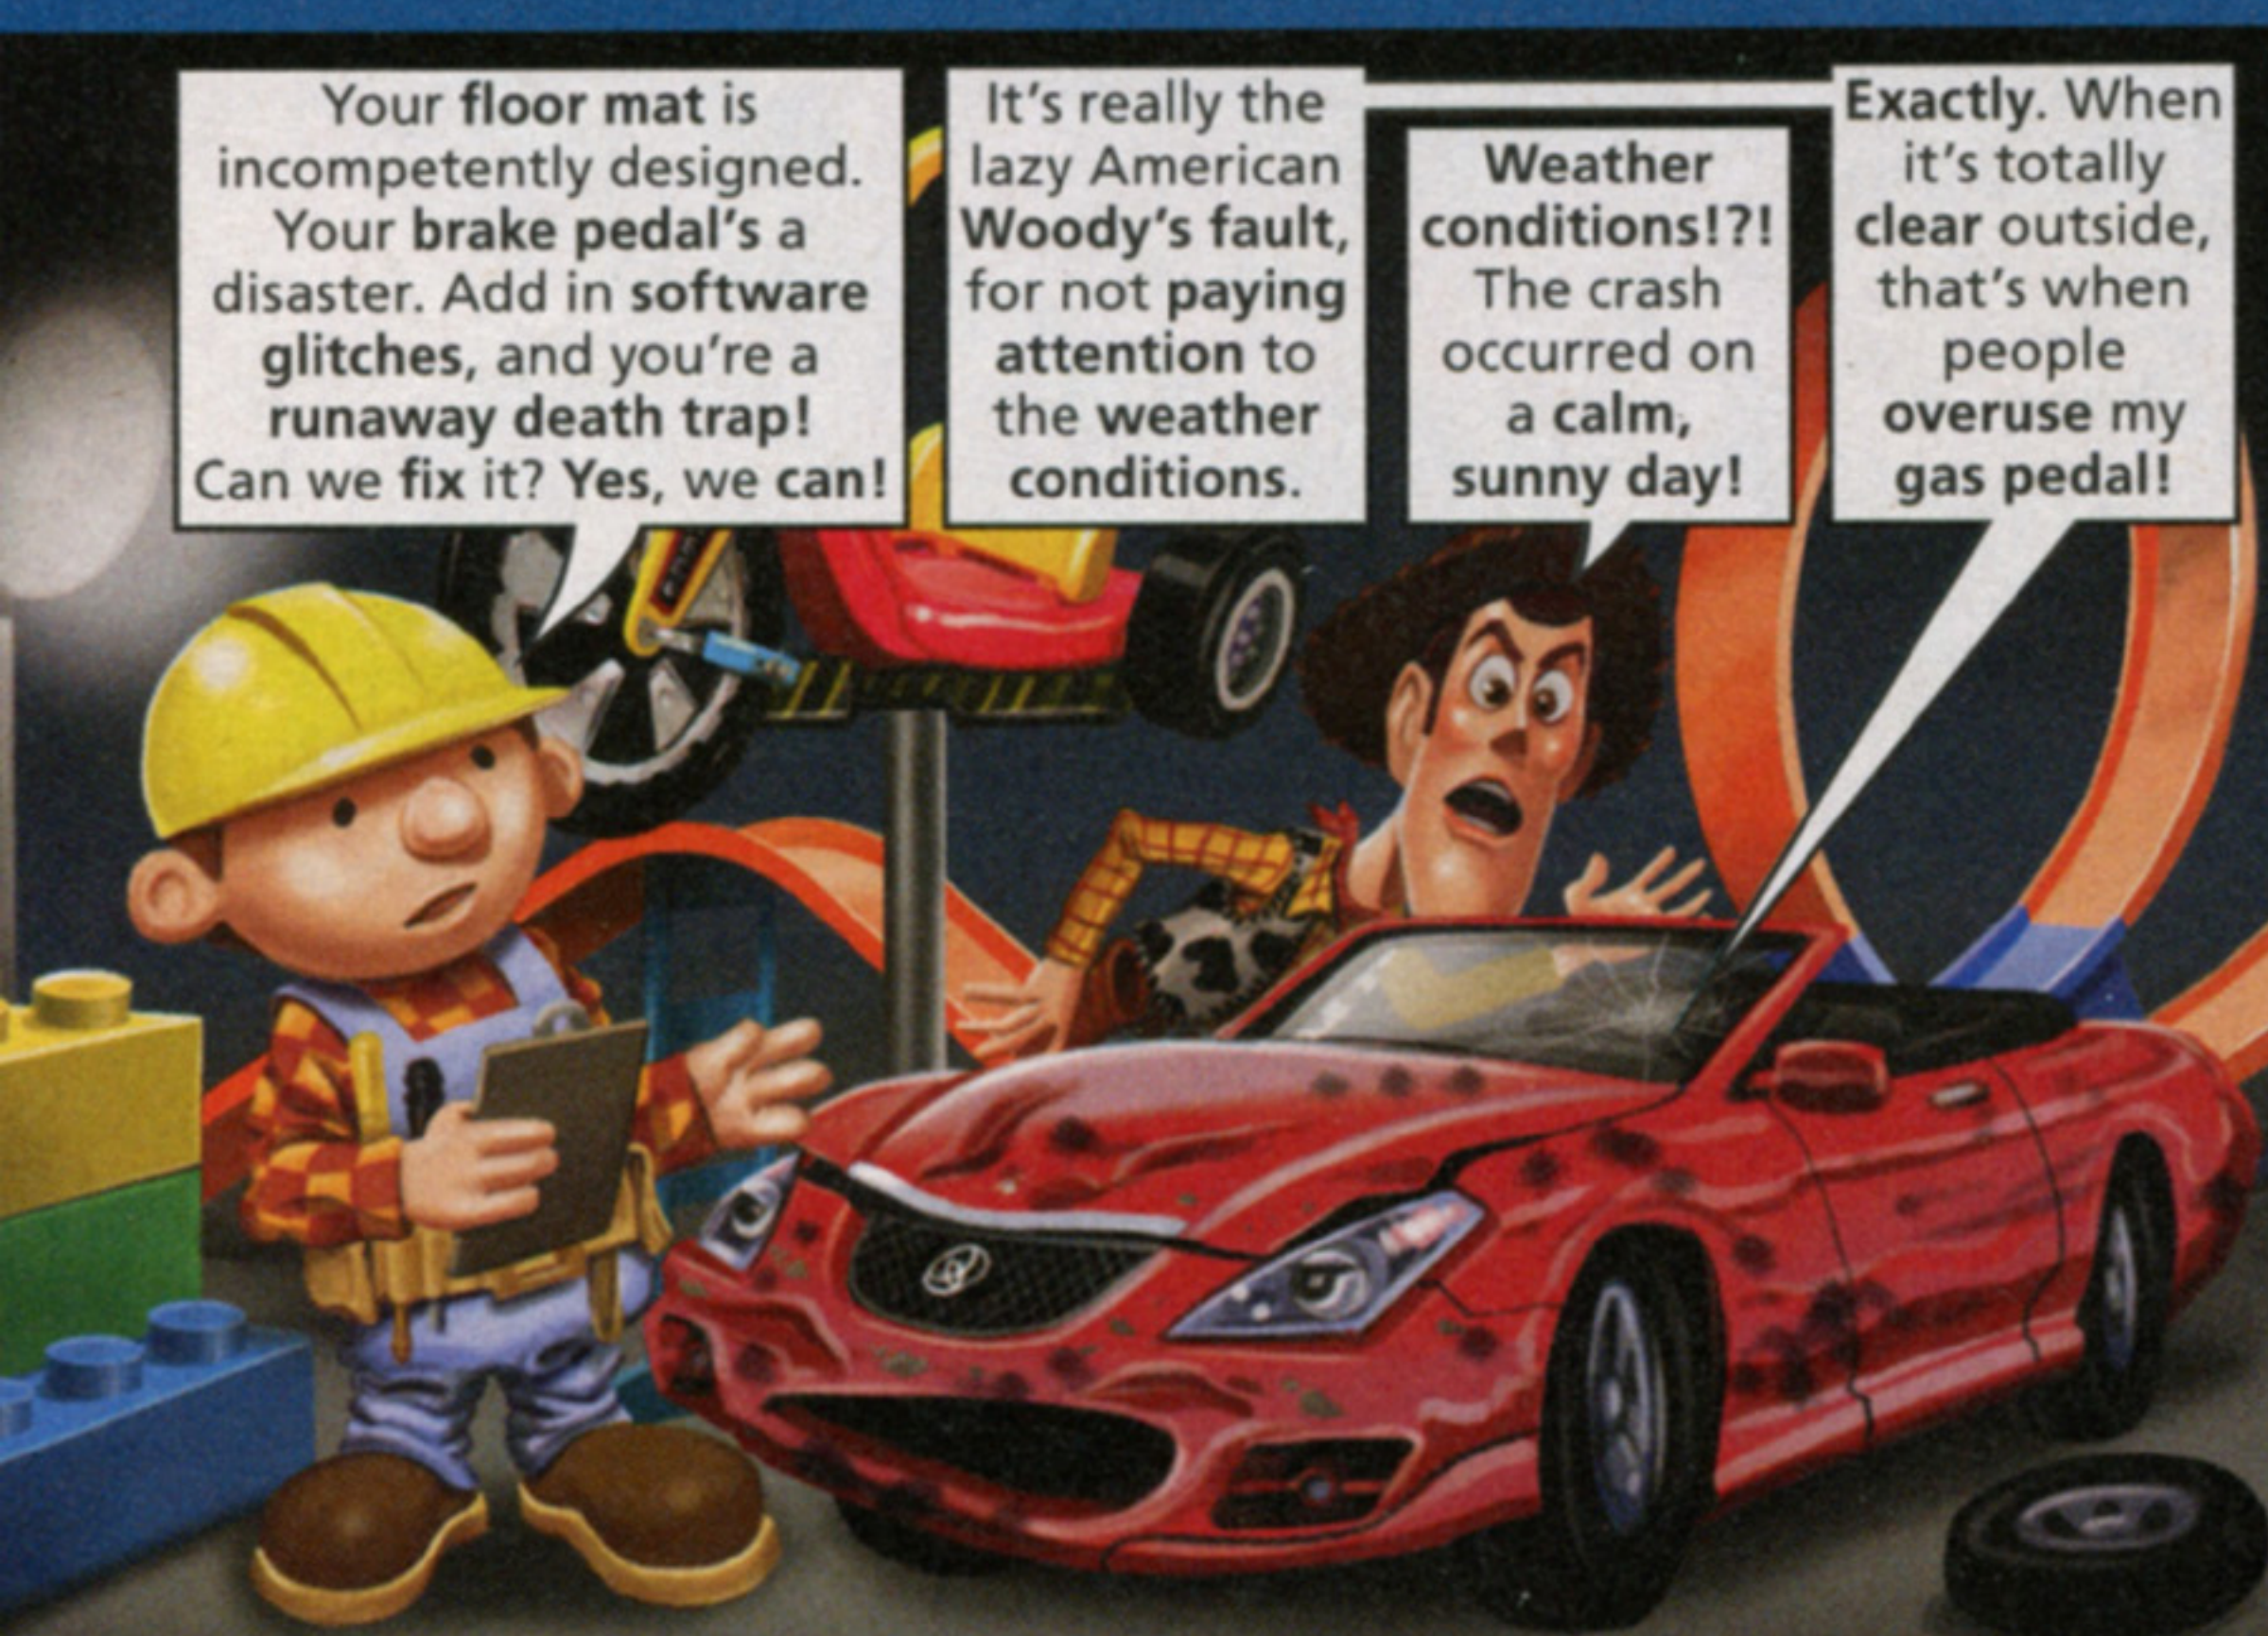

I can't! I don't have hands!

SCREWED "R" US!

This regrettable incident has caused great shame with my new American friends. I have lost much face.

YOU'VE lost face?!?

Your floor mat is incompetently designed. Your brake pedal's a disaster. Add in software glitches, and you're a runaway death trap! Can we fix it? Yes, we can!

It's really the lazy American Woody's fault, for not paying attention to the weather conditions.

Weather conditions?!? The crash occurred on a calm, sunny day!

Exactly. When it's totally clear outside, that's when people overuse my gas pedal!

