ISSUES WITH ISSUES

Look guys, I don't know what it's like or what it takes to run a magazine and I'm not going to pretend I do, although I'm guessing it's probably hard. But in all seriousness, most magazines come out with at least one magazine a month. So what's your deal? You used to not only come up with MAD once a month but also a MAD Kids and MAD Classics. So why are you guys suddenly cutting down to like, four a year? You guys are my favorite magazine and I'd like to hear more from you guys. Keep it coming guys!

Courtney De Joy • Mason, OH

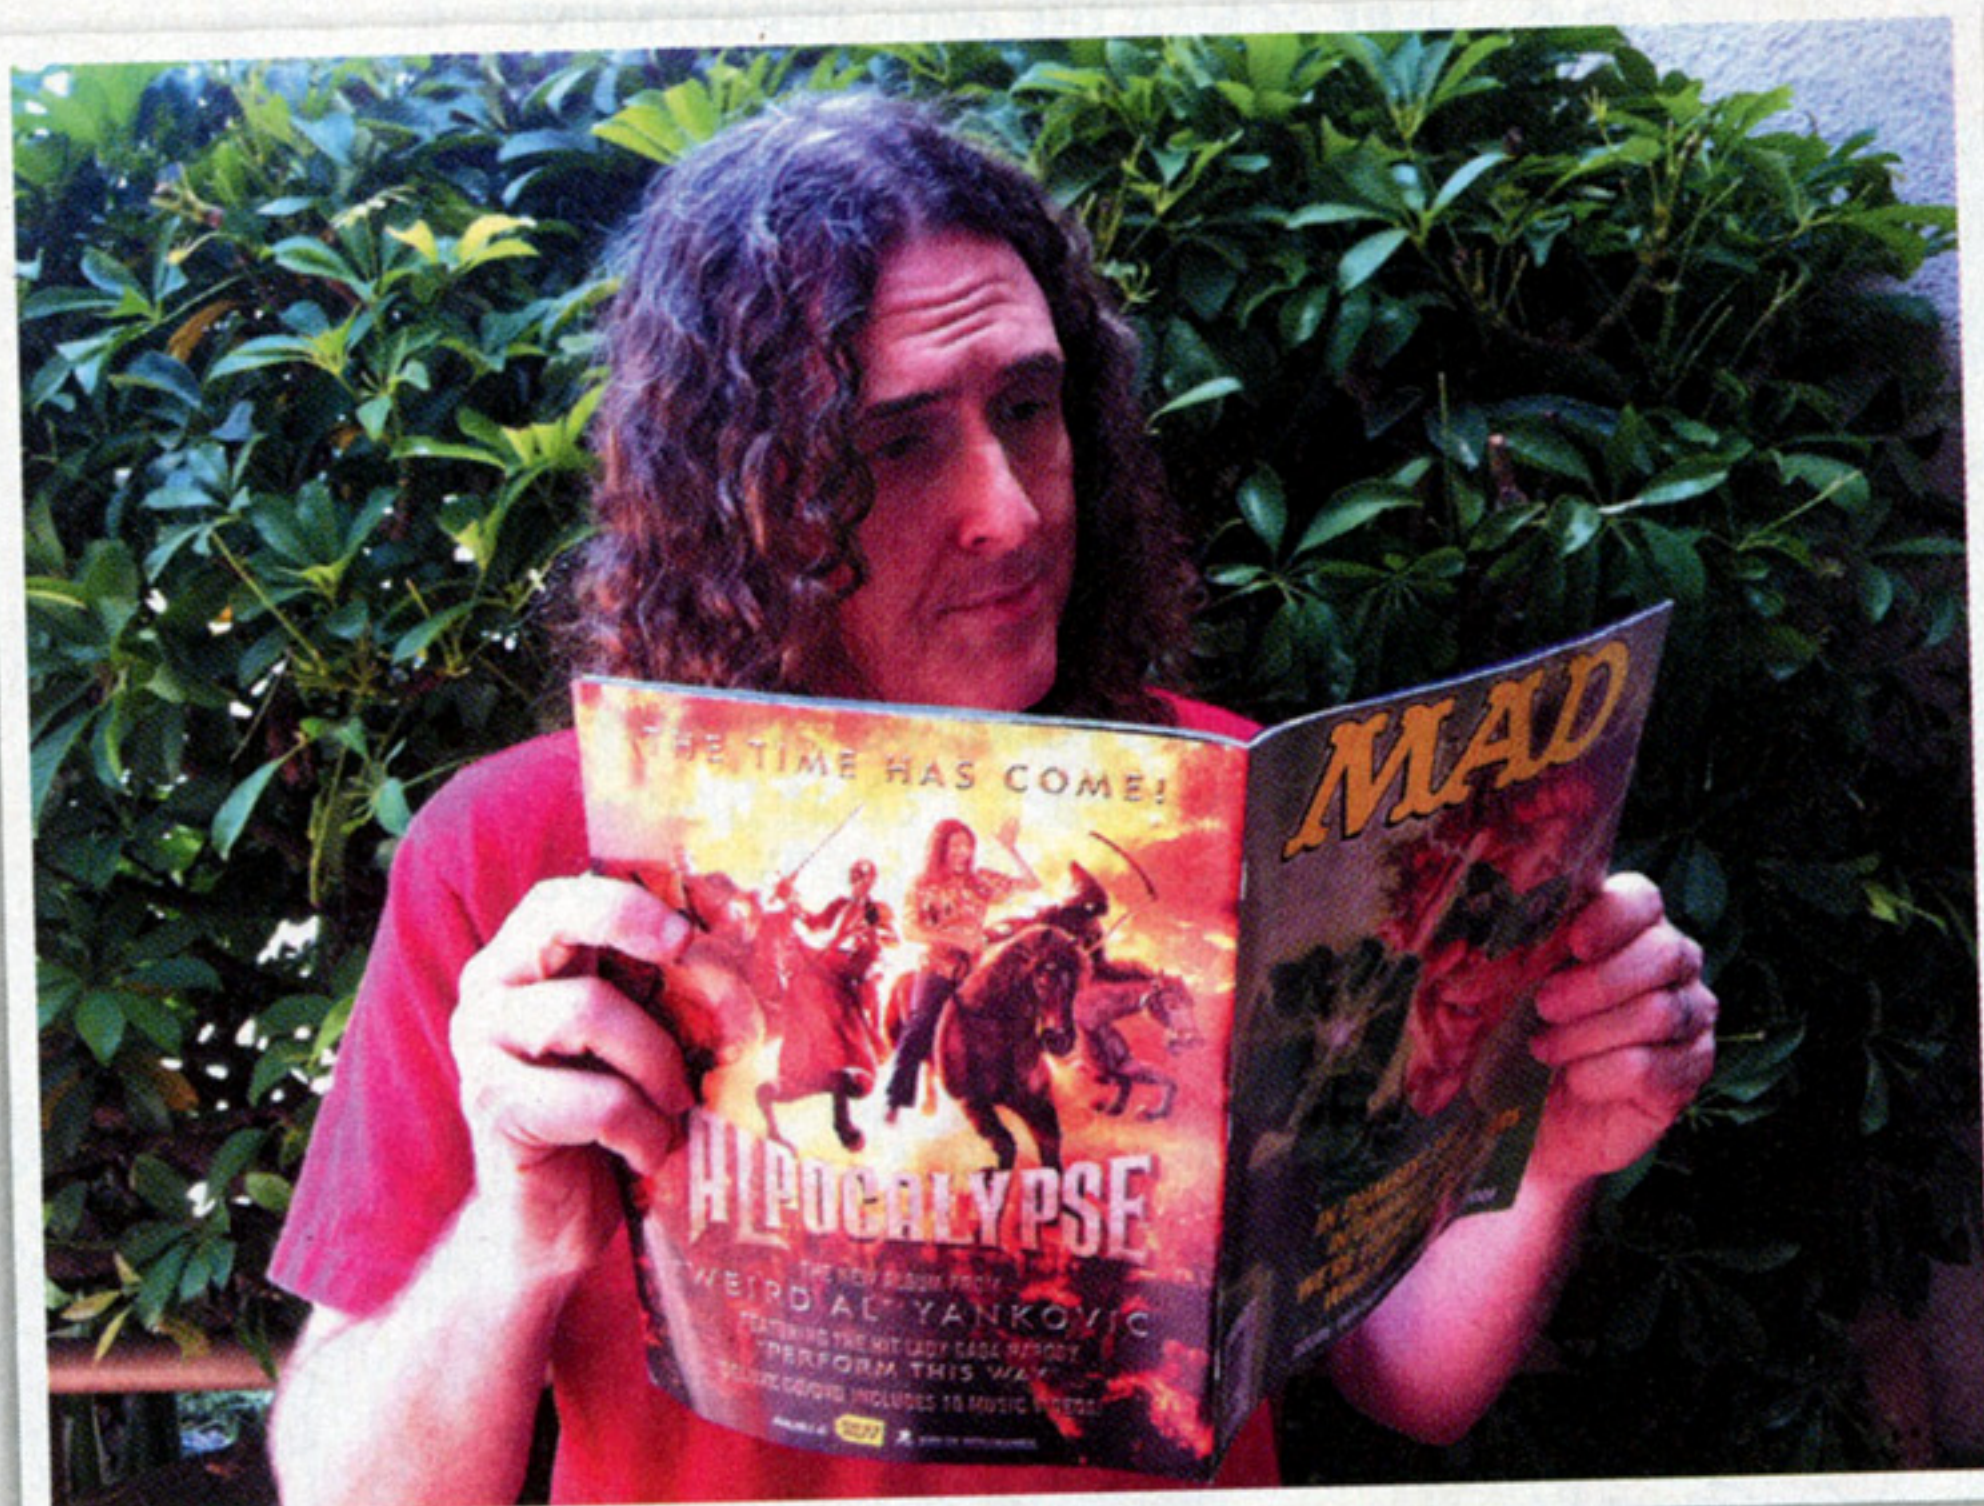

P.S. Please don't call me "Ode to De Joy." No offense, but it kind of got old when I turned nine or ten.

Ode to Courtney — MAD is bi-monthly, which means it doesn't come out FOUR times a year, it actually comes out SIX. That's great news for you! That's FIFTY PERCENT MORE issues than you were expecting! Enjoy the massive increase in publication! And here's another thing you're wrong about — it's NOT hard to run a magazine! As we just mentioned, we only have to work six freakin' months a year! —Ed.

CELEBRITY SNAPS

On the back cover of our last issue there was an ad for the new "Weird Al" album Alpocalypse. He paid us handsomely for the ad space. But now this month's Celebrity Snap is of "Weird Al" holding that same issue with his ad on it. Which means that we're promoting his album again — this time for free! Damn you, Al! You're not just weird, you're diabolical!

THE 40-YEAR-OLD VERSION

After being a MAD magazine reader for over forty years, this is the first time I have ever written, and I would just like to say, you've done it again. Exactly what it is you've done I have no idea, but you've done it again!

Duane Richardson • Columbus, OH

Duane in the Membrane — Well, we know exactly what YOU'VE done — you wrote a stupid letter. We hope it's never done again! —Ed.

PLATE FOR A FOOL

Annie Gaines — former MAD employee and wife of MAD founder William M. Gaines — sent in this pic of her new "Potrzebie" license plate! Can you believe this isn't a vanity plate — but just a crazy coincidence! No? Well, you shouldn't...we're just a little hurt that the DMV wouldn't let her get one that said "LTRS N TM80S"!

THE MAD CRYSTAL BALL

As I rifled through my stack of emergency toilet paper (old MADS I keep under the sink) I came across #378 from February 1999. I couldn't help but notice that you'd drawn Samuel L. Jackson as "Nick Fury, Agent of the Shield." This must be 10 years prior to him appearing at the end of the first Iron Man film. Does MAD not only rot the brain, but predict the future too???

Jimmy Blake • Orlando, FL

Easy-Blake Oven — Yes, we CAN see the future. In fact, we're getting a vision right now...at some point in the near future, you'll have to awkwardly explain to a proctologist why you need to be treated for paper cuts and staple-related wounds thanks to your "emergency toilet paper." Watch out for that Fold-In! —Ed.