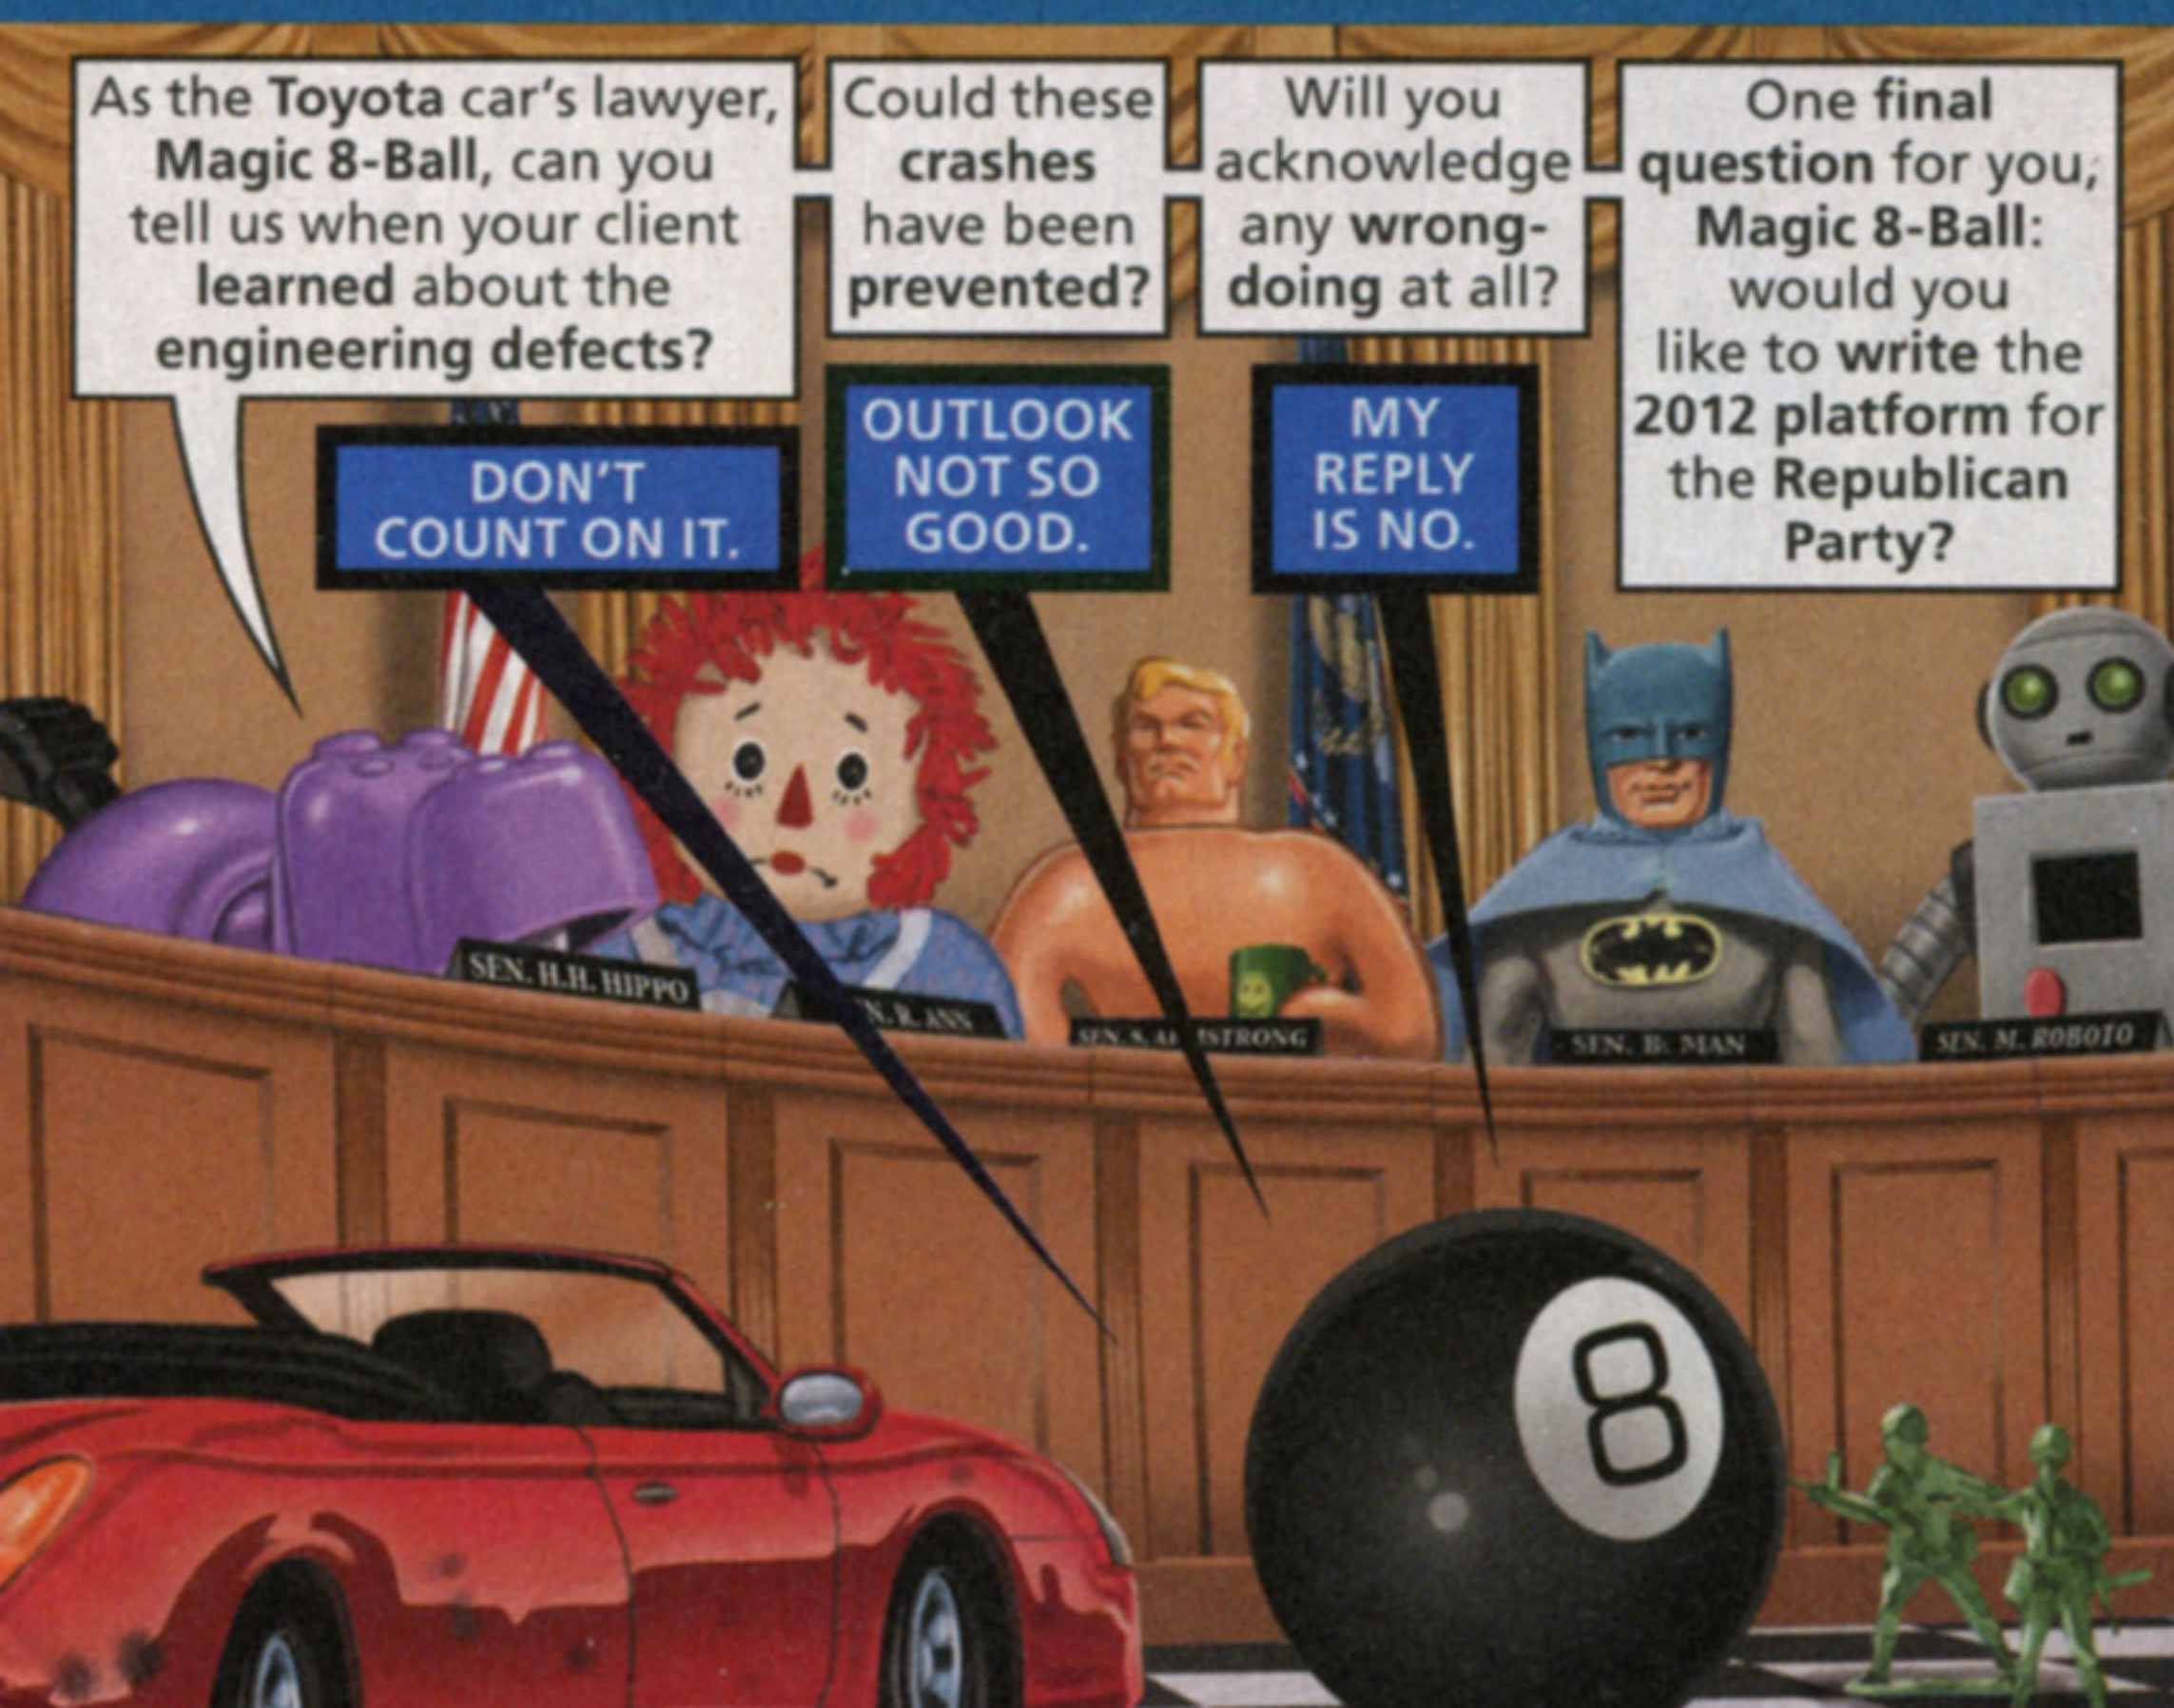

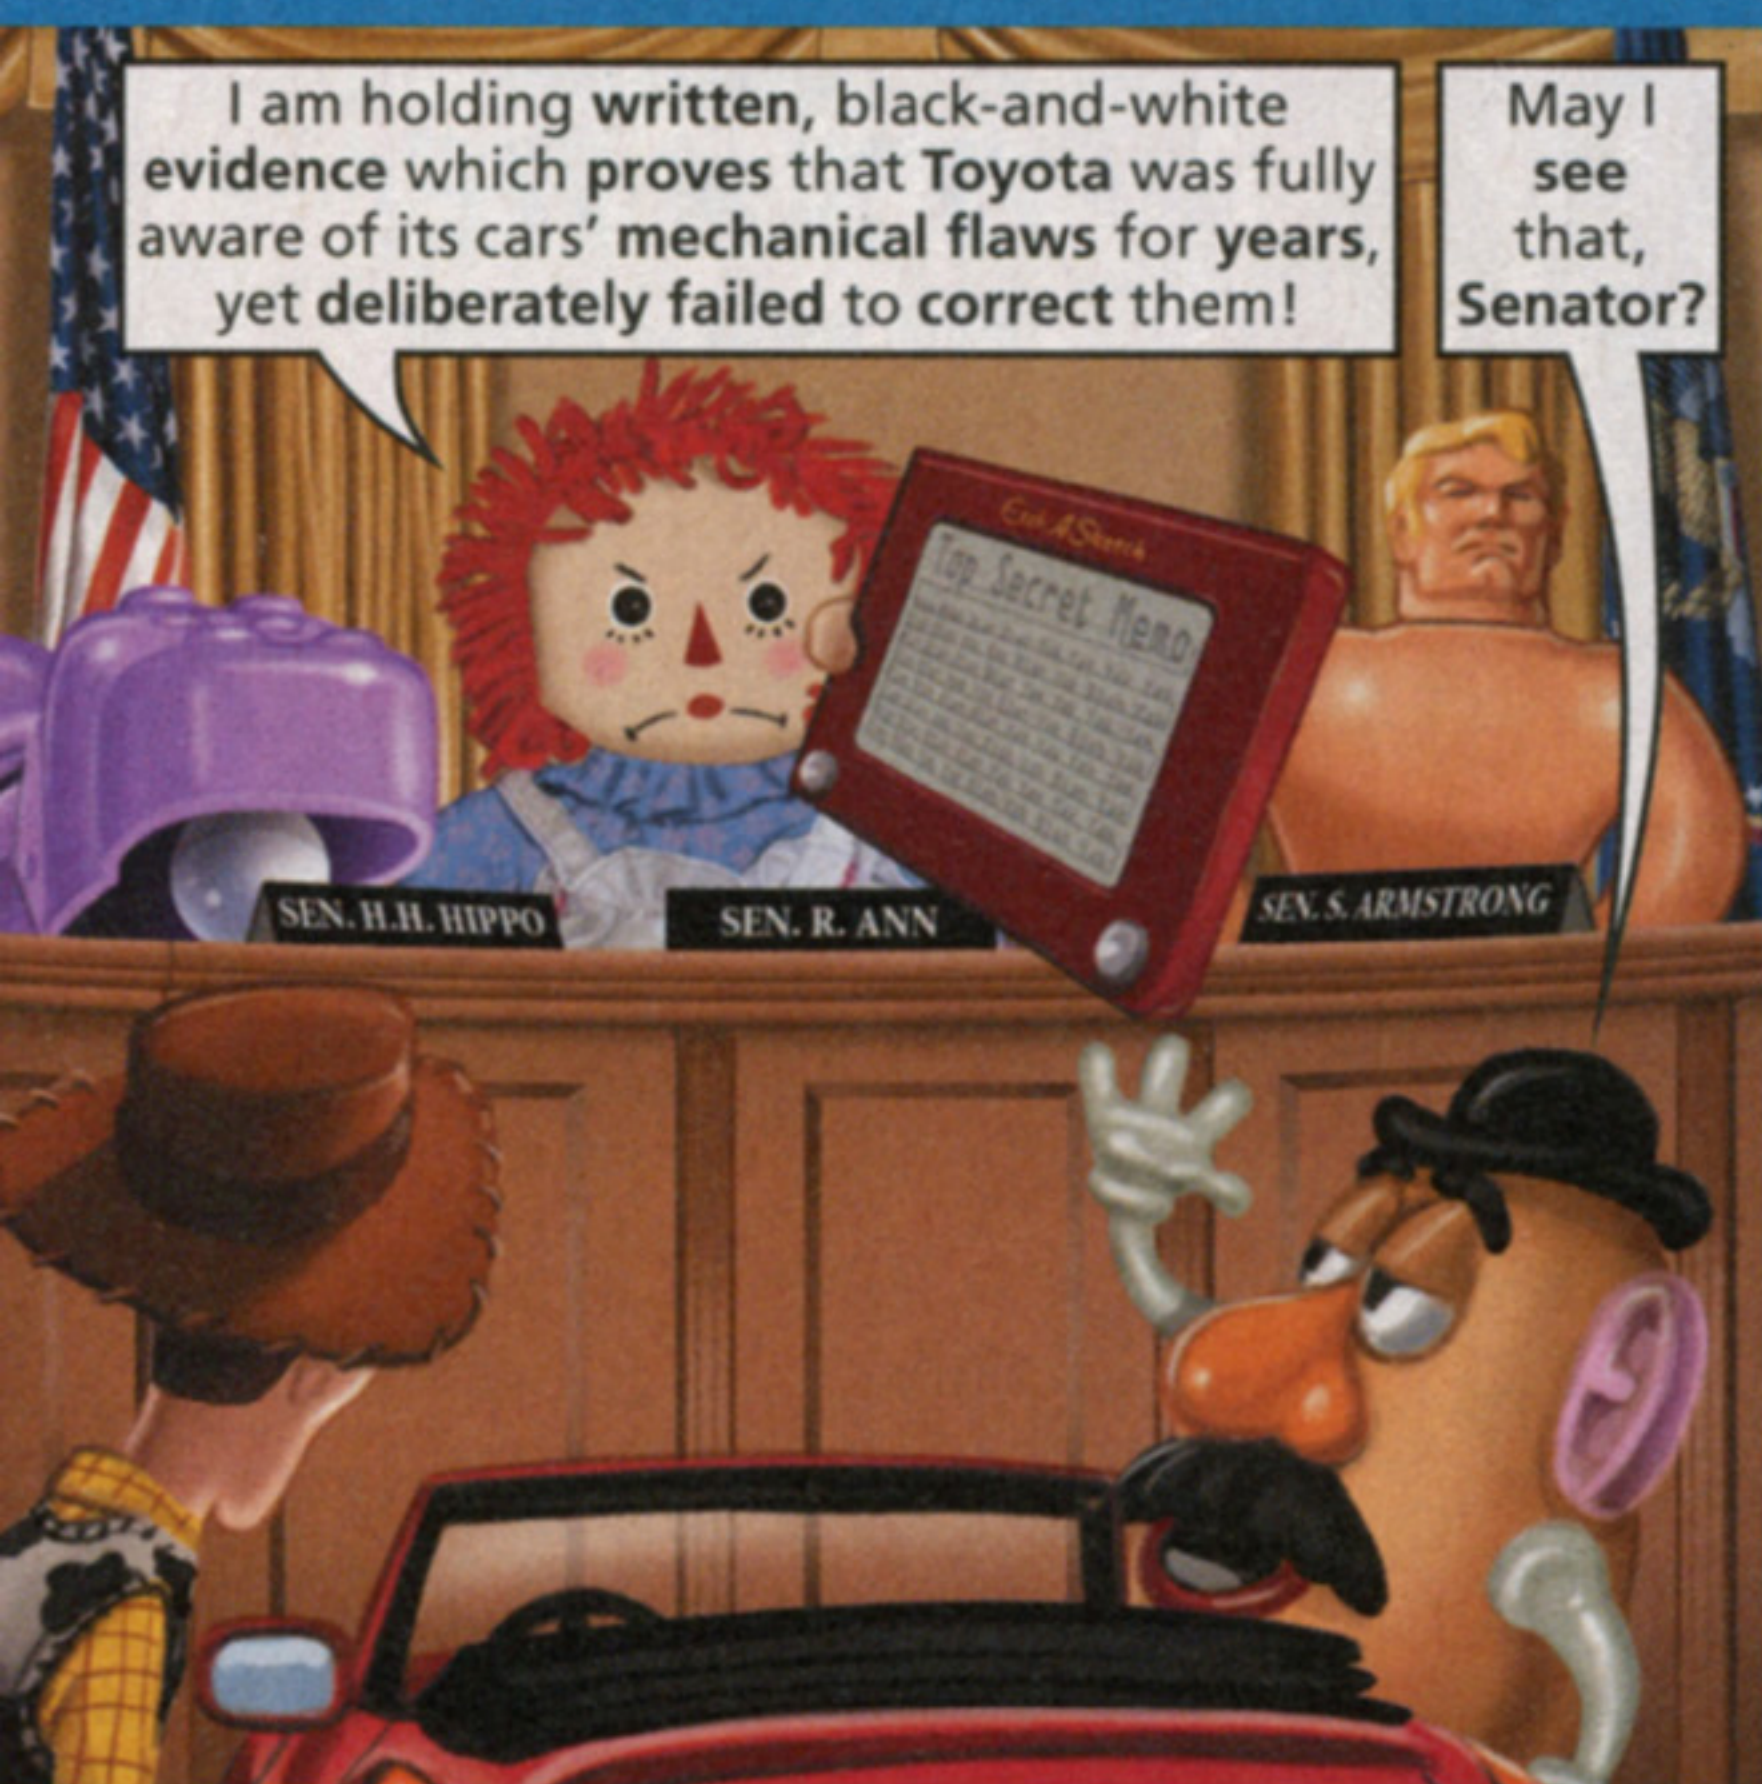

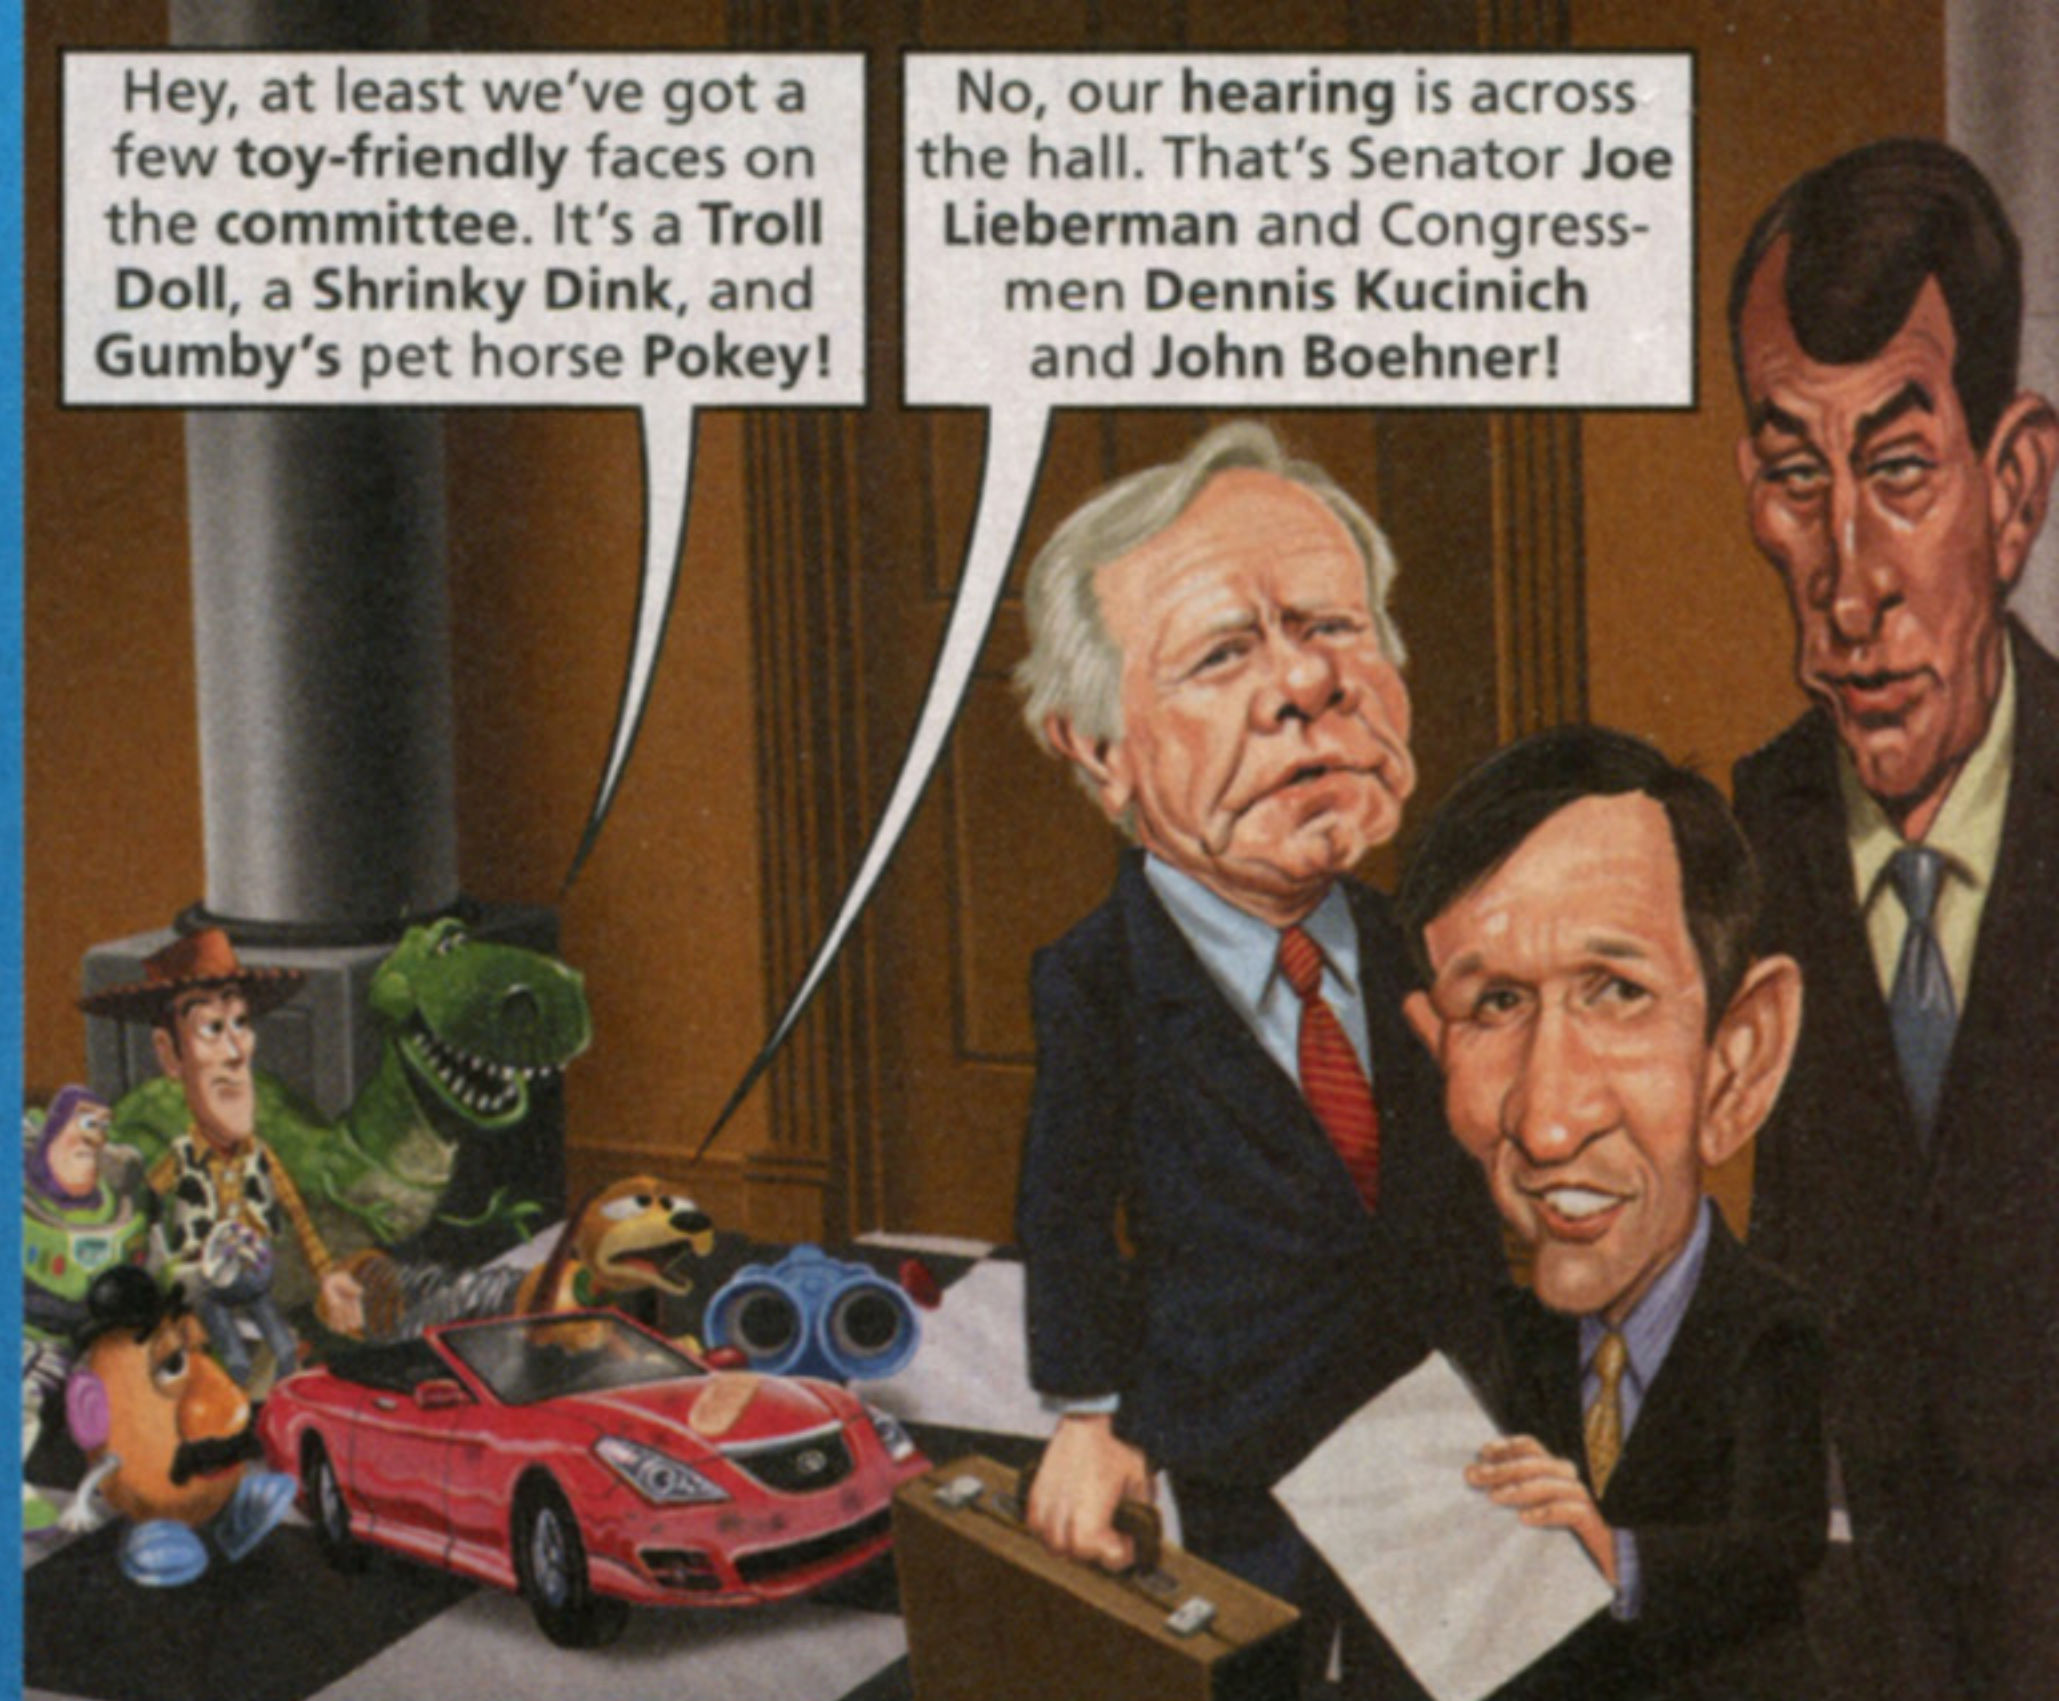

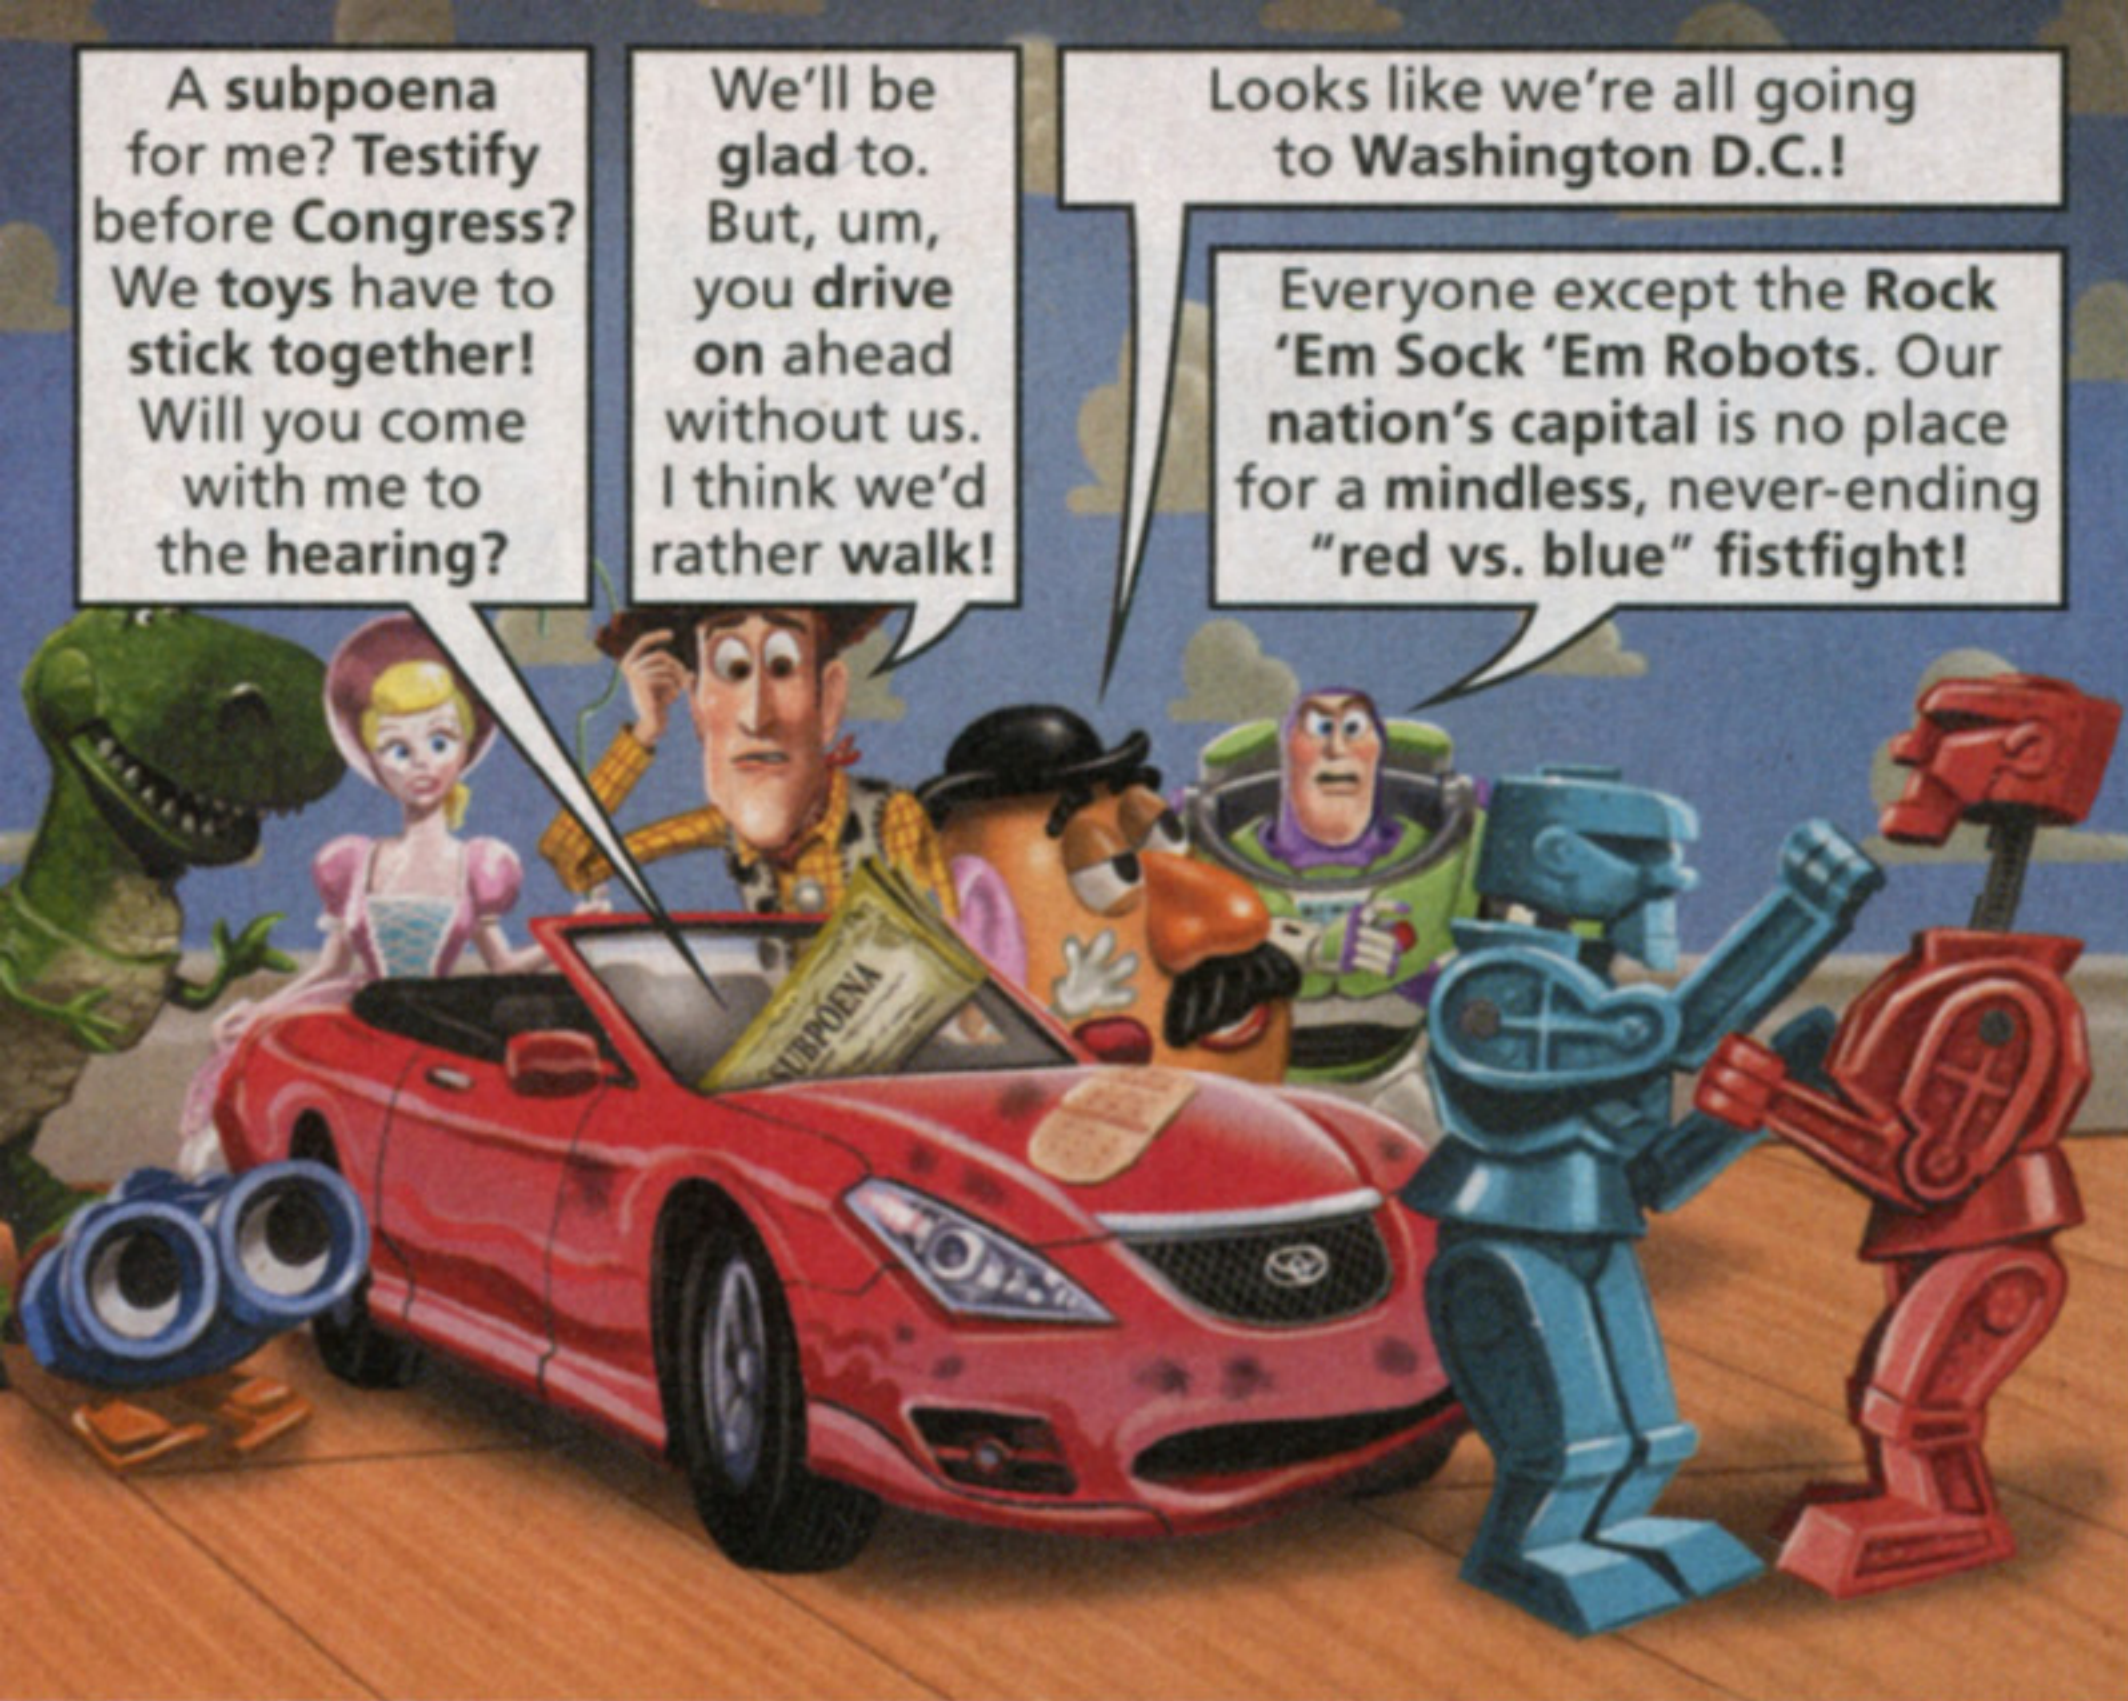

The Next Day...

I rescued everyone I could, but Hamm is still trapped in the burning wreckage!

Good luck getting the thick smell of bacon out of your upholstery!

OUCH OH LORDY I CAN'T FEEL MY CONSONANTS

Everyone thinks Justin Bieber is sooooo great.
But how great is he REALLY?
Let's settle this once and for all
with a little feature we like to call:

BIEBER VERSUS...

BIEBER VS. BEAKER

Winner: BEAKER!

Incomprehensible, high-pitched muppet has a much less annoying voice.

BIEBER VS. BABAR

Winner: BABAR!

"King of the Elephants" outranks "Prince of the Bowl Cuts."

BIEBER VS. BUBLÉ

Winner: IT'S A TIE!

Both produce equally-crappy music.

BIEBER VS. BEEPER

Winner: BEEPER!

Both completely useless, but the Beeper served a purpose at some point — which is more than we can say for Bieber.

BIEBER VS. BABY

Winner: BABY!

Creepily, Bieber is somehow softer and more feminine.

BIEBER VS. BILBO

Winner: BILBO!

Bilbo's mentor = Gandalf. Bieber's mentor = Usher. Also, Bilbo is taller.

BIEBER VS. BEEMER

Winner: BEEMER!

Sophisticated German automobile requires less engineering and production than the average Bieber single.

BIEBER VS. BOO BERRY

Winner: BOO BERRY!

Boo Berry exhibits far more personality, despite being dead.

BIEBER VS. BOMBSHELL

Winner: IT'S A TIE!

Both of their photos are used as currency in prison.

BIEBER VS. BUTTER

Winner: BUTTER!

Butter is sometimes mistaken for margarine. Bieber is sometimes mistaken for Selena Gomez in a Beatles wig.

BIEBER VS. BOWSER

Winner: IT'S A TIE!

Bowser is constantly pursued by Mario. For Bieber, it's that sketchy dude in the van.

BIEBER VS. BOBA

Winner: BOBA!

Boba single-handedly kicked the ass of an entire galaxy. Bieber needs a ten-man security team for an appearance at Build-a-Bear.

BIEBER VS. BEBOP

Winner: IT'S A TIE!

Bebop is a mutated half-human/half-warthog. Bieber is Canadian.

BIEBER VS. BUDDHA

Winner: BUDDHA!

Buddha's followers aren't going to stop giving a s#*% about him as soon as they turn 17.

BIEBER VS. BUBBA

Winner: BUBBA!

Bieber's position on curbing nuclear proliferation in Iran and other Middle East countries is naïve at best.

BIEBER VS. BLUE BOY

Winner: IT'S A TIE!

Blue Boy is dry paint. Watching a Bieber performance is as exciting as watching paint dry.

BIEBER VS. BOO BOO

Winner: BOO BOO!

One is a short, furry little weirdo that probably poops in the woods. The other is a delightful animated bear.

BIEBER VS. BLAGGO

Winner: BLAGGO!

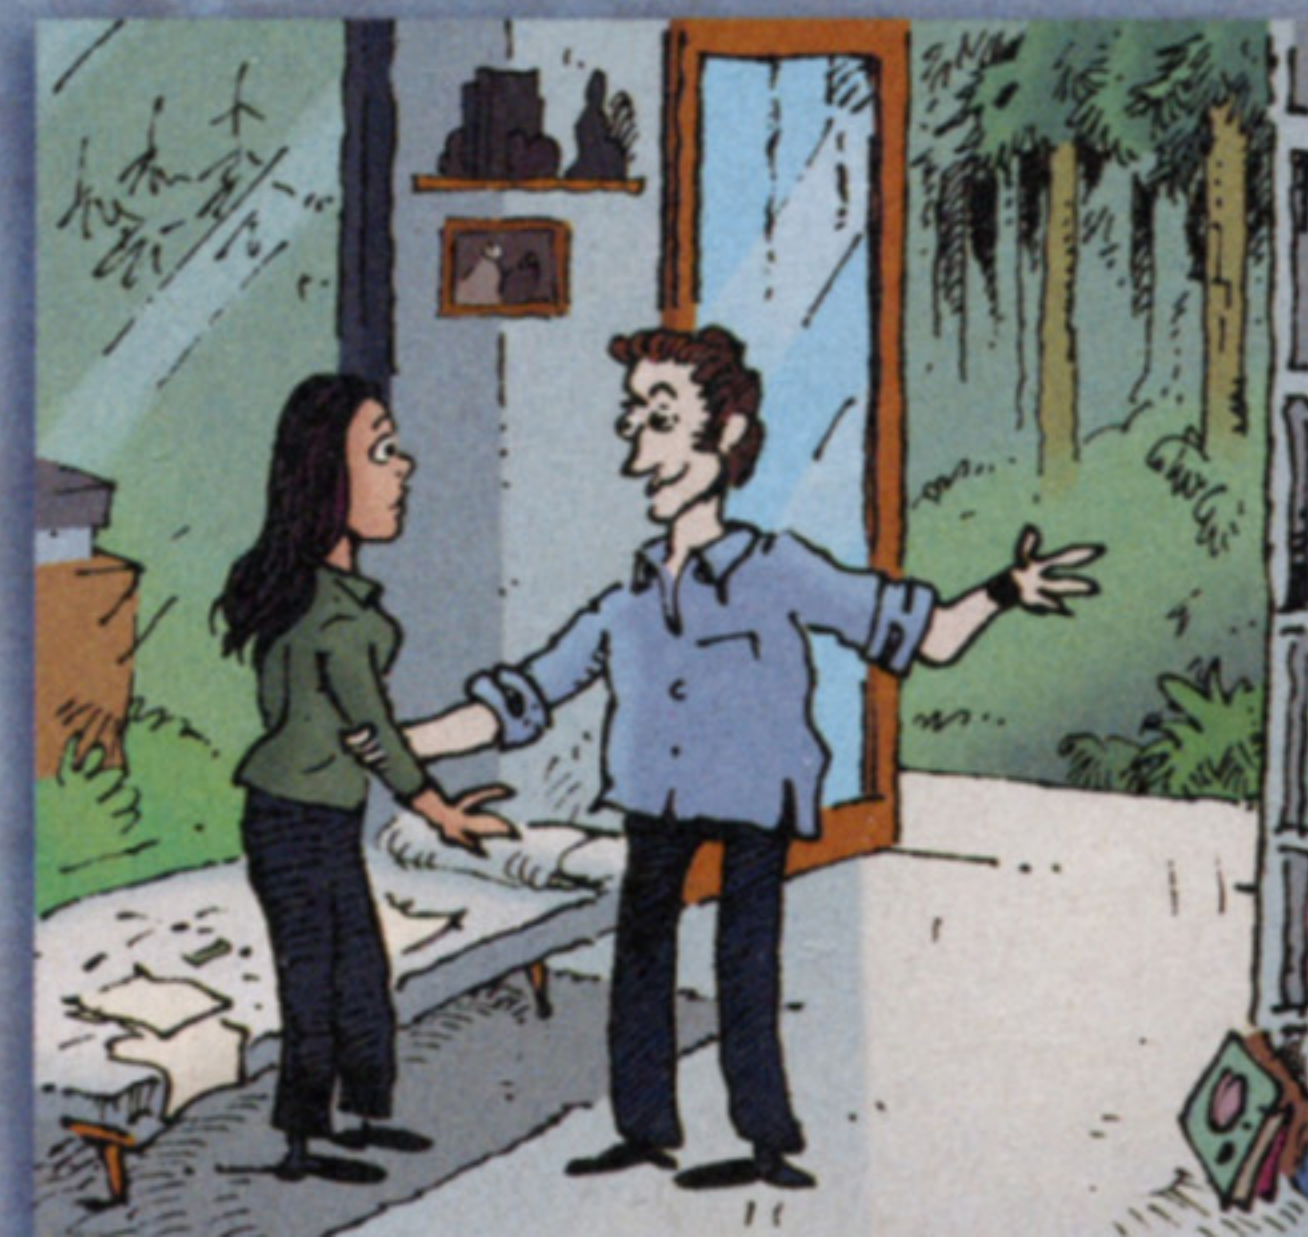

Inconceivably, Blaggo has better hair!

A MAD AD PARODY

Recently, two college students at California State University found documents in a trash bin outlining Sarah Palin's contract requirements for her speaking appearance at the school. These documents were widely distributed in the media. Subsequently, MAD went BACK to the dumpster and dug even deeper amongst the filth and muck. We uncovered even MORE Palin contract demands that we present here for the first time. (Pulitzer Committee, please take note!)

More SARAH PALIN SPEAKING CONTRACT DEMANDS

WasillaSpeakersBureau

CONTRACT ADDENDUM

In addition to former Governor Sarah Palin's outrageous speaking fee, the following is an agreement between Palin (aka "The Speaker") and your facility (aka "The Venue") and shall be stipulated prior to final agreement to appear:

DRESSING ROOM

The Speaker's Dressing Room shall contain no fewer than three (3) bowls of moose jerky. Speaker requires two (2) bottles of melted Alaskan glacier water.

Additionally, Speaker requires two (2) bendable straws and one (1) person to show the Speaker how they work. Venue agrees to provide no fewer than six (6) shiny objects to entertain Todd.

PRESS/MEDIA

There shall be a strict limitation on media access during the Speaker's appearance. No actual journalists shall be permitted. So FOX News is fine.

SOUND CHECK

Sound Check shall occur ninety (90) minutes prior to event to insure that the phrase "How's that hope-y change-y stuff workin' out for ya?" is amplified to appropriately twangy, sarcastic levels.

EVENT STAFF

Under no circumstance shall Event Staff audibly laugh at all the misspellings in Tea Partiers' homemade signs. No shaking hands with the Speaker prior to the event, which could cause her speech notes to be rubbed away.

TRANSPORTATION

Governor Palin shall be brought to venue via chauffeured limousine or town car. You know, like real Americans. The Venue shall provide shuttle service as needed to the following:
Area shopping malls for three (3) to five (5) hour shopping sprees to be billed to the Republican National Committee.

SECURITY

Venue Security will be posted at all doors during the event to prevent the presence and/or appearance of Levi Johnston and/or Levi Johnston's penis.