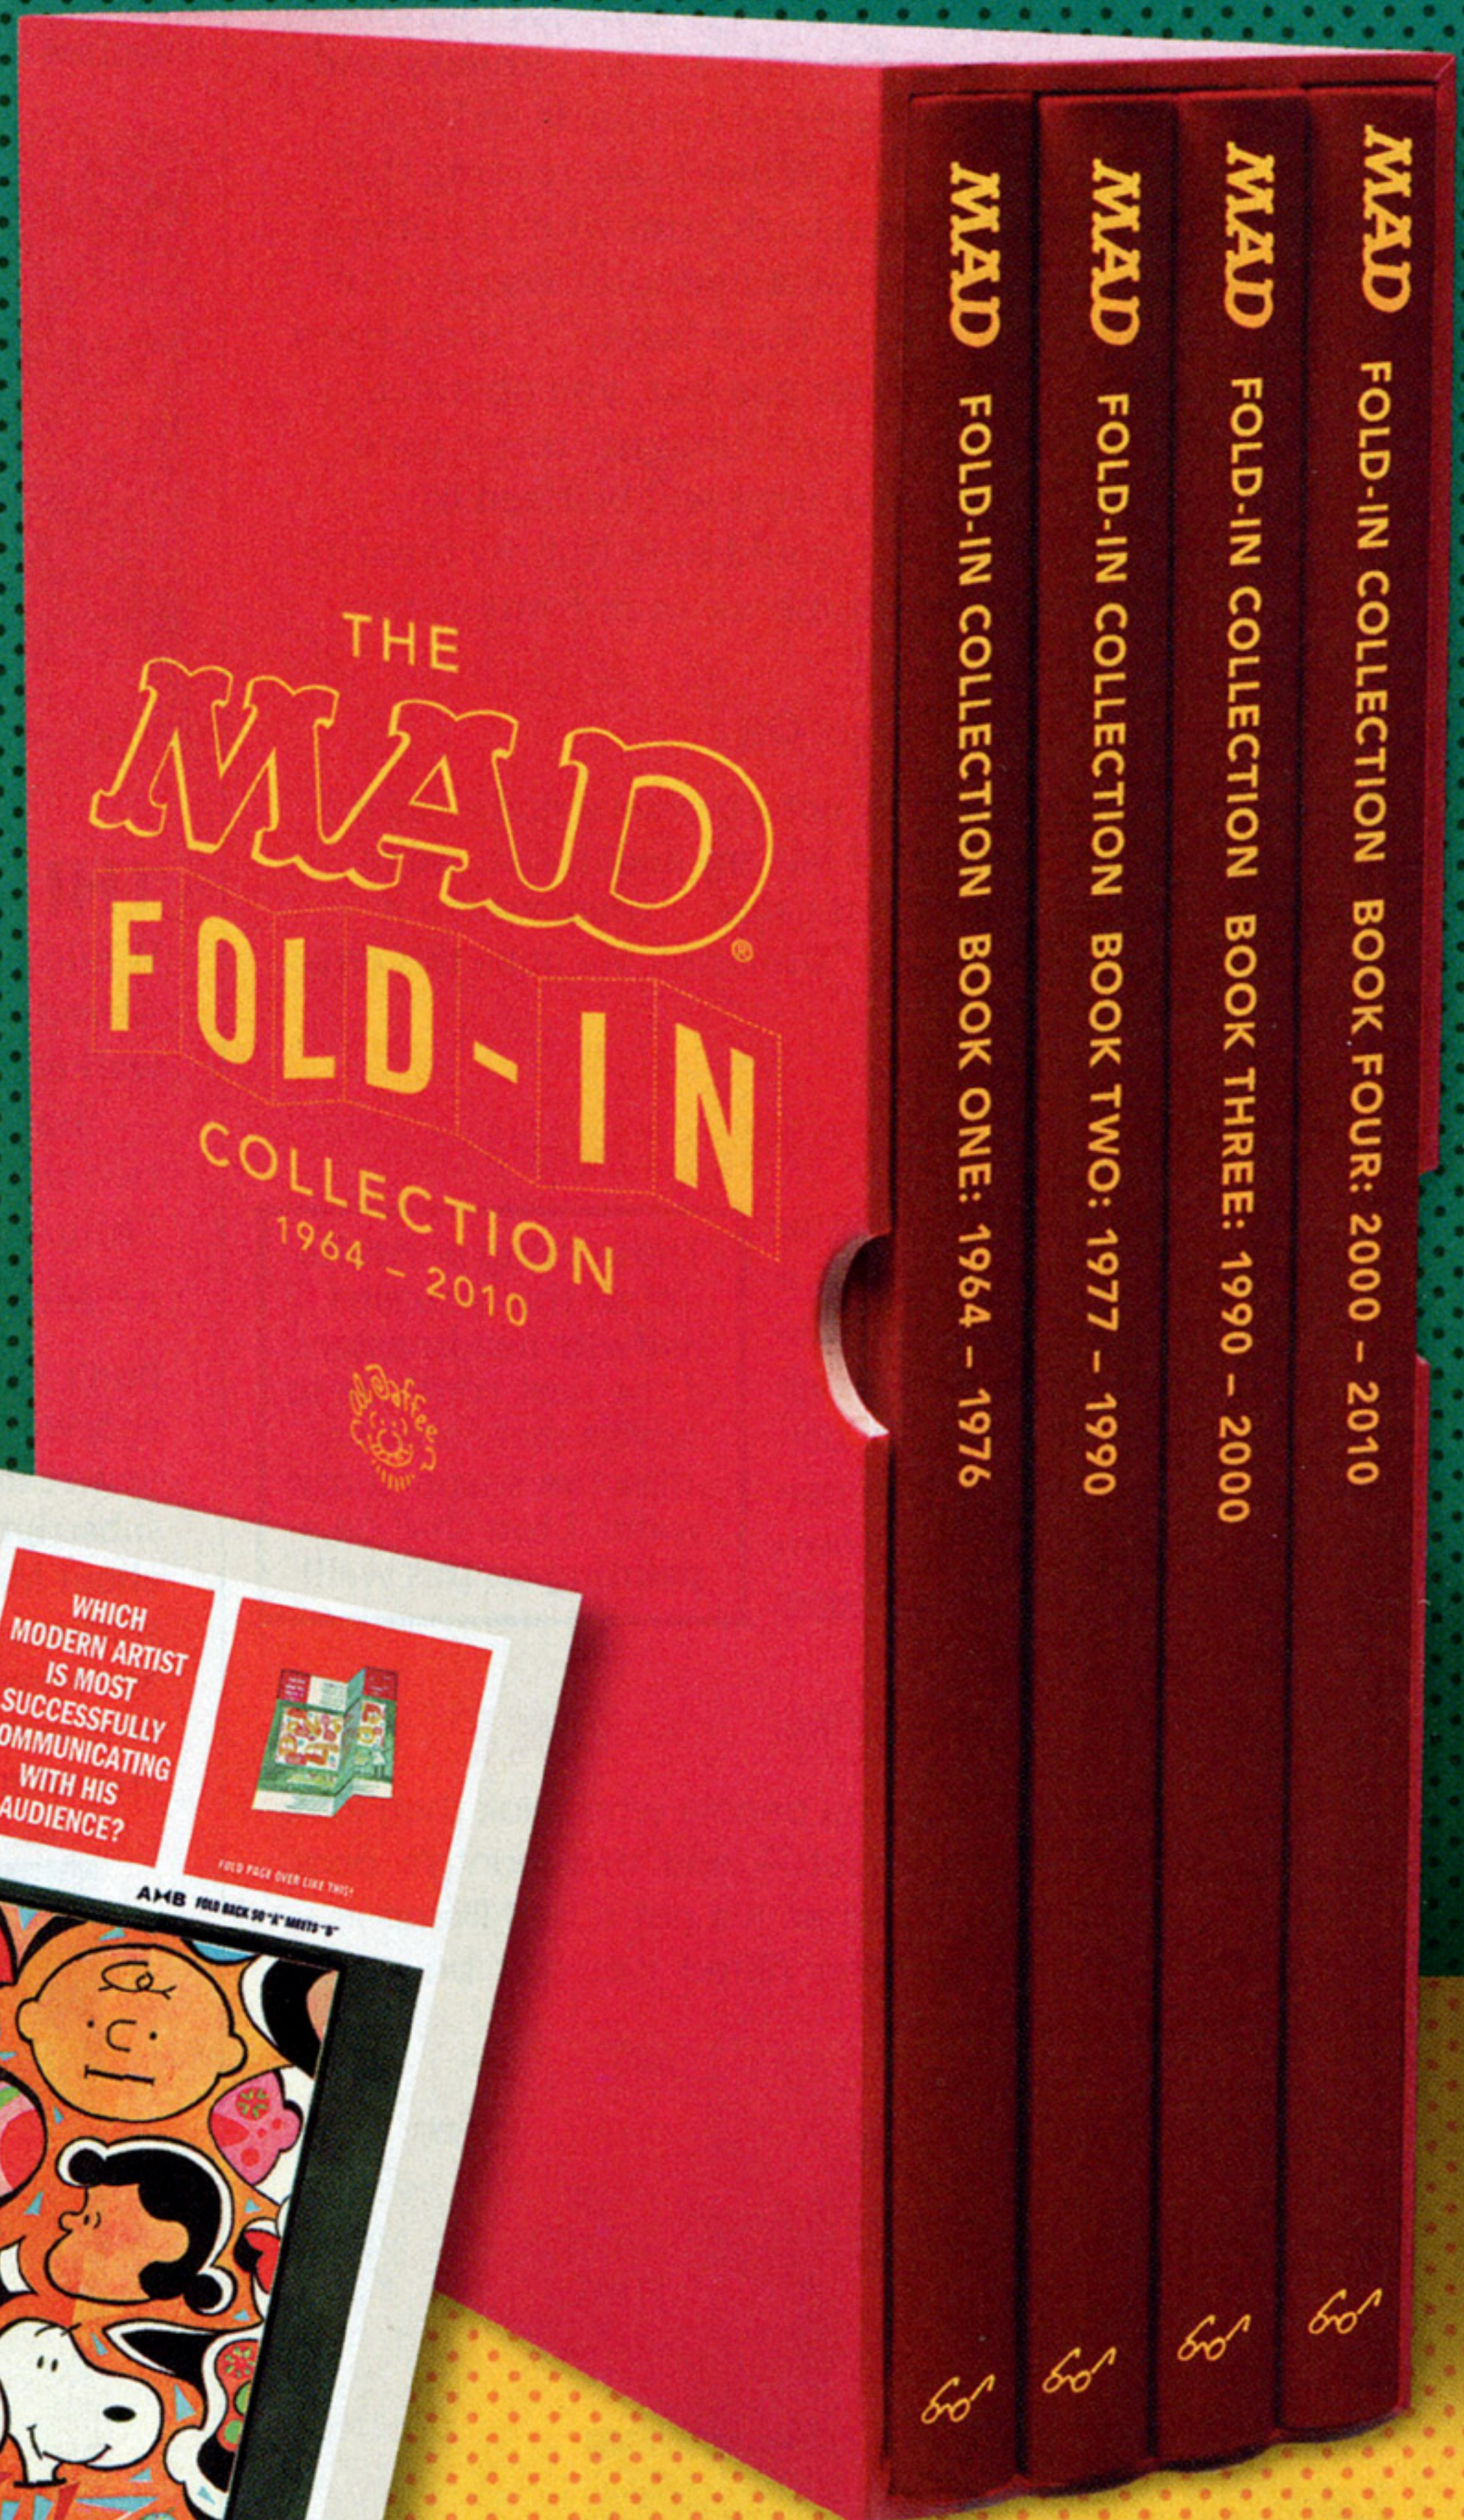

HERE WE GO WITH ANOTHER RIDICULOUS MAD AD THE MAD FOLD-IN COLLECTION!

A FOUR-VOLUME SET!

Every Fold-In has been digitally restored and reproduced in its original size.

The "folded-in version" appears on the next page. (No sense ruining this collector's edition with creases — although, if that made you buy two copies of this set, that would be fine with us!)

With essays by legendary cartoonist Jules Feiffer, award-winning Pixar director Pete Docter, noted New York Times columnist Neil Genzlinger and the only man in America who lists his occupation as "Fold-In Artist" on his tax returns — Mr. Al Jaffee!!!

STOP...GRAMMAR TIME!

First-off I would like to say that I love your magazine, I have a subscription for two years, I'm only 12 but I understand most of your humor, my favorite issue so far is #510, I might not use it to wipe my ass. When I was reading the Dos Equis parody I was stricken with grief when I noticed a typo. "He bought a backhoe and a hydraulic crane to an Amish barn-rasing to get the job done faster." The erratum is underlined, I'm not a grammar god but, you obviously meant "brought" because the word "bought" is not used in the right context. I hope this error will be fixed in future printings of this issue, I would hate it if my favorite magazine writers looked like dumb-asses in front of their whole fan-base.

Flynn Osmanski • Lake Oswego, OR

Flynnkin Park — No, you're clearly not a grammar god — as if that epic, opening run-on sentence left any doubt. Also, we're pretty sure you misspelled your last name — when we ran it through spell check, it came up as "Osmosis." We hope this error will be fixed in future letters. —Ed.