DAY-OF-EVENT

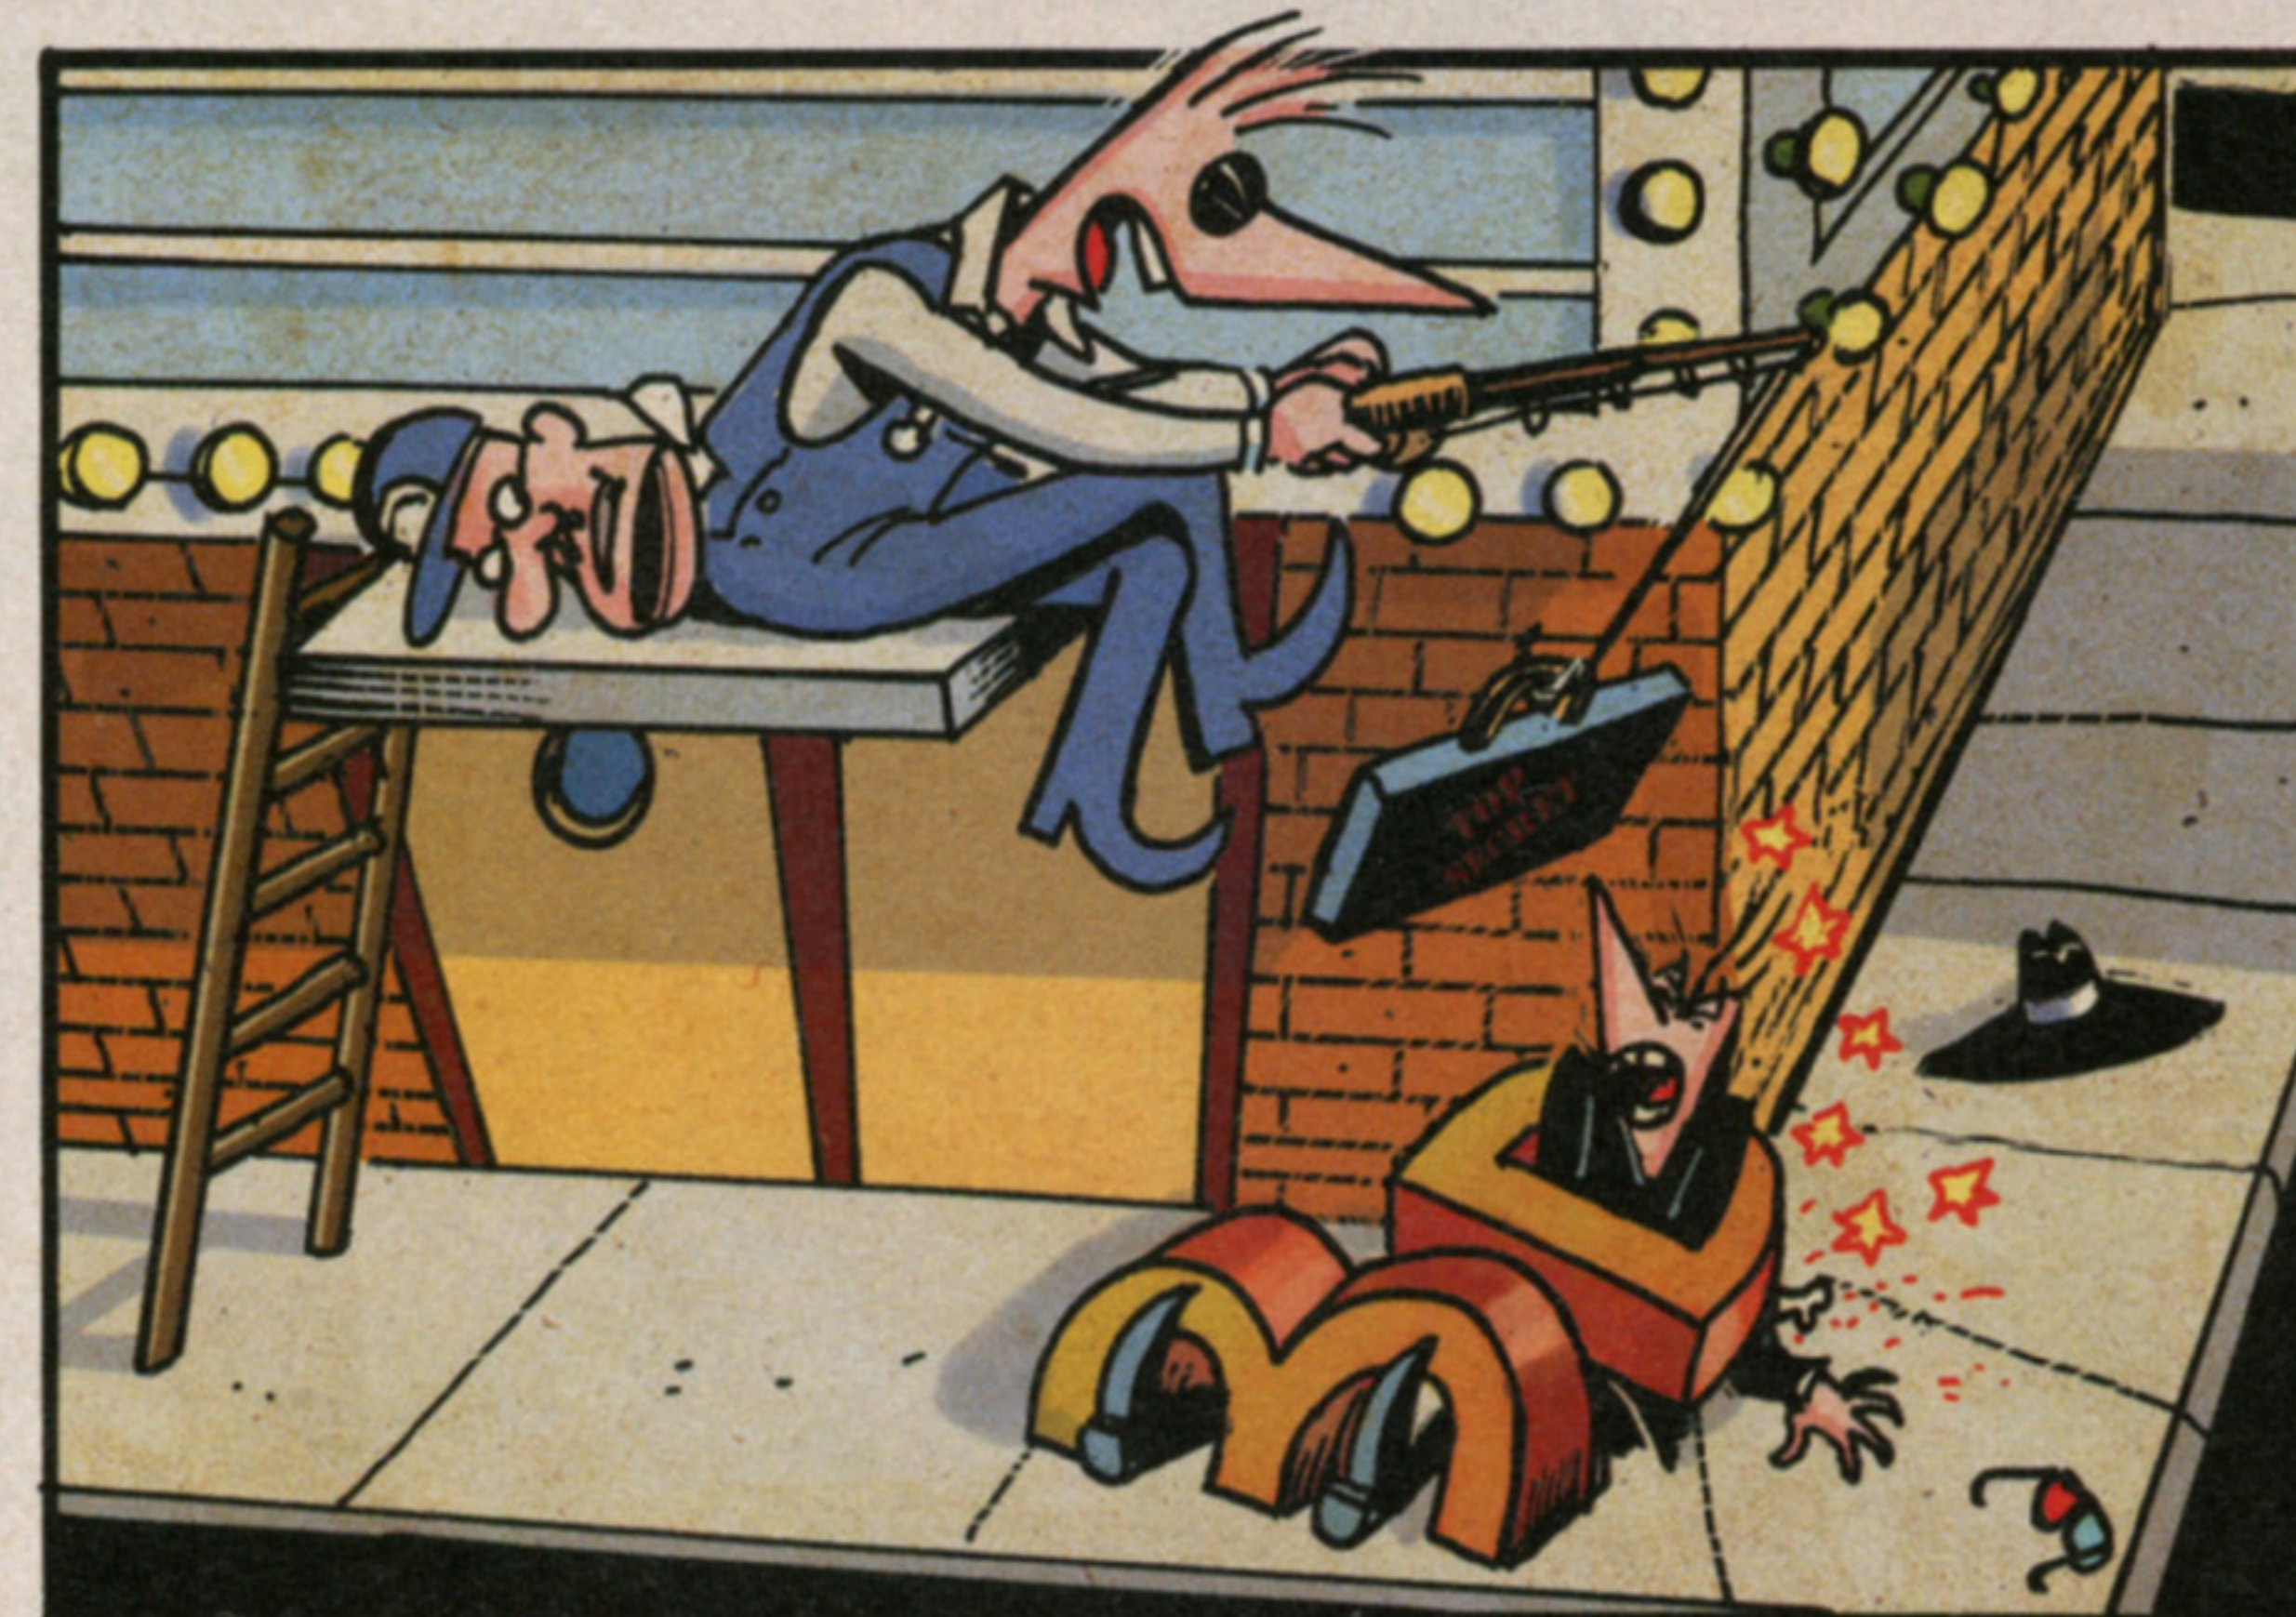

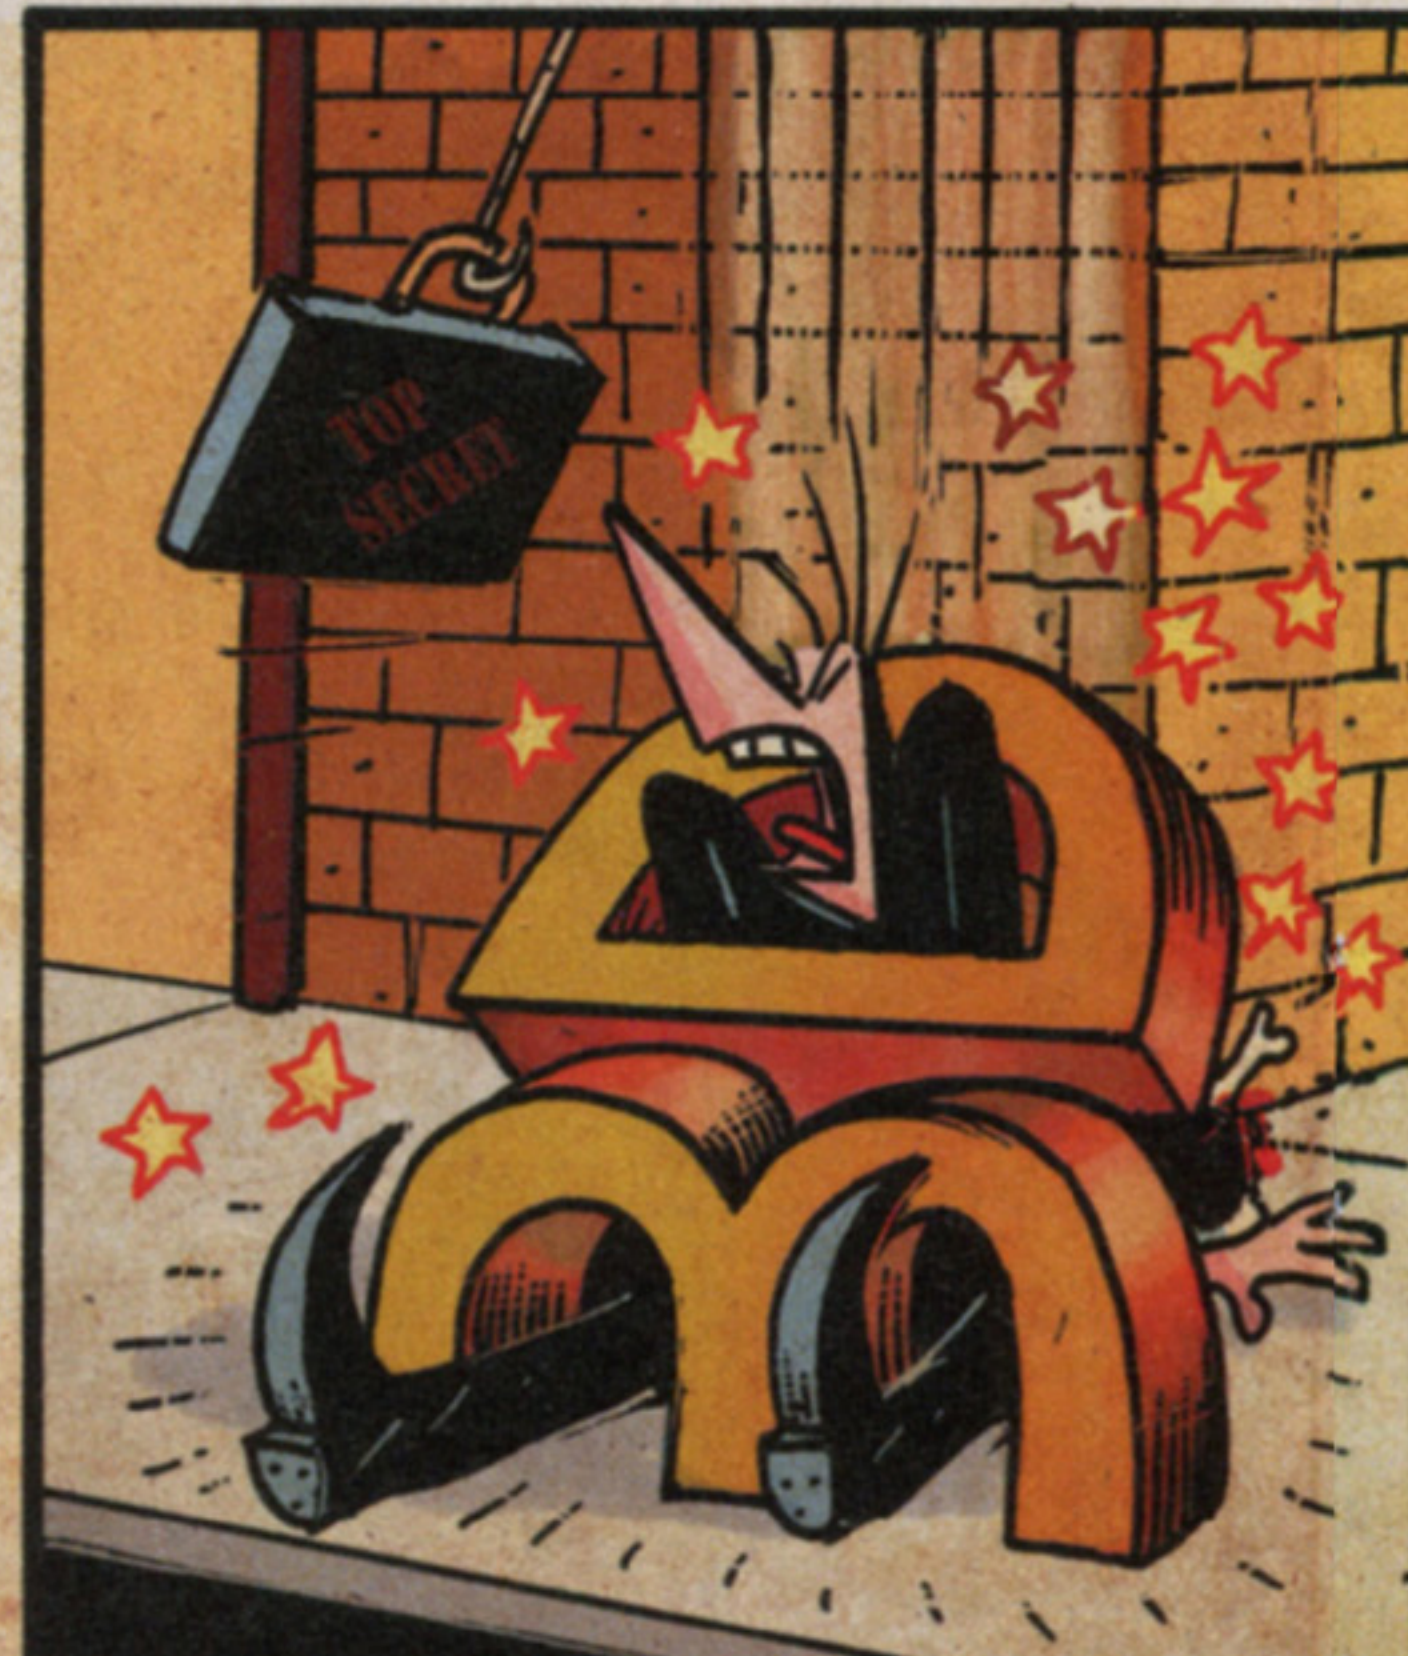

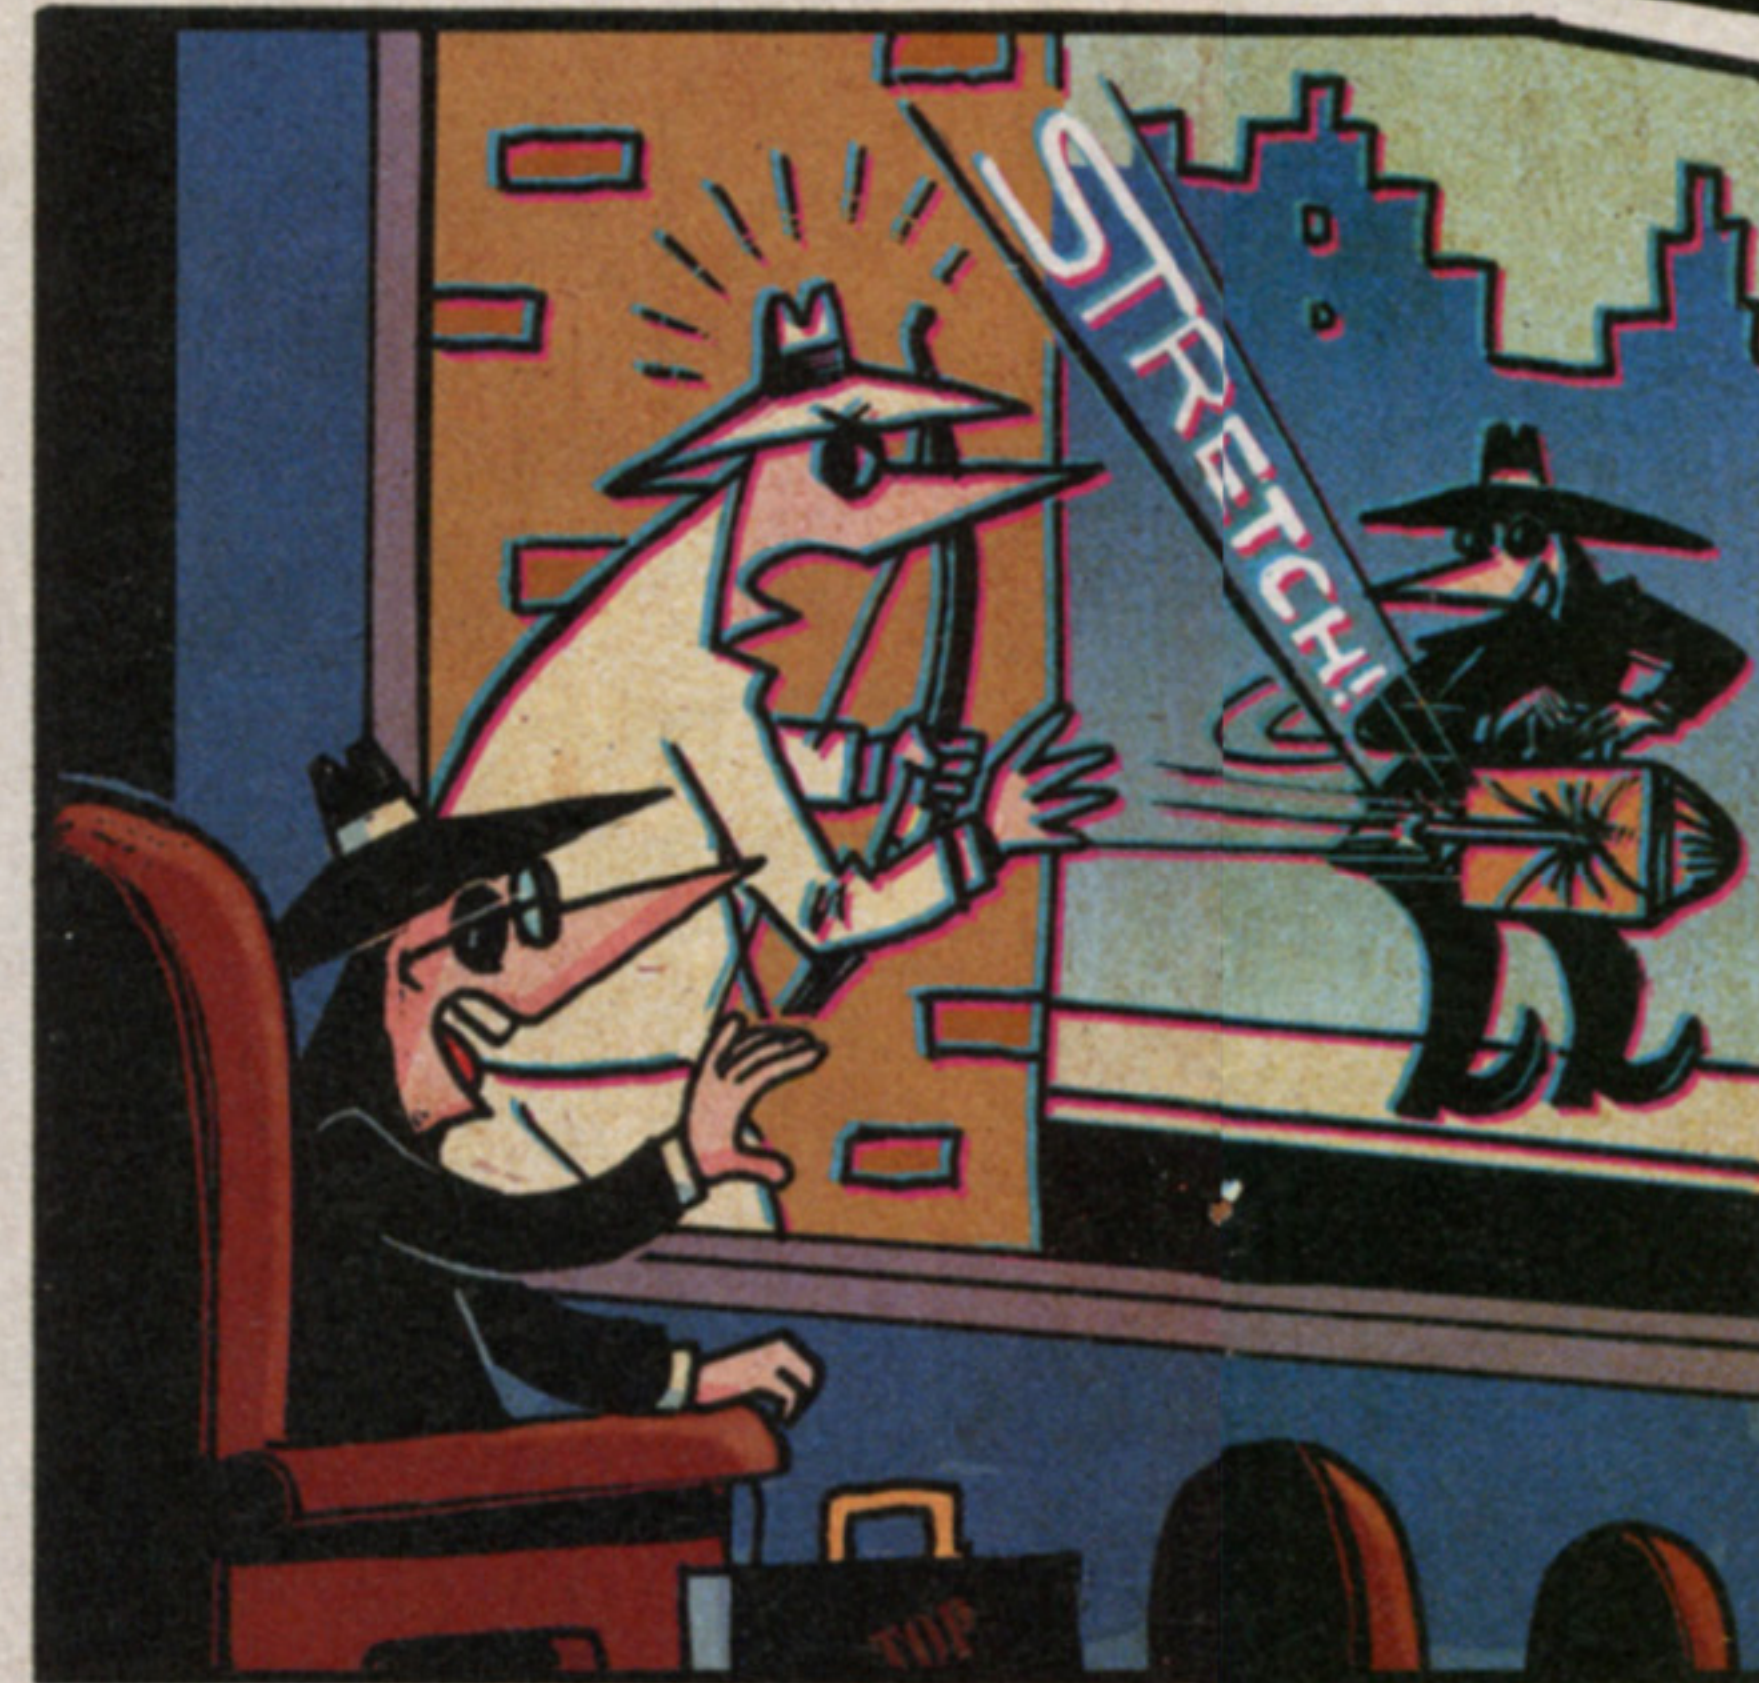

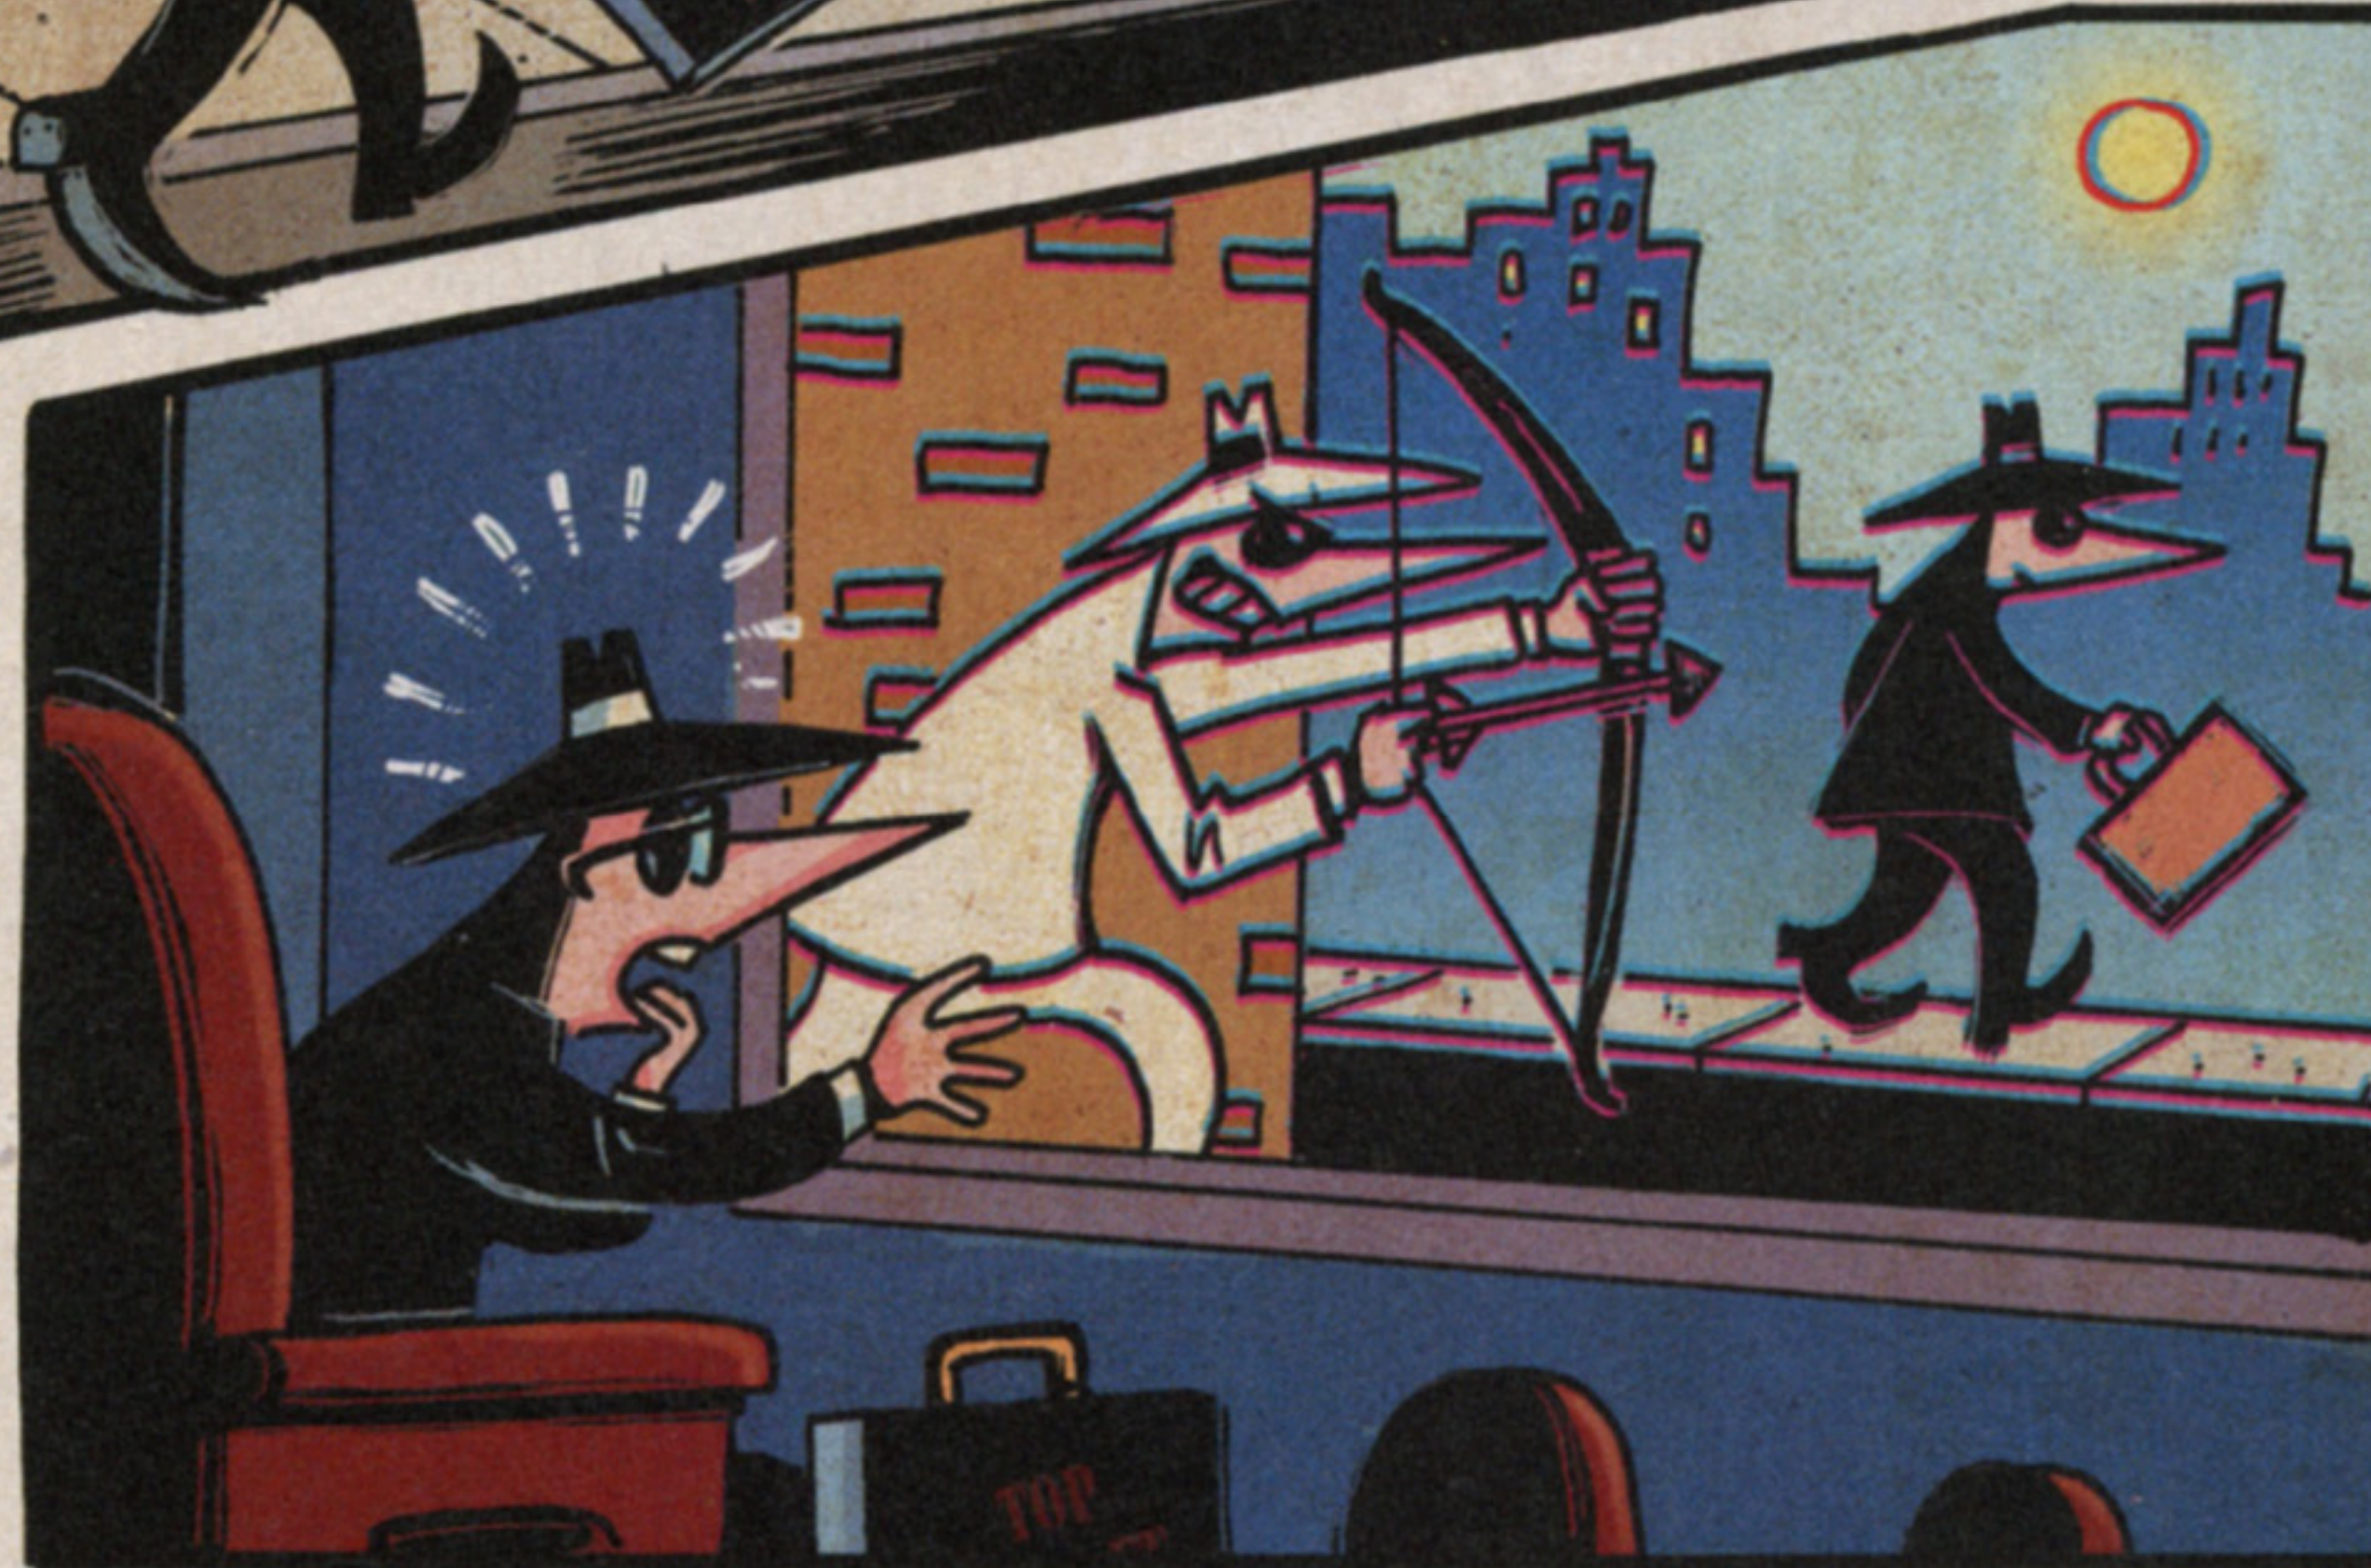

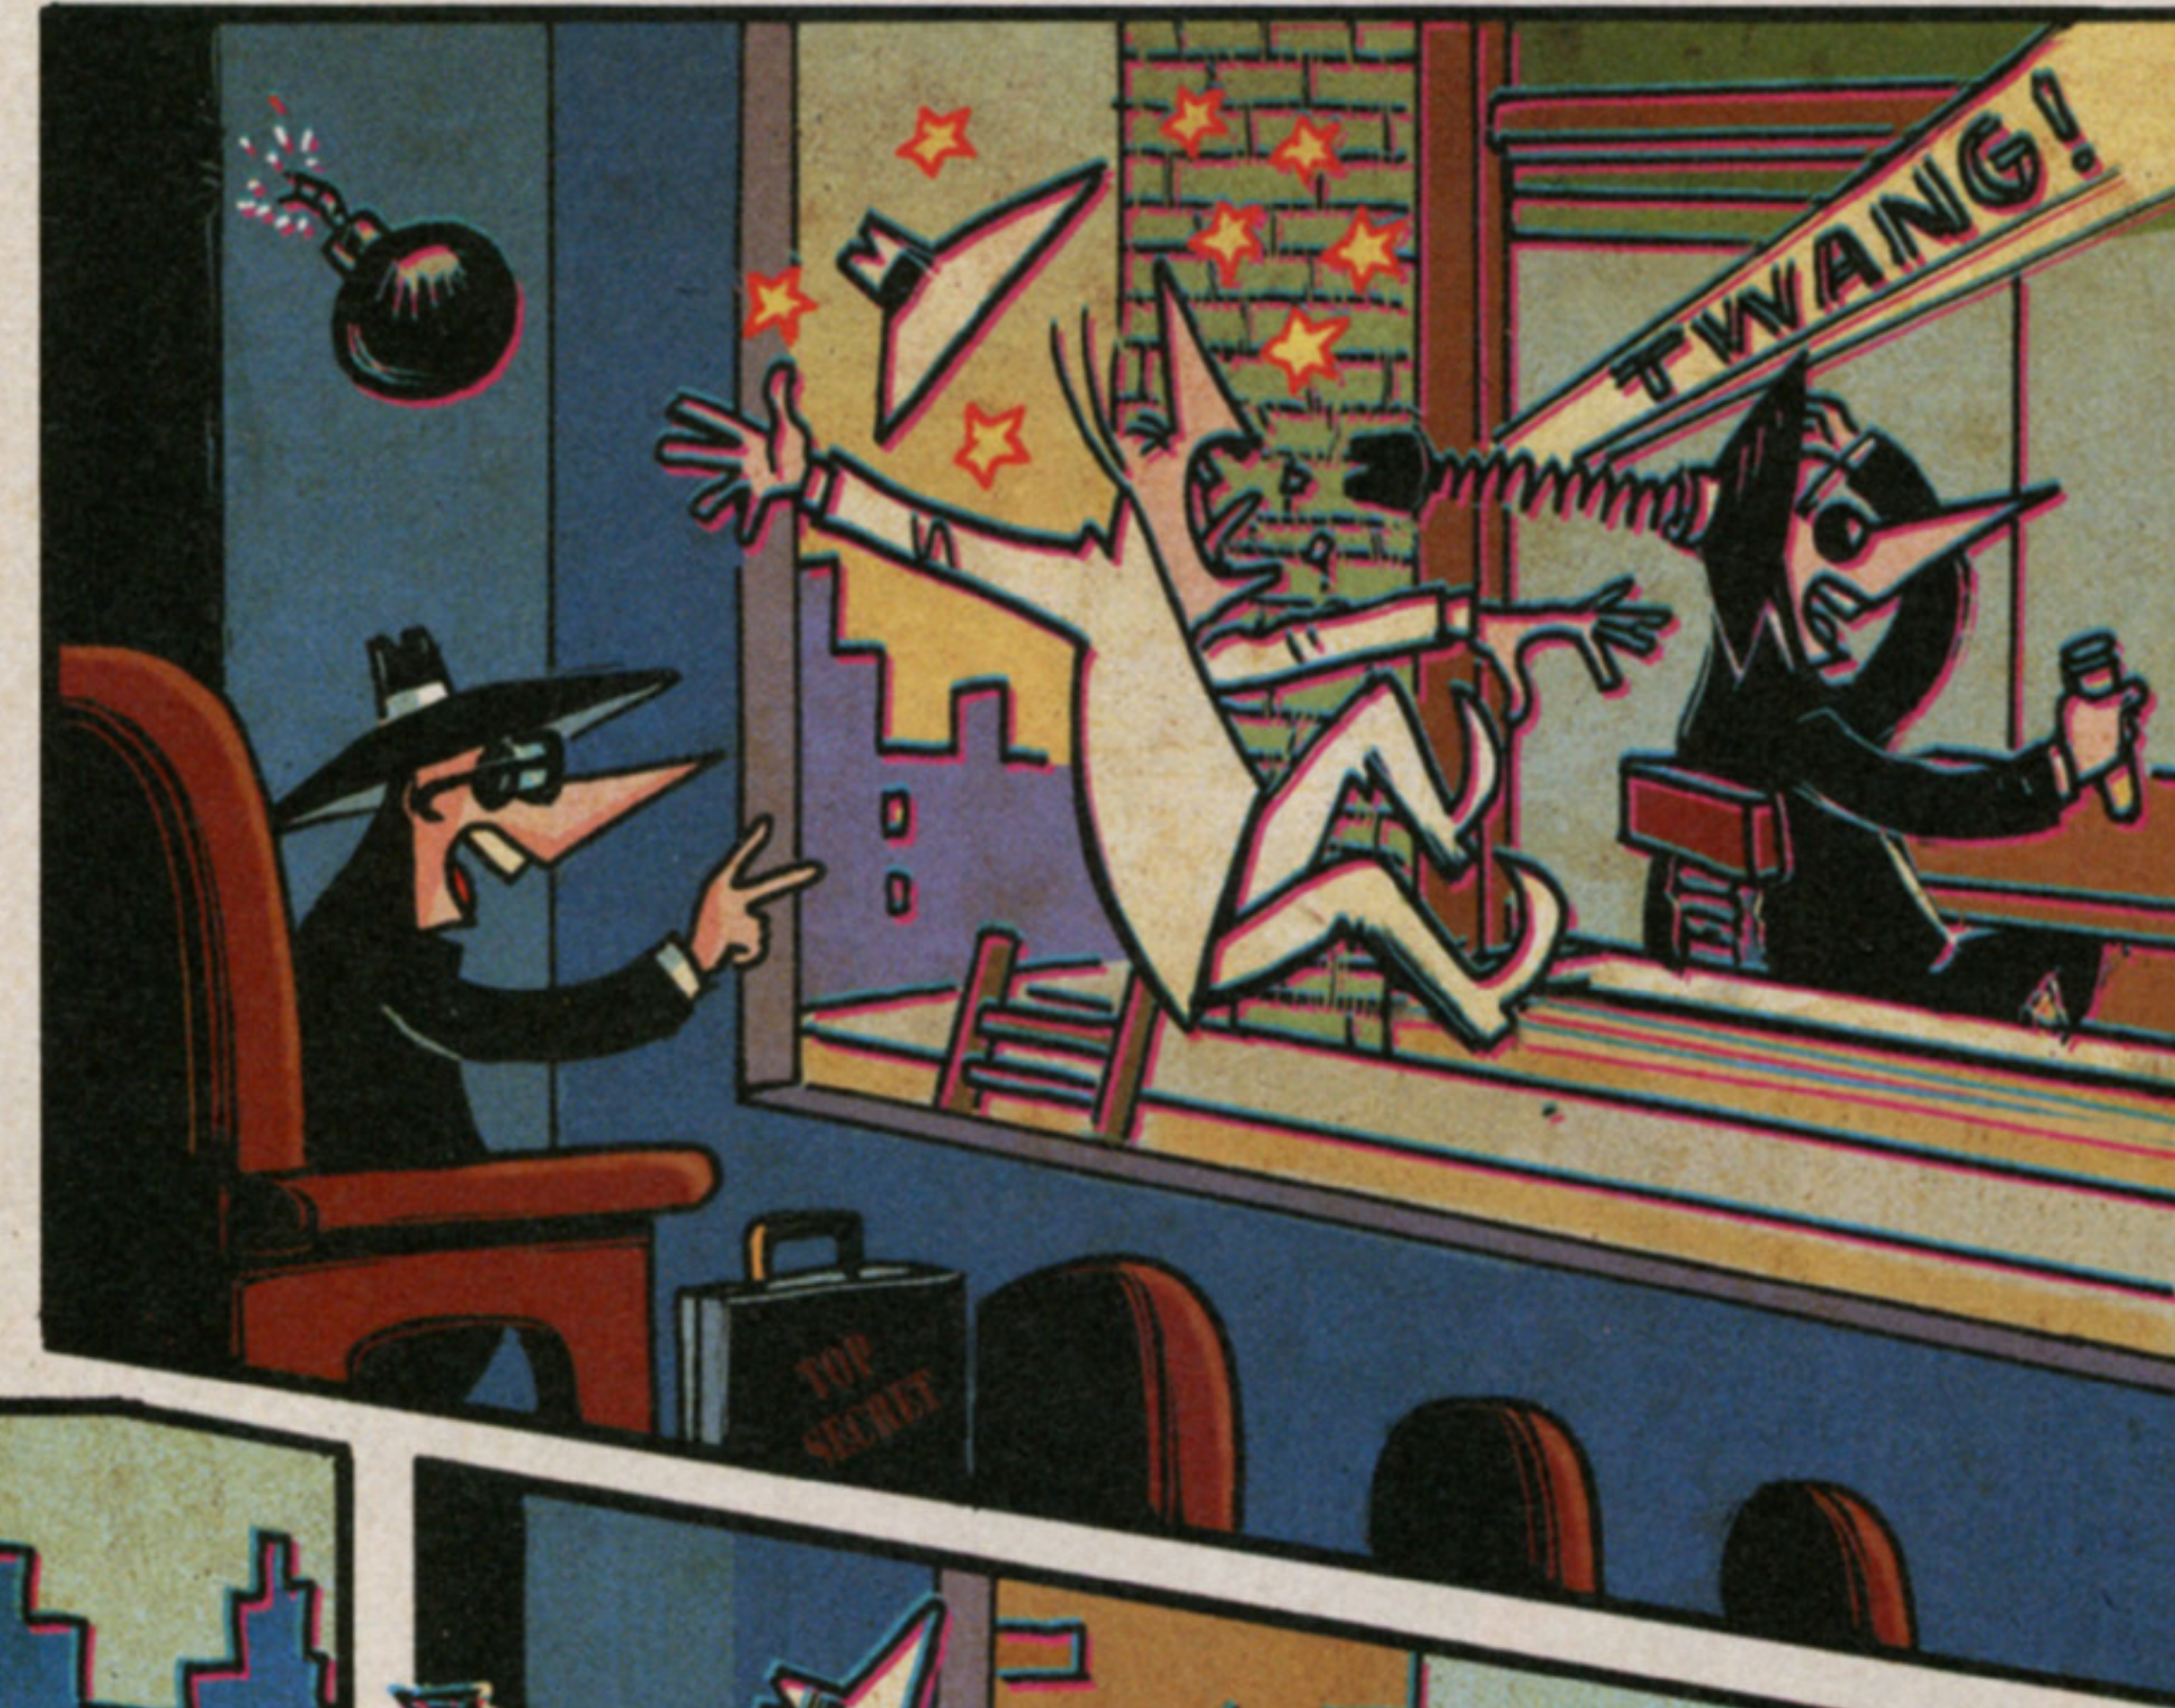

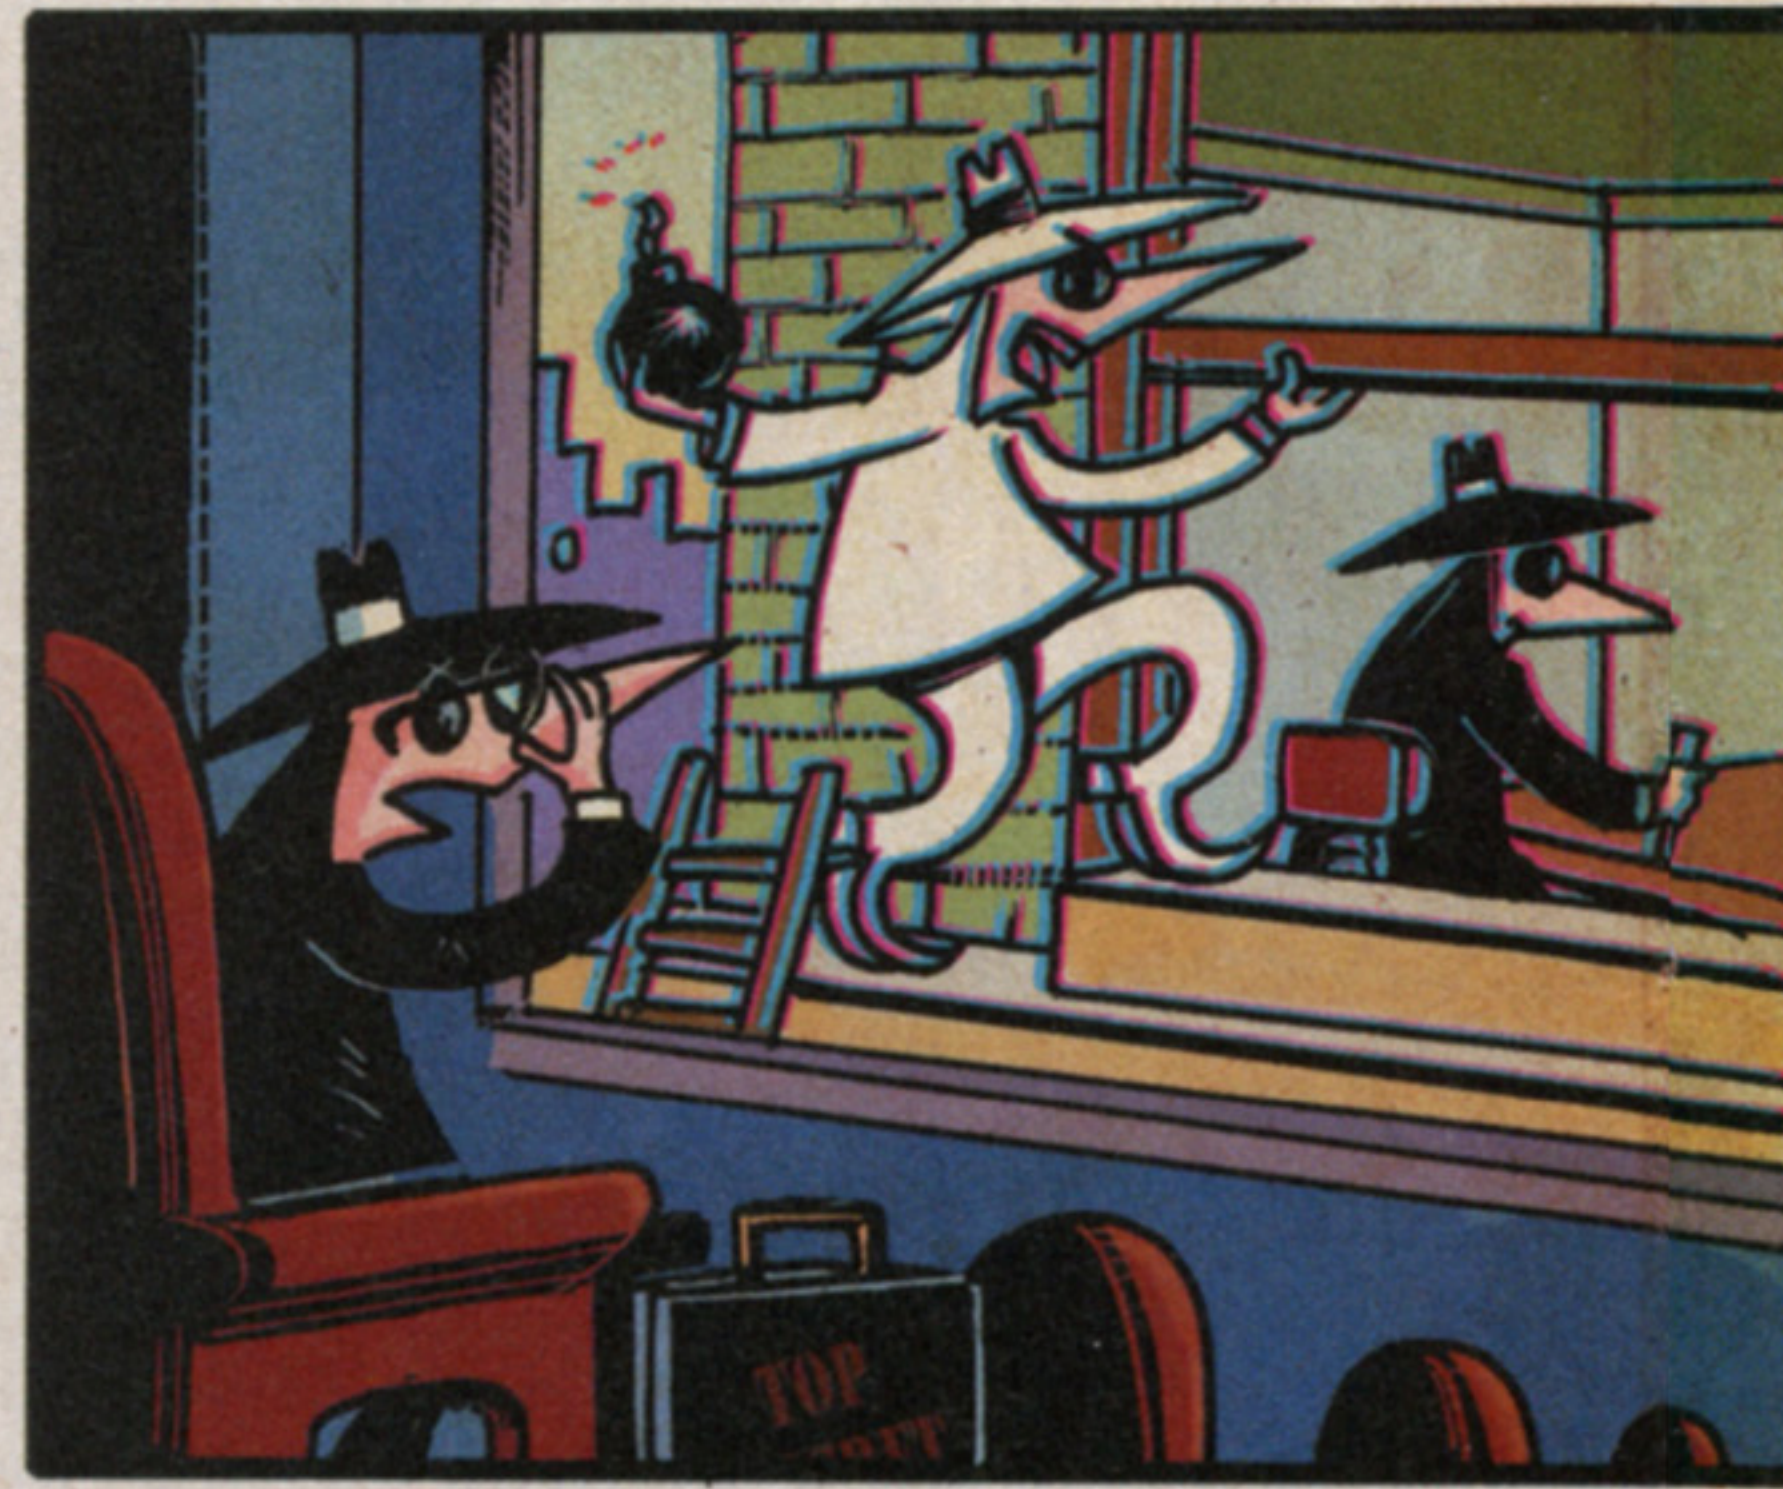

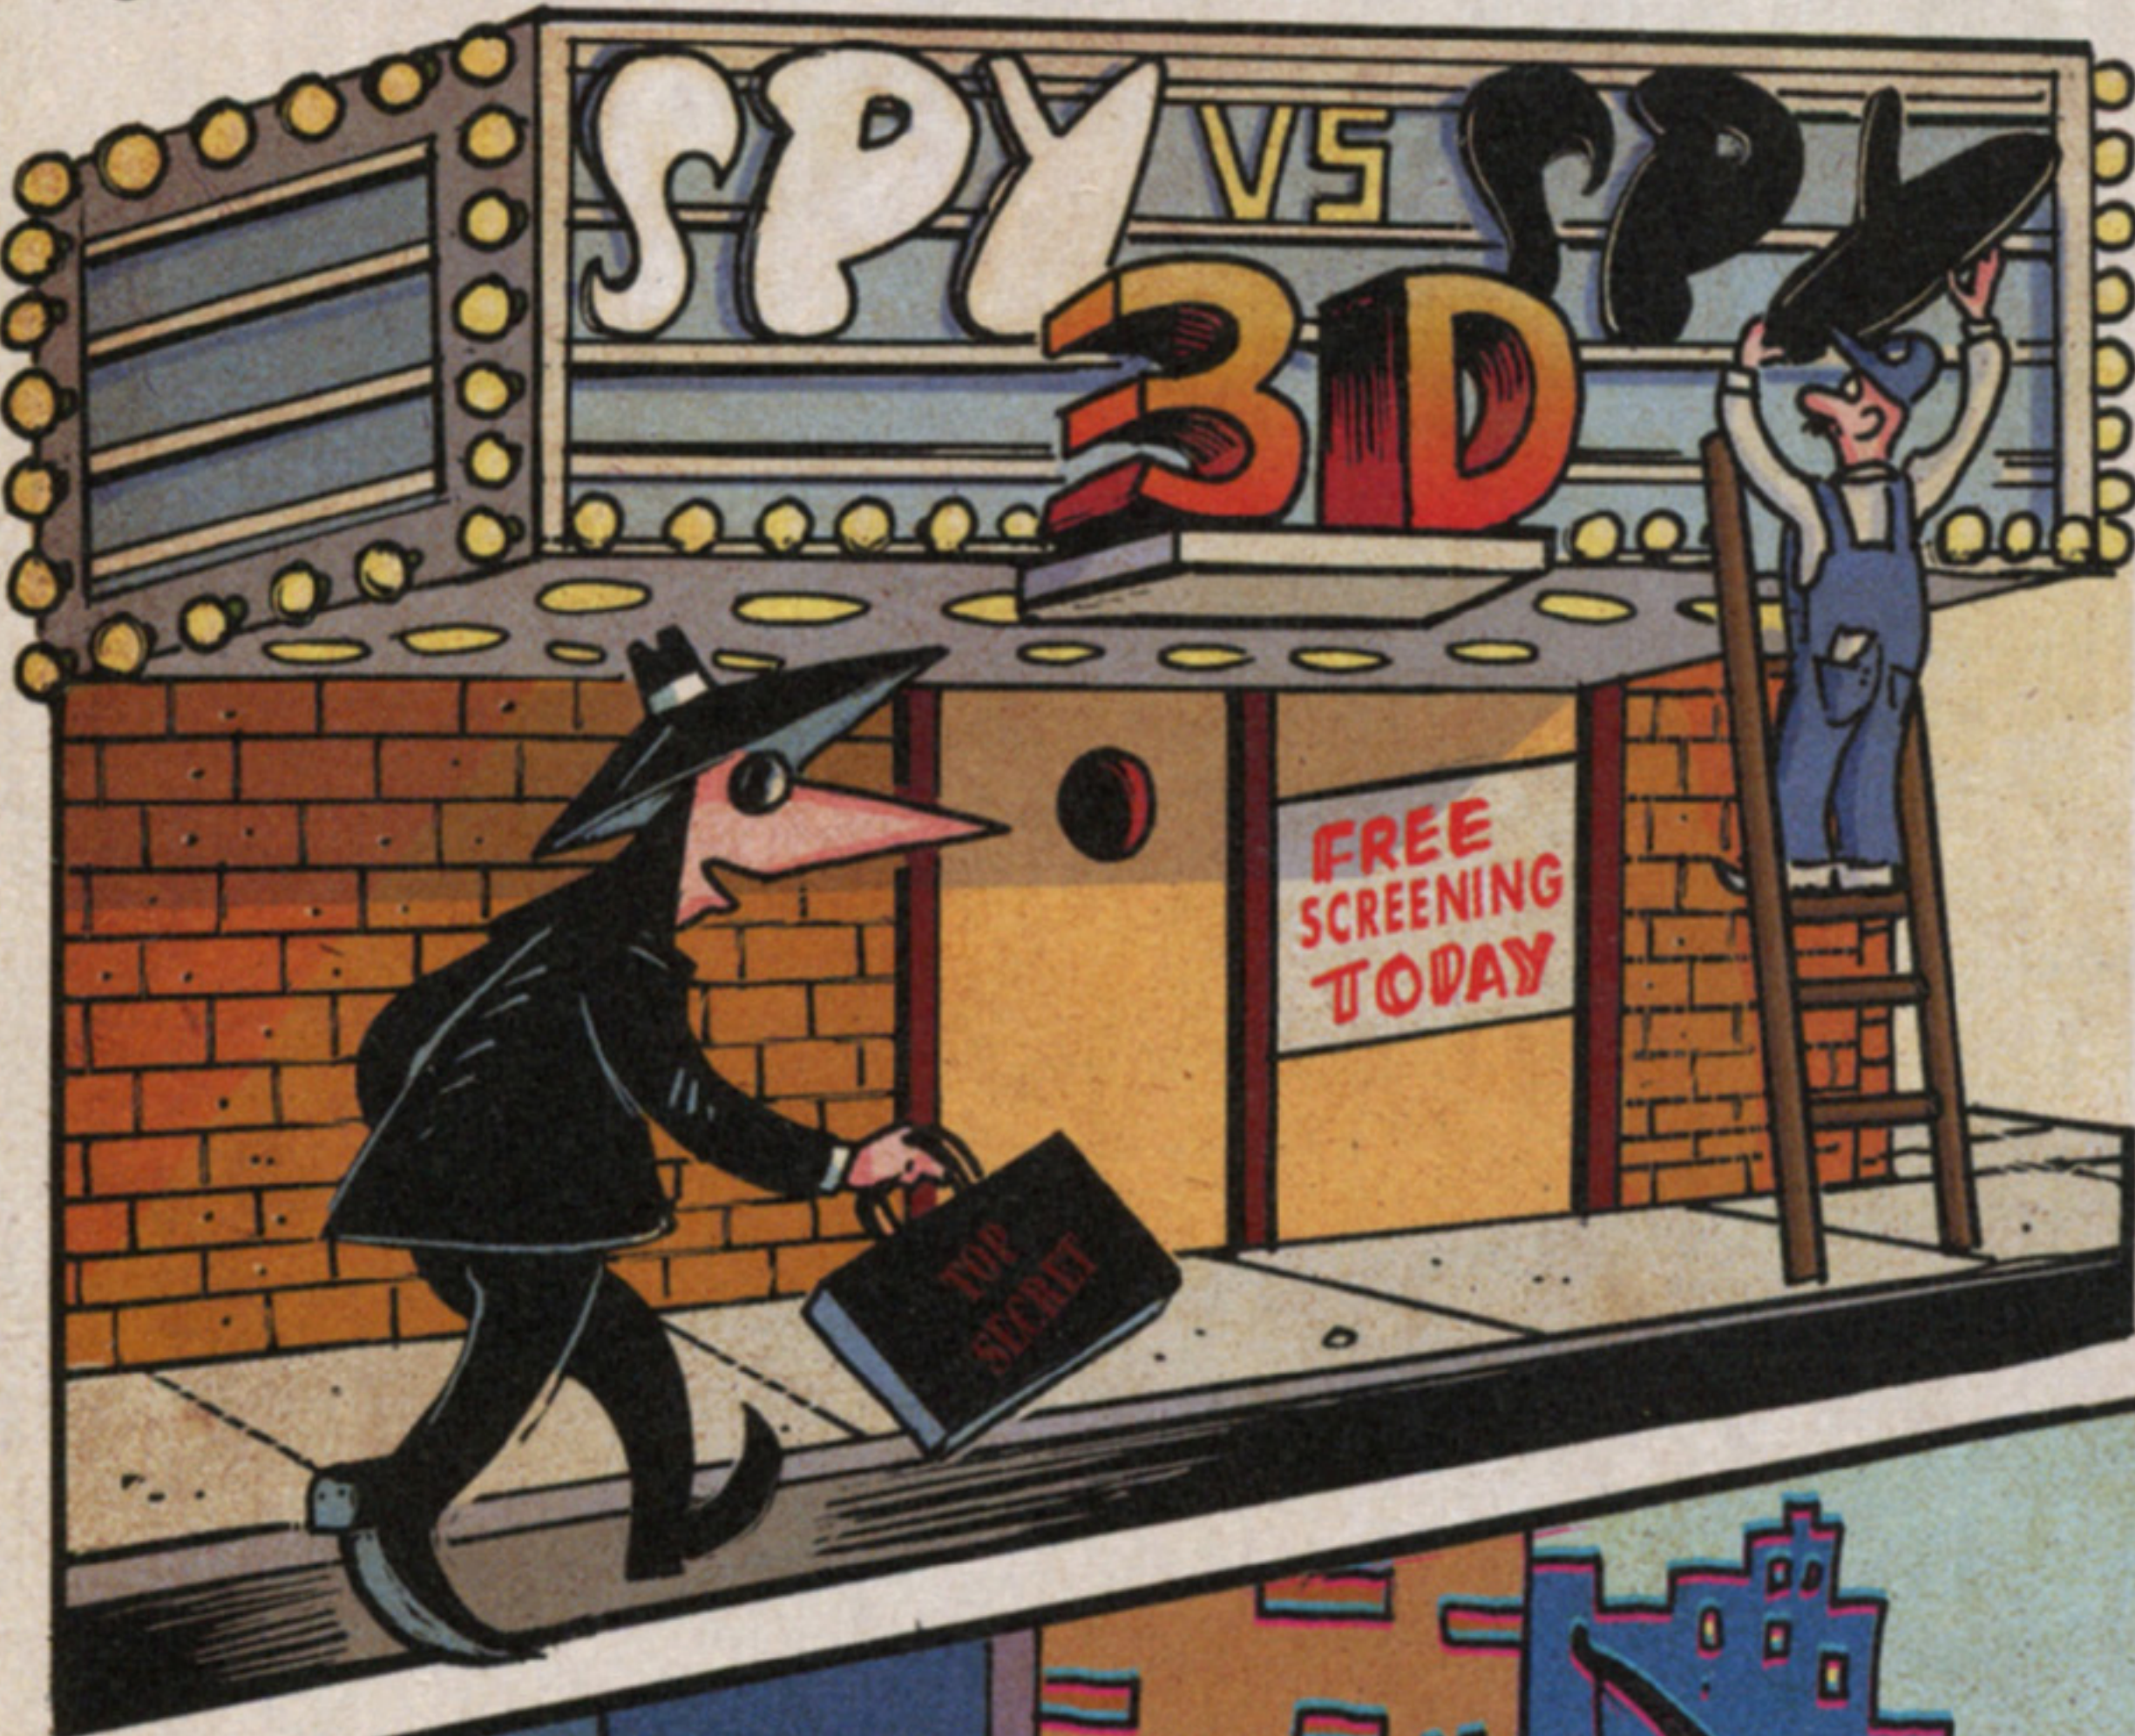

Venue agrees to pre-screen event audience. The following are acceptable attendees:

- Medicare recipients opposed to government-run healthcare
- Self-proclaimed freedom-loving anti-socialists who scream down anyone that doesn't agree with them
- Rogue mavericks

No inquiries about Governor Palin's children shall be permitted. She will not have them exploited. Unless she's the one doing it. At no time during her remarks will the Speaker be required to string together two coherent thoughts. There will be no Q&A. Not just today. Ever. We learned from the Couric thing.

Cell phones are everywhere. But, unfortunately, so are idiots. So it's only logical that idiots have cell phones. And when that happens, even something as wonderful, convenient and fun as a cell phone becomes annoying. Don't believe us? Oh, pappy, you certainly will once you check out these...

12 Reasons We Hate Cell Phones

WRITER: BARRY LIEBMANN

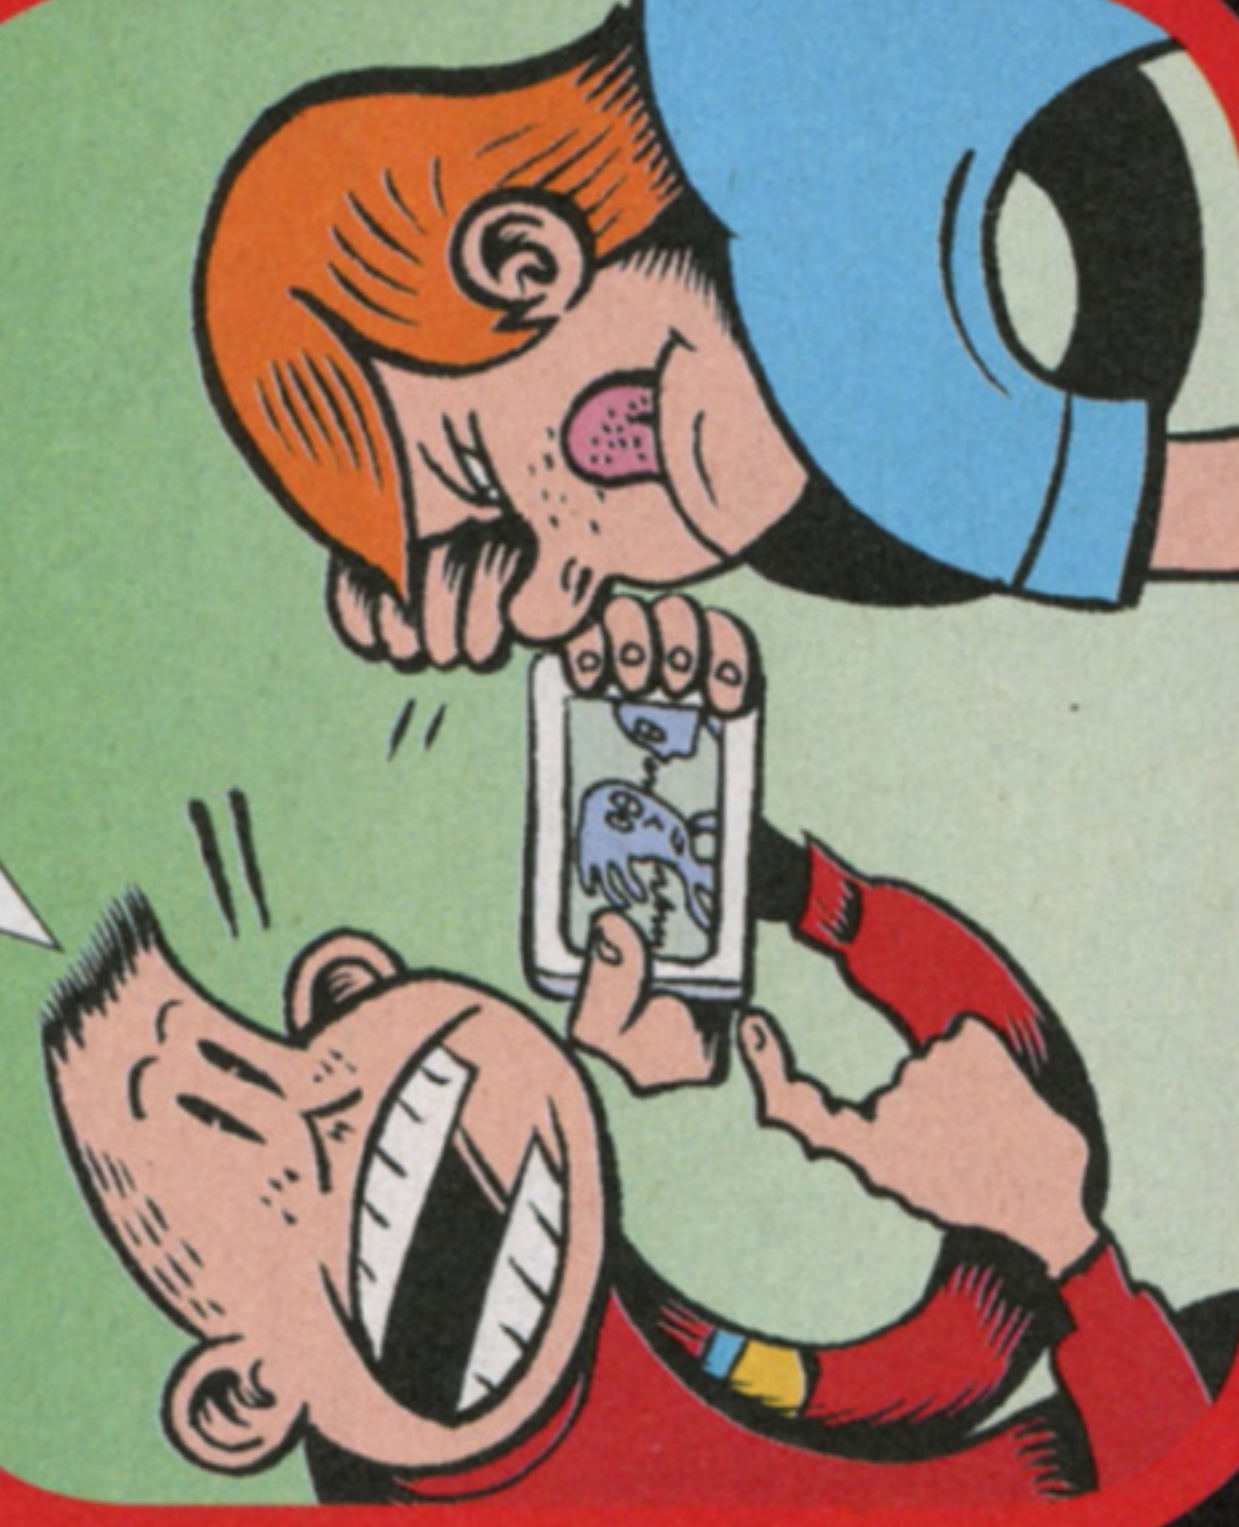

ARTIST: PETER BAGGE

So I says to the guy, if you don't have any more room to add extra speakers in my SUV, just take out the airbags!

There's mounting evidence that cell phones cause brain damage — which can be proven just by listening to the conversation of an average cell phone user.

Hey, look — Avatar!

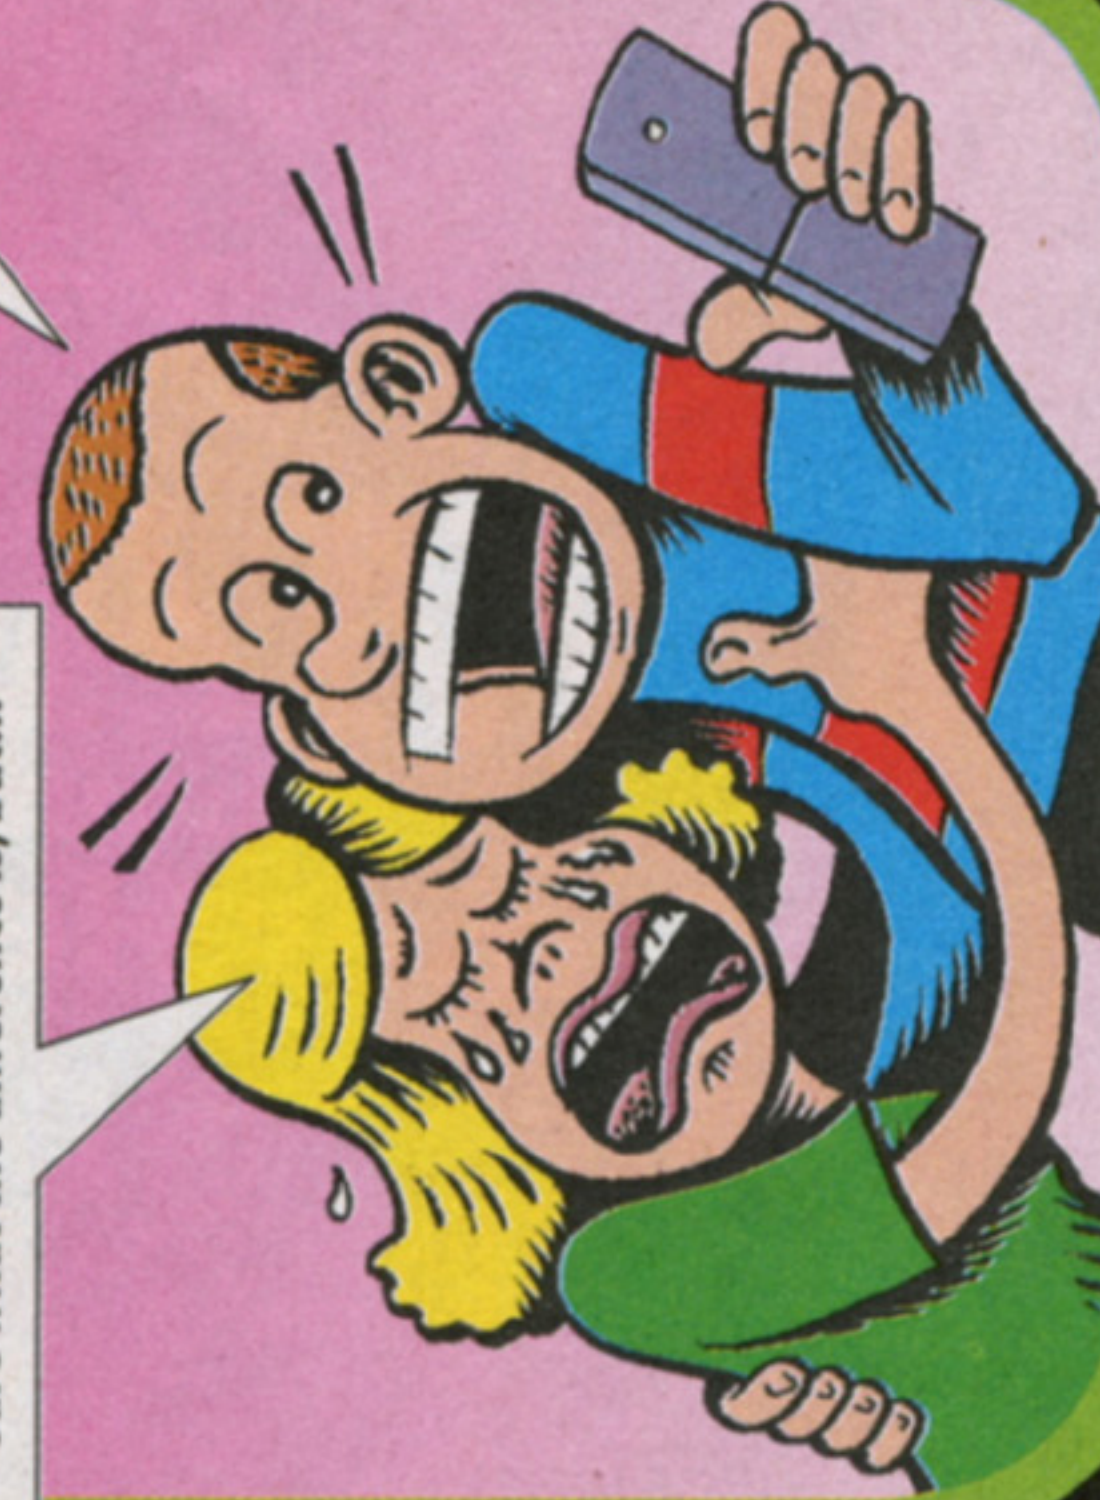

Why the obsession with "multi-platform" distribution? Has anyone ever watched an IMAX blockbuster and thought, "Man, I'd love to see this on an iPhone screen the size of a baseball card!"

Paparazzi wannabes who use camera phone technology to immediately document your every embarrassing mistake.

It's terrible — the doctor says my mom's going to need chemo... or maybe it's radiation. I'm not really sure what the difference is, but...

Let's check on my phone!

Annoying Smart Phone users who can't carry on a single conversation without fact-checking something.

Politicians who Tweet. Great, a NEW way for them to lie to us!

Thinking that a cell phone will give you more freedom — and finding out the exact opposite is true.

Crap-tards who text during the movies. Great! Now we've got everything we need — popcorn, soda, AND a blinding migraine from that light in the corner of our eye for two straight hours!

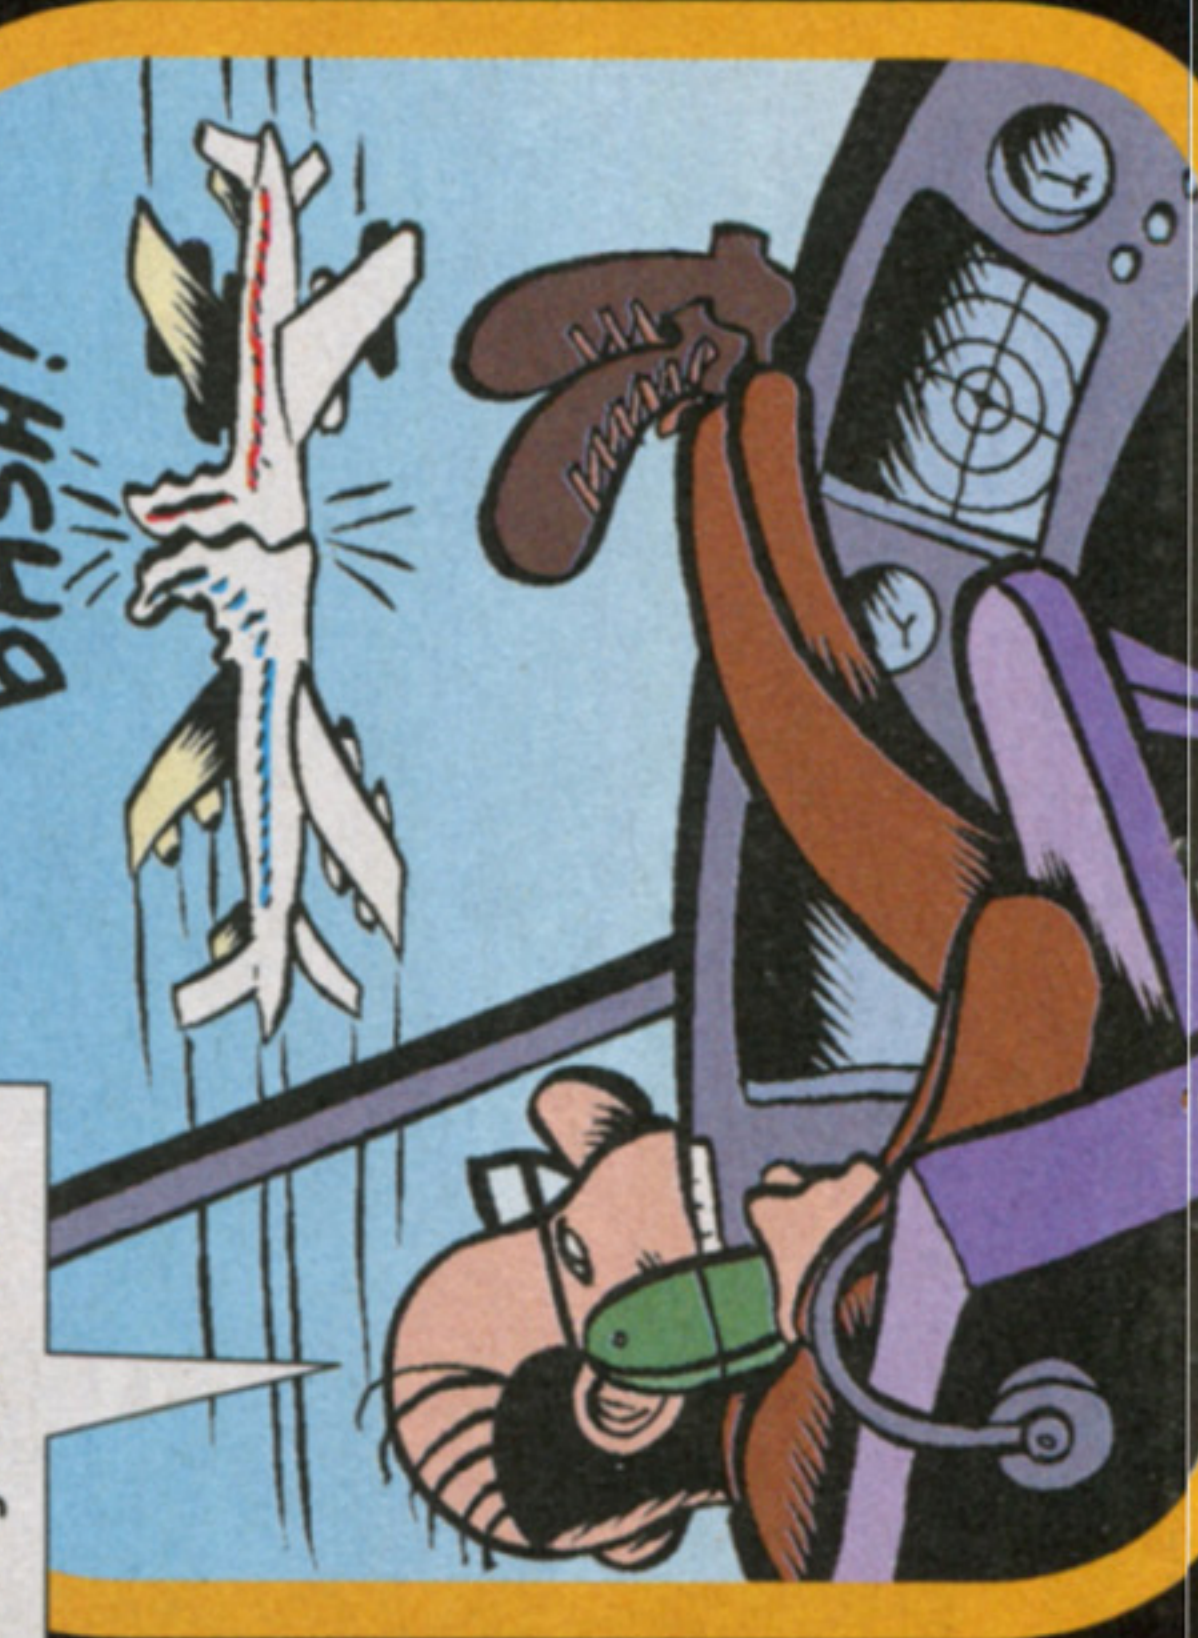

Finding out that some people make calls even when they're on the toilet.

Hello? COUGH COUGH Can I HACK WHEEZE talk to COUGH...

Having to leave a noisy, crowded restaurant to get a clear signal, only to find yourself lost in a fog of chain smokers.

Okay, so a priest, a rabbi and a clam-digger all go into a bar...

Though cell phones give airline passengers a chance to talk to loved ones during an accident, they also give idiotic air-traffic controllers a chance to talk while on the job — and CAUSE those accidents!

What the hell do you want???

Morons who answer their phone at an inconvenient time, then angrily blame you for calling them.

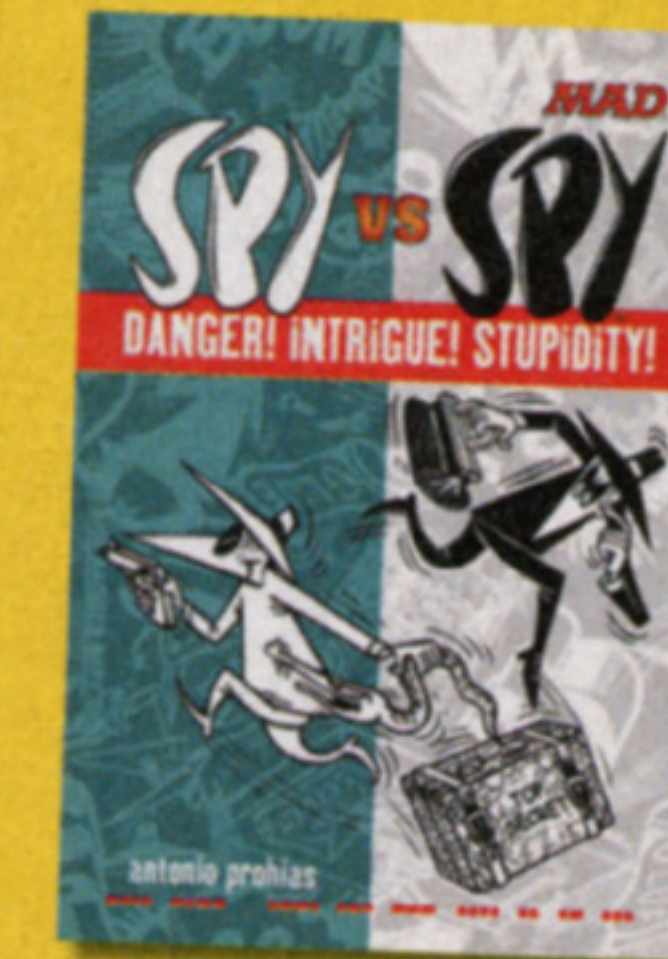

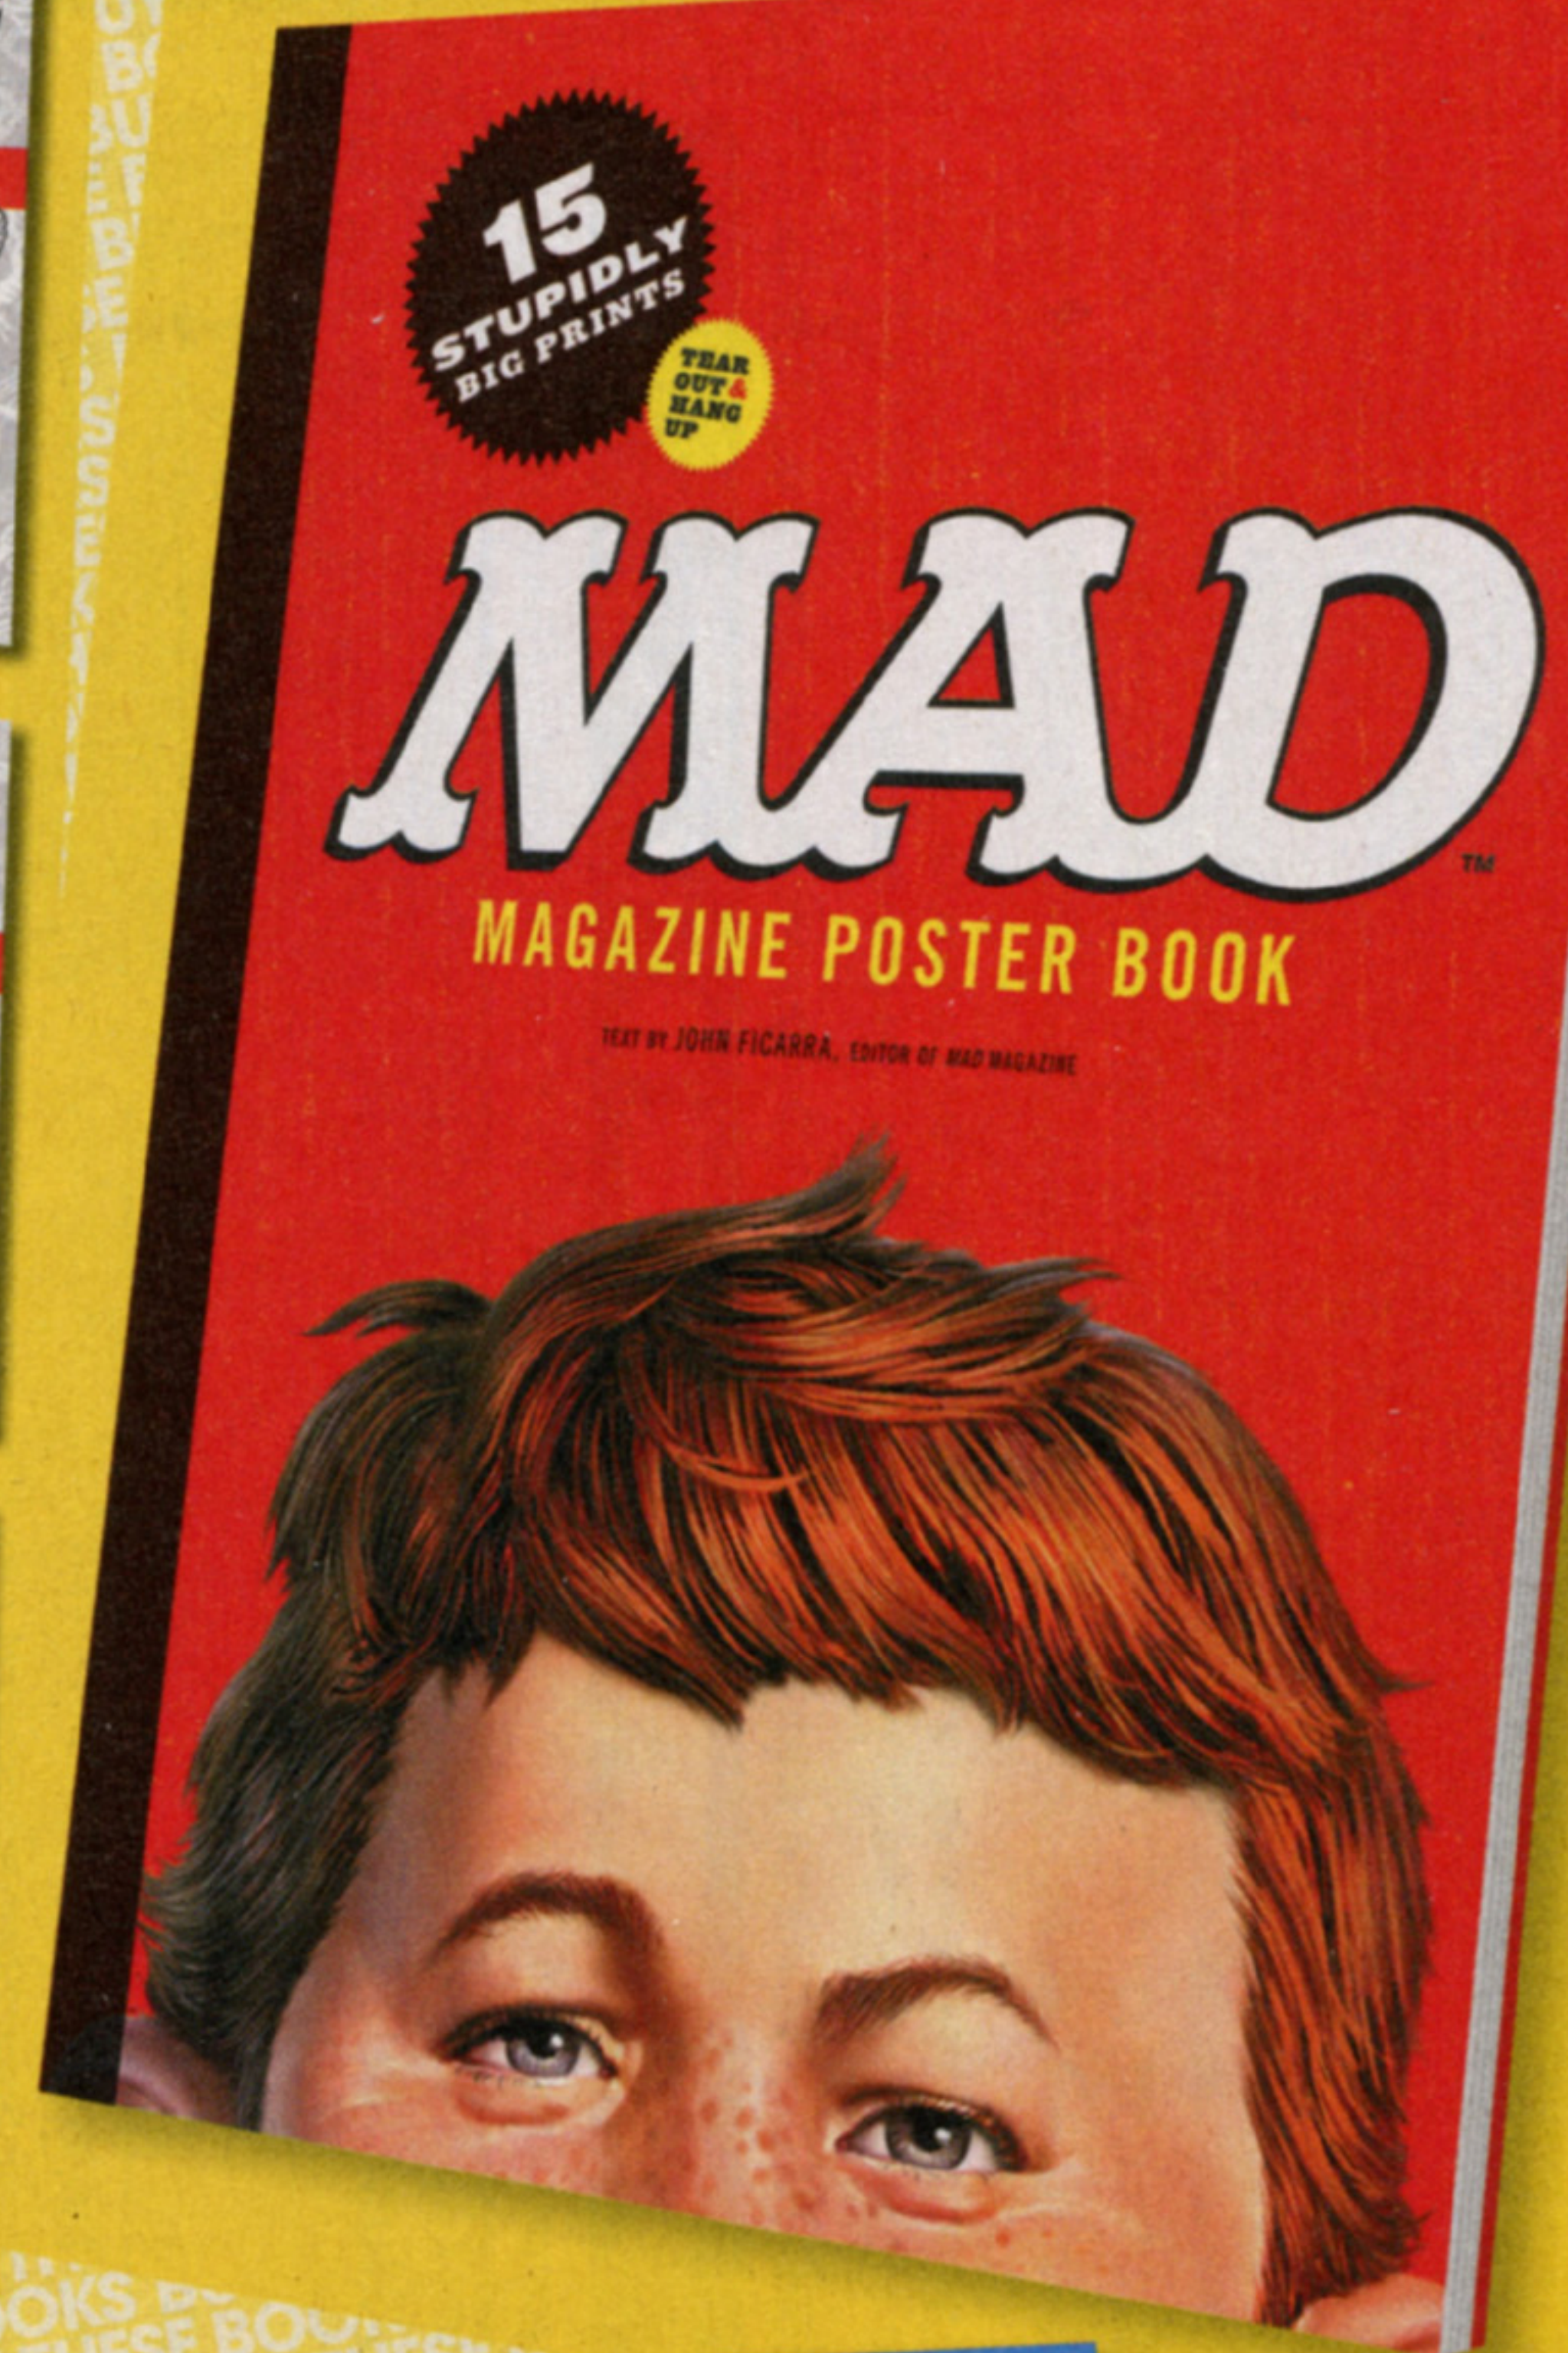

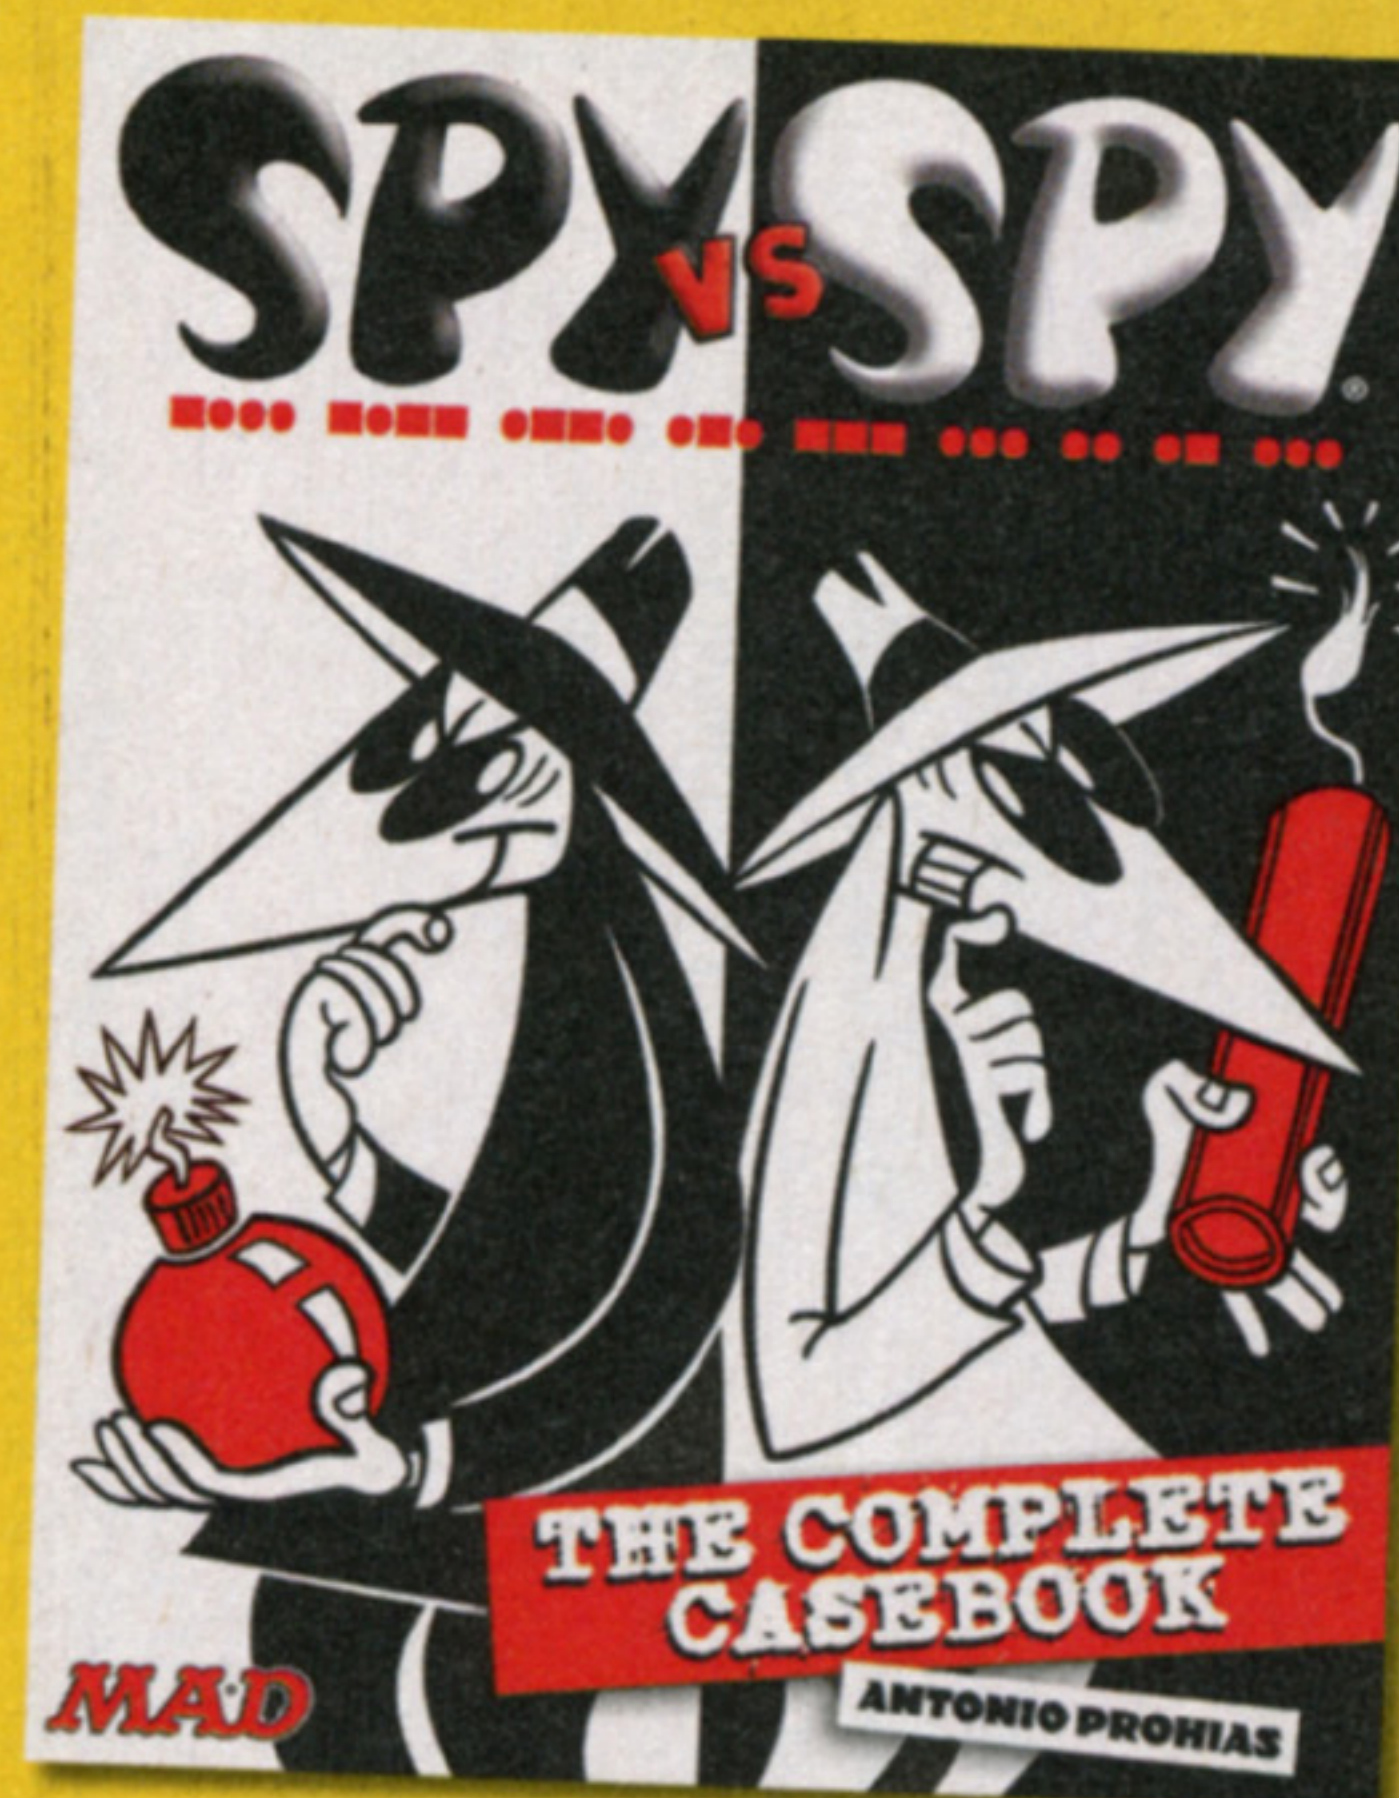

What stupid A-hole's phone is...Oops!

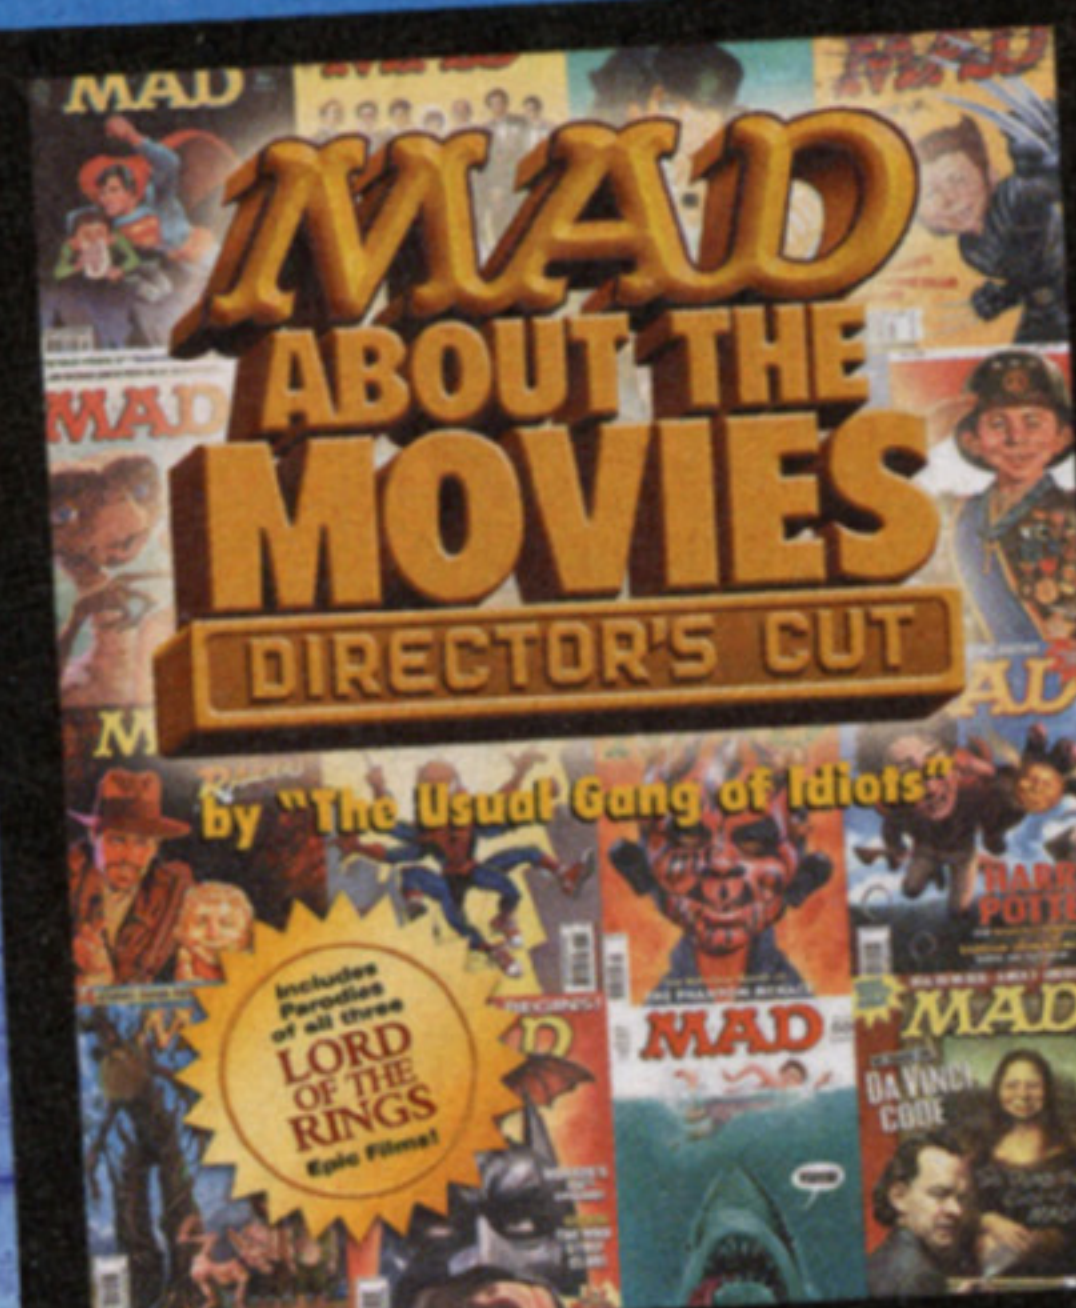

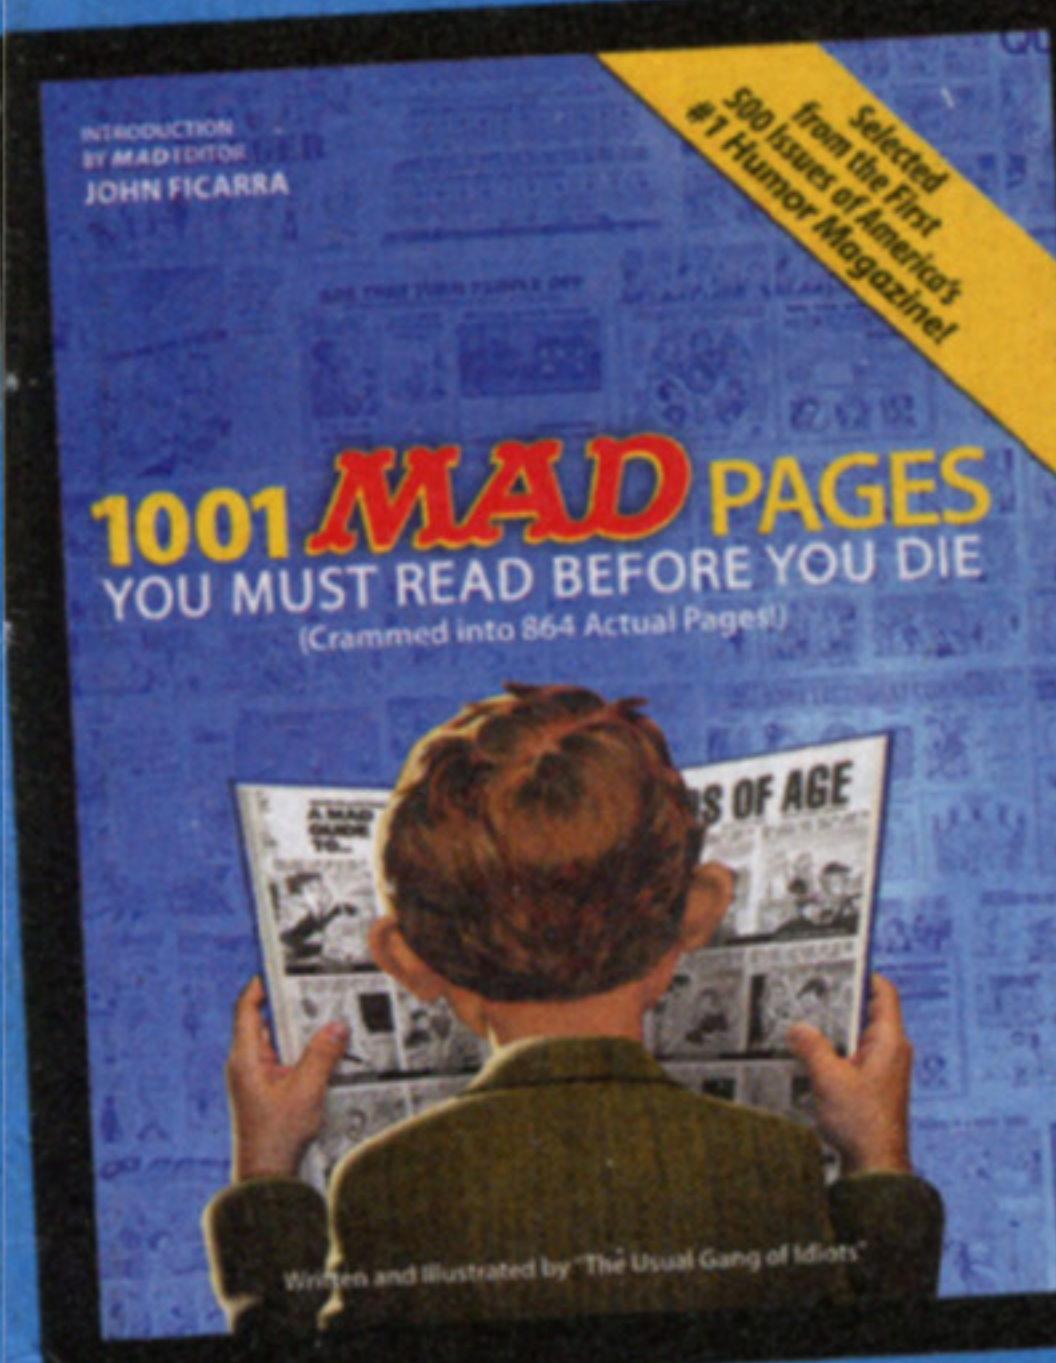

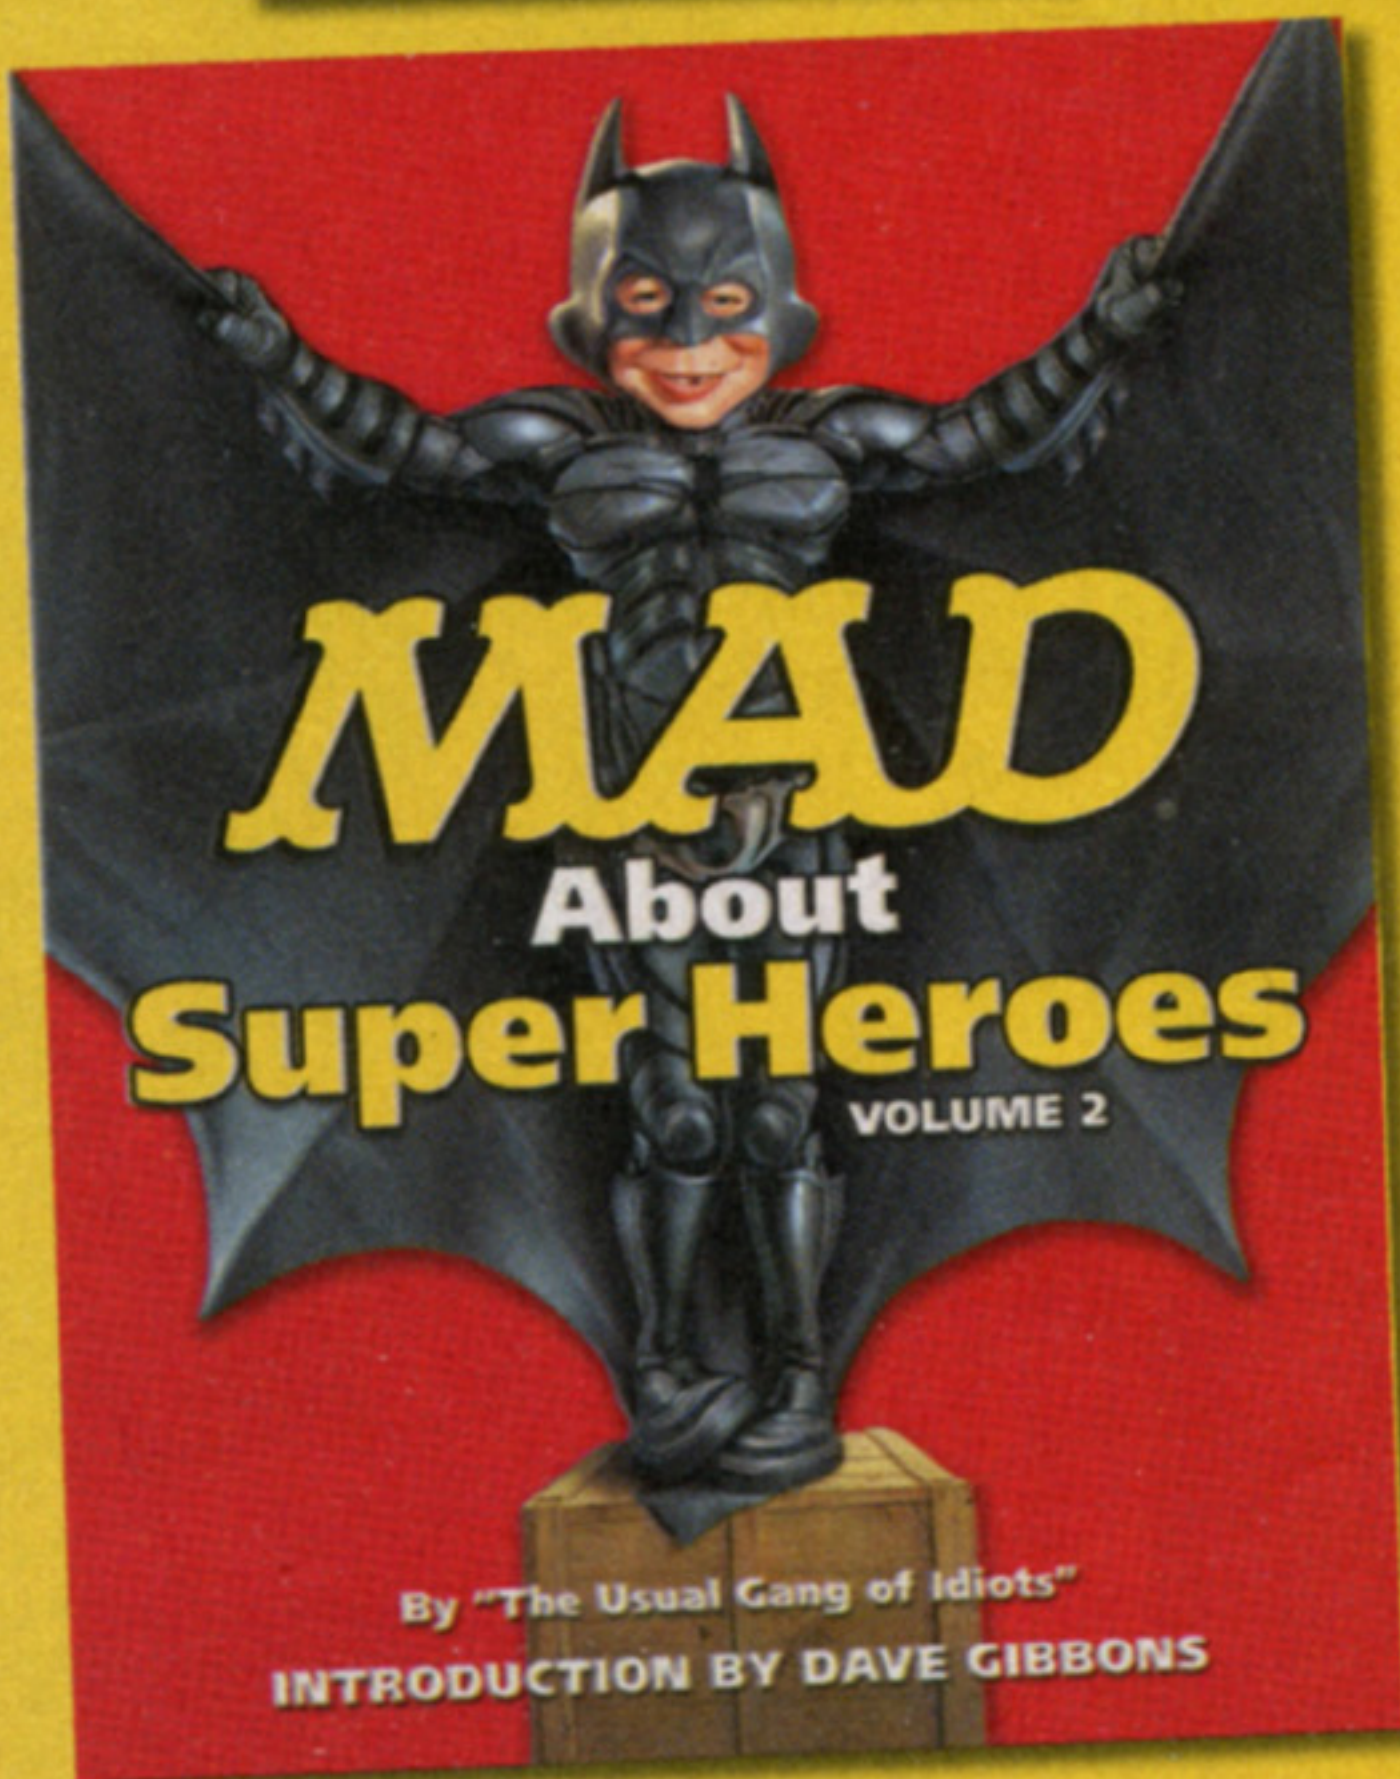

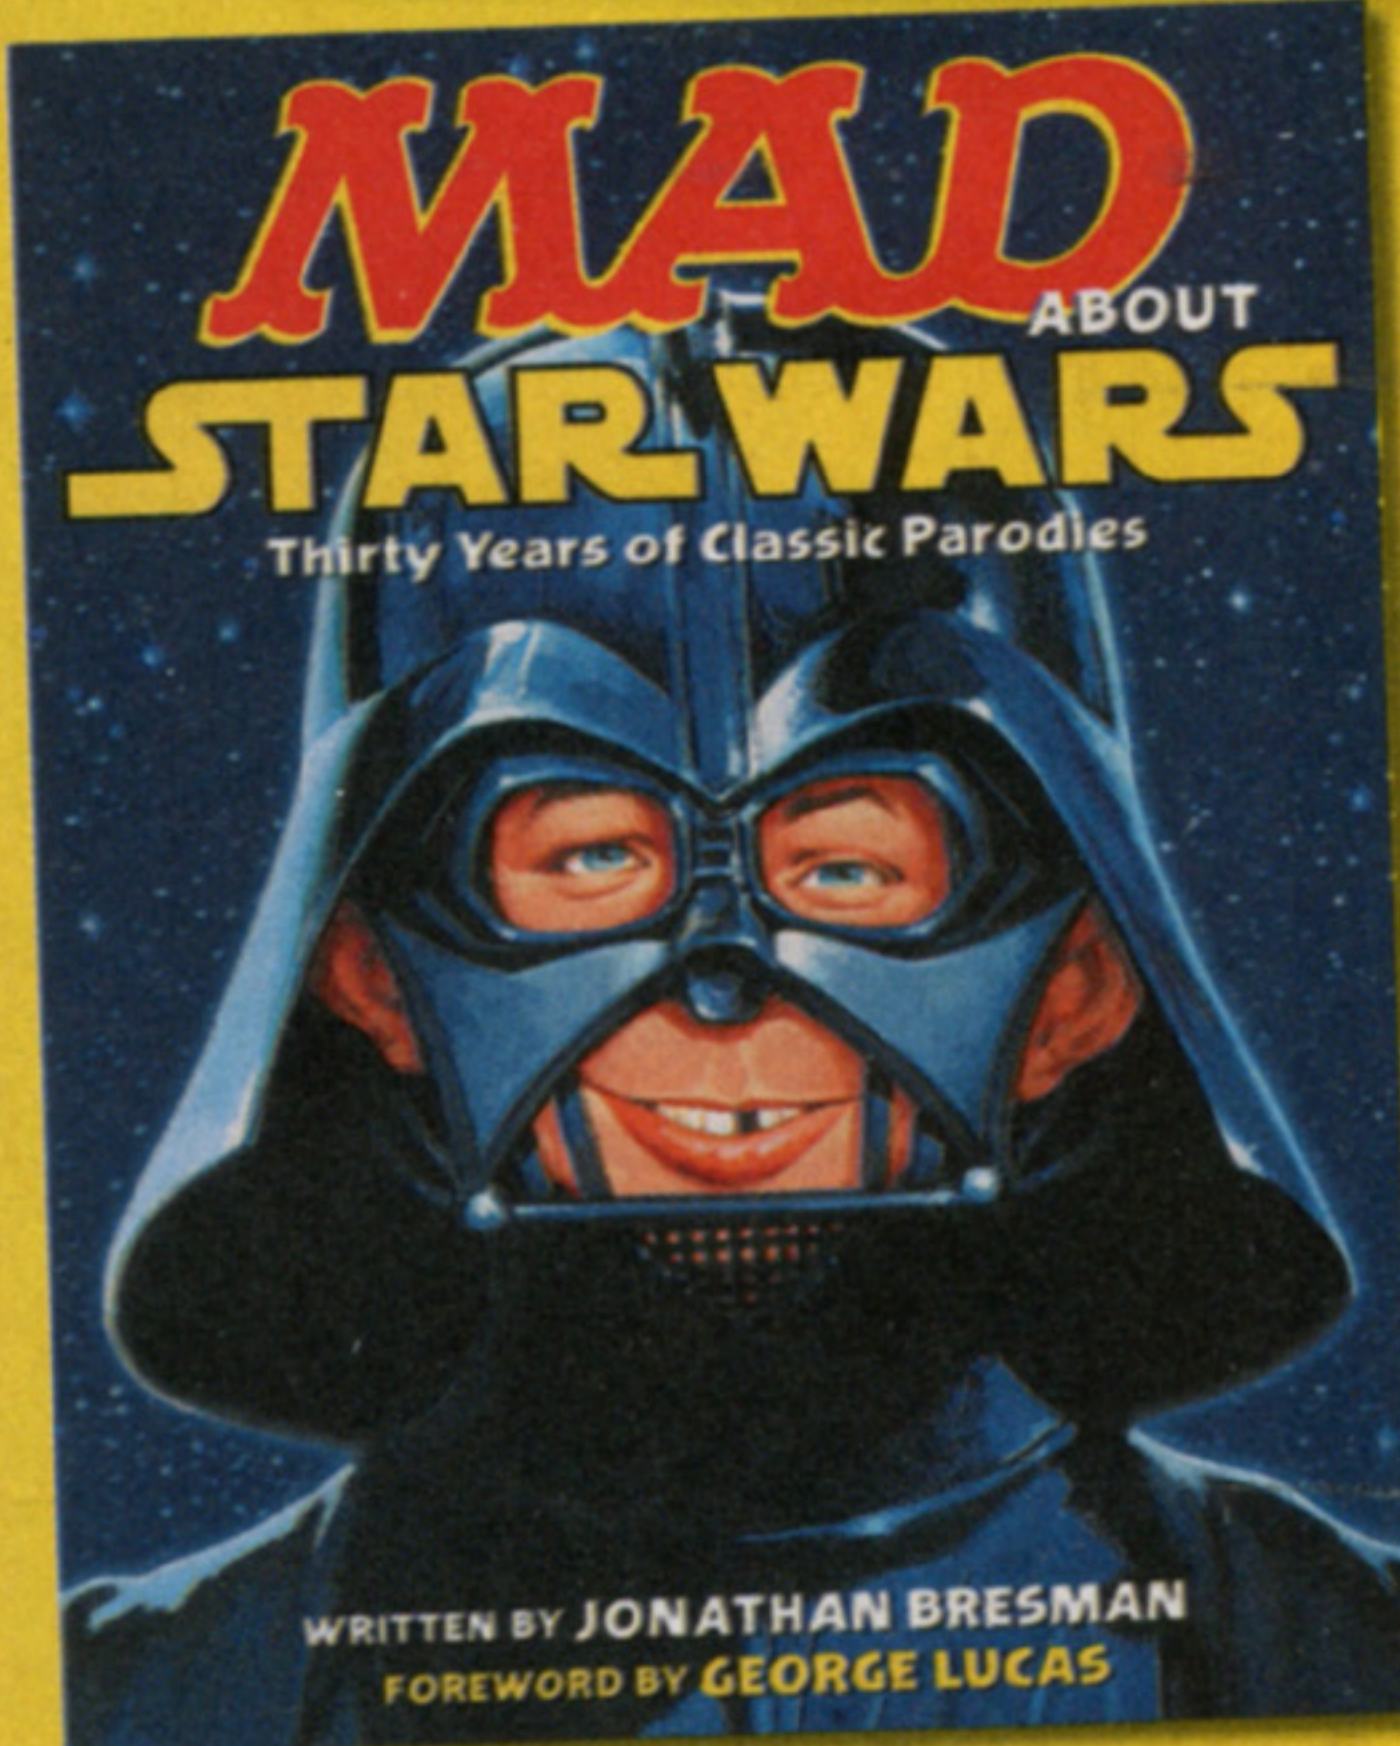

Cursing out some inconsiderate d-bag whose phone is ringing in the middle of a play/lecture/wedding/funeral... only to realize that the douche is you!

Editorial Reviews

Escalator Digest, March 2006

Editor Otis Balustrade and his crew of 100 janitors, mall security personnel and department store maintenance men have compiled a list of diagonal conveyances as endless as the procession of stairs in the very machines it celebrates! From the one at K-Mart on Route 8, through the one at J.C. Penny's at the Galleria, to that big one at the airport, this definitive volume covers every manner of escalator, even the broken ones that you have to climb yourself. Arranged chronologically by the date installed and featuring an extensively cross-referenced index cataloging escalators by handrail bacteria count, OSHA violation, or gruesome flip-flop mishap!

Retail Fixtures Monthly, Nov. 2007

A thorough, one-stop book for the escalator fancier. Extensive photography throughout, accompanied by technical specs of each escalator profiled and further complemented by essays, including "On Working Underneath When Some Jackass Dropped a 32-Ounce Soda at the Top." Recommended.

Escalator World Journal, Jan. 2008

Over 1,200 photographs providing an invaluable perspective on the escalator from beneath: a showery environment where a steady downpour of coins, lint and, yes, Cinnabon crumbs, rain from above. The oft-forgotten, grimy workhorses of subway stations are finally given their due here, but worth the price of the book alone is the tear-jerking afterword by Mitch Albom describing his last few weeks riding a rickety, dilapidated escalator in a defunct Woolworth's before it was dismantled and sold for scrap.

Make no mistake about it: The escalator is no red-headed stepchild of the elevator. Yet the author's cavalier, "buffet" approach to providing information makes it painfully obvious that he has nothing but a passing interest in his subject at best; veiled contempt at worst! That such classics as the Toledo, Ohio escalators at Macy's and the TJ Maxx escalators of Dunwoody, GA are finally recognized in color photography should be an occasion in which to delight; however, due to unremarkable copy, and poorly staged and lit pictures, the victory is a Pyrrhic one.

★★★★☆ Author Has A Definite Agenda

I've read two of Otis Balustrade's other books ("A Celebration of Mid-20th Century Bannisters, Railings, and Newels" and "Prefab Metal Stairwells of Midwest Parking Garages") and have been enchanted with his grasp of the subject matter. So I was stunned when I picked up "1001 Escalators You Must Ride" and discovered an obvious bias in favor of Schindler escalators, against ALL others. Of the 1001 escalators profiled, more than half (nearly 600!!!) are Schindlers, while Westinghouse, Kone, Mitsubishi, and ALL other manufacturers COMBINED make up the remaining 400 or so. Since Schindler continues to lose...Read More

★★★★☆ Good Book but...

I'm afraid I can in good conscience only give this book one star because although it isn't a BAD book on escalators, it should be noted that page 617 has a photo that is labeled "the down-escalator from the second floor to the first floor at Sears in Brookfield, Wisconsin." This is actually the down-escalator from the FIRST floor to the BASEMENT floor of Sears, where the large appliances and Craftsman tools are. I suppose it could be considered the first floor if you walked in from the waiting room of the Sears Auto Shop that has its entrance around the back of the store which is at a lower elevation than the main entrance...Read More

Still, we realized that an important chapter in this Archie "What if...?" saga had yet to be written... so we wrote it!

GEE, HERE I AM ON MEMORY LANE AGAIN! WHEN I WALKED UP THAT PATH ON THE LEFT, I MARRIED VERONICA! WHEN I TOOK THE PATH ON THE RIGHT, I MARRIED BETTY!

Well, Buttmann, you did it again! You cleaned up Gotham City!

I don't want any thanks, Commissioner Boredom!

And you're not getting any! With you around, the citizens don't think they need cops and they keep cutting the department budget! You know how many policemen you've thrown out of work? You're a one-man recession!

Near Rhymes

What rhymes with "kiss"? "Miss" or "this" you might say. But to a rock lyricist so does "wrist," "pith," even "lick," and on occasion, "desk." That's why rock singers mumble so much! They're trying to hide lines like, "Baby you could never lose me/ Even if you sold your jacuzzi," or "If I could only win your love/I'd sell my soul to Beelzebub!"