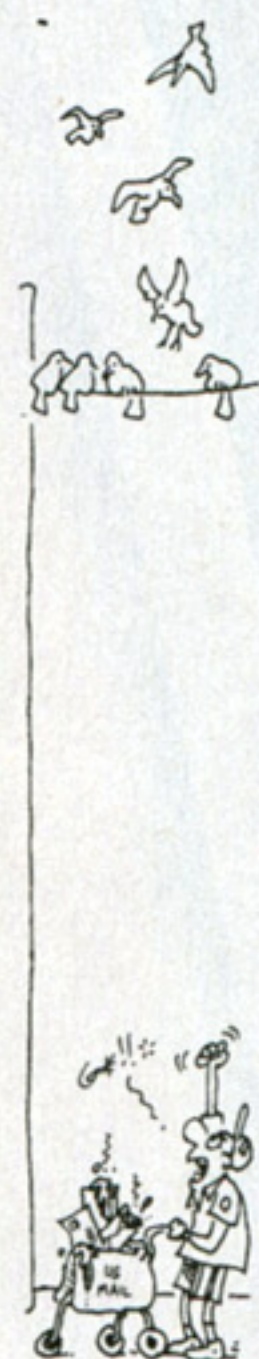

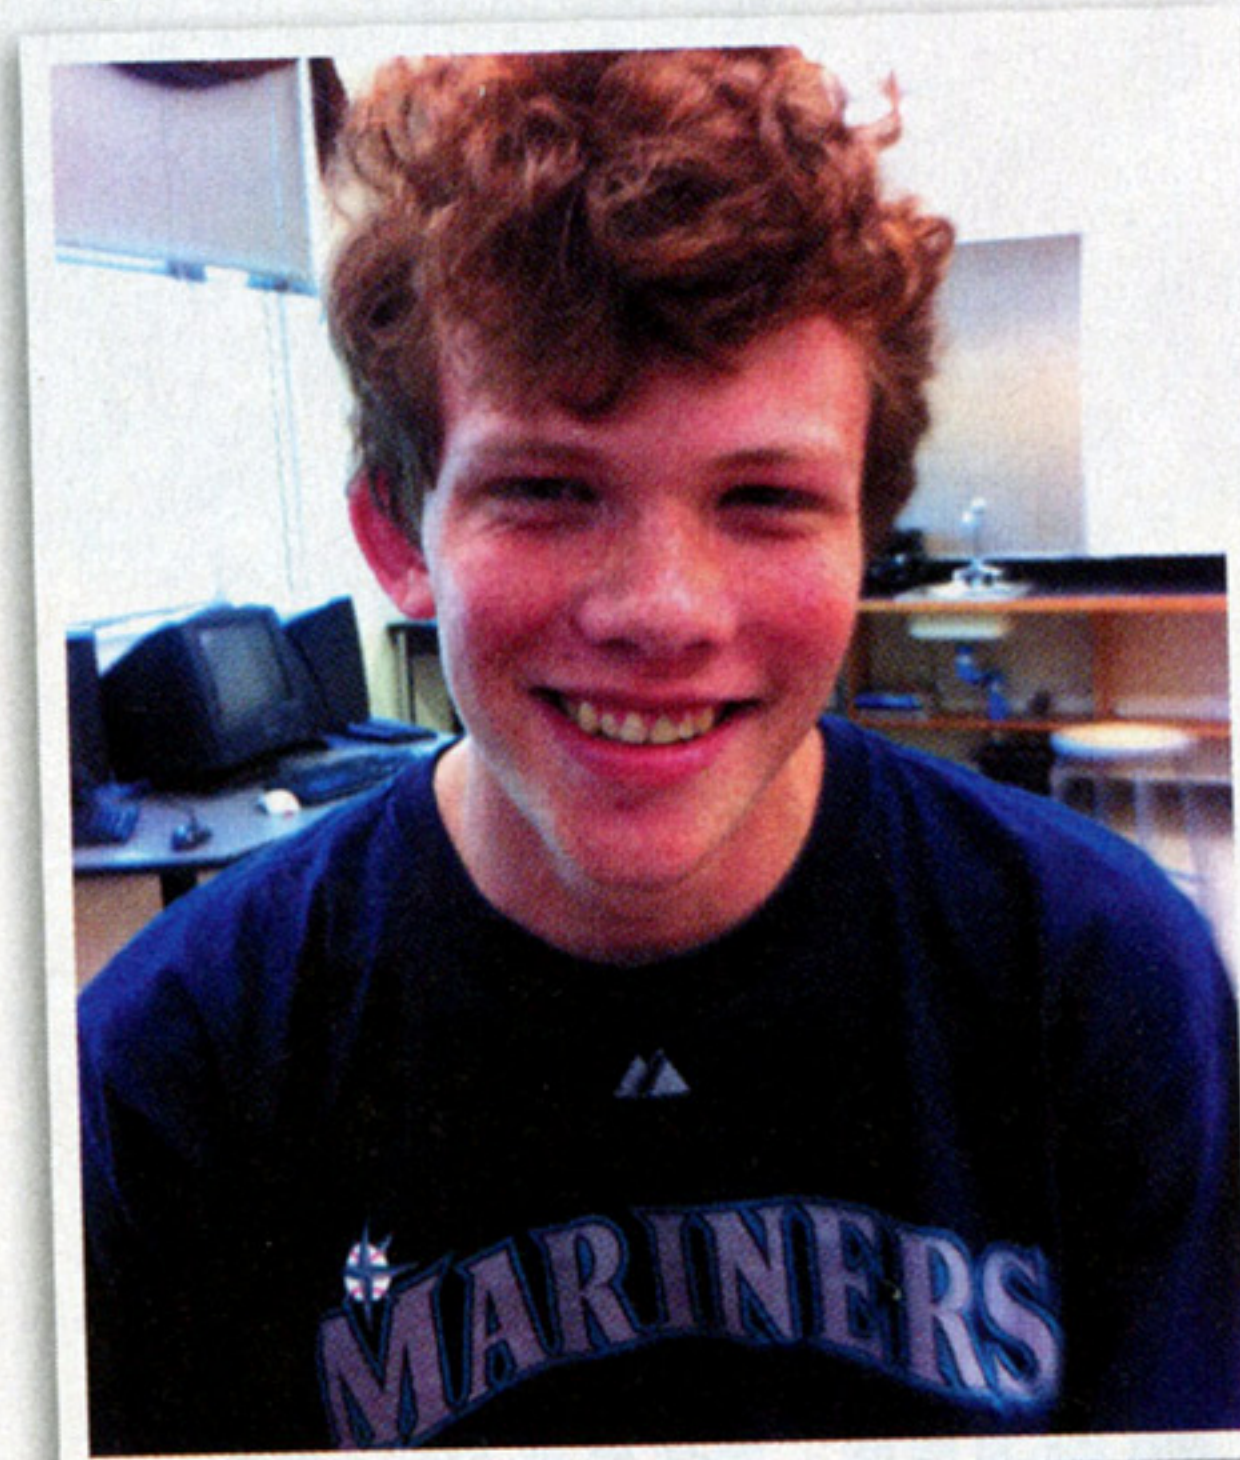

BLANKS FOR NOTHING

Whoops! In our recent Harry Potter special issue, we accidentally left a word balloon blank on page 56! Mistakus Dumbassius! To make things right, we're printing this clip-n-fix balloon for you to paste in. Or you can leave it blank and write in your own Snappy Answer! Your choice, muggle!

These living portraits of all the deceased Halfwits headmasters of the past continue to advise me! Someday, after I've snapped my wand, I too shall be a painting on this wall!

ALFRED LOOK-A-LIKE

We get a lot of pictures sent in by people who think they look like our gap-toothed idiot mascot — and this month's poor, unfortunate soul is Barrett Buscher. It's not a bad likeness — but there is one giveaway. Even Alfred wouldn't be stupid enough to root for the Mariners!

ENVELOPE OF THE MONTH

This issue's envelope of the month comes from Kyon "Stoley" Stoll Li of Baltimore MD, who, in addition to having a completely redundant nickname, thinks that MAD deserves a place amongst the "Masterpieces of Mankind." Really, Stoley? You'd put MAD alongside Hamlet, Citizen Kane, and whatever the hell Clannad is? Seeing as how another letter just referred to MAD issues as bathroom supplies, you might want to redefine "Masterpiece."

THIS SAND IS YOUR SAND

While on vacation in the Philippines, I did a few quick sketches of Alfred on the beach. As I finished one, a couple of Filipino guys walked by. One said, "Nice drawing." The other said, "Hey, I know him — that's the MAD magazine guy." Pleasantly surprised, I gave him two thumbs and said, "You got it!" So believe it or not, even in the Philippines, people know Alfred E. Neuman and MAD magazine.

Ed Meisinger • Mendota Heights, MN

Don't Kill the Meisinger — You're not going to believe this! About a month ago, we saw a 9000% spike in MAD subscriptions — all from new readers in the Philippines! More amazing yet, on the subscription card, under the question "Where did you hear about MAD?" they all checked the box next to "Weird, shirtless guy giving double thumbs-up on the beach." You know, we could really use more readers in Antarctica — how would you like to take a shirtless tour down there and drum up a little business for us? —Ed.

THE MISSING INK

Recently, Sam Knight (aka @LosFuriasTiki) tweeted about his MAD-themed tattoo that, "I wasn't allowed an actual Alfred E. Neuman tattoo (he freaks out my wife) so I settled for a quote."

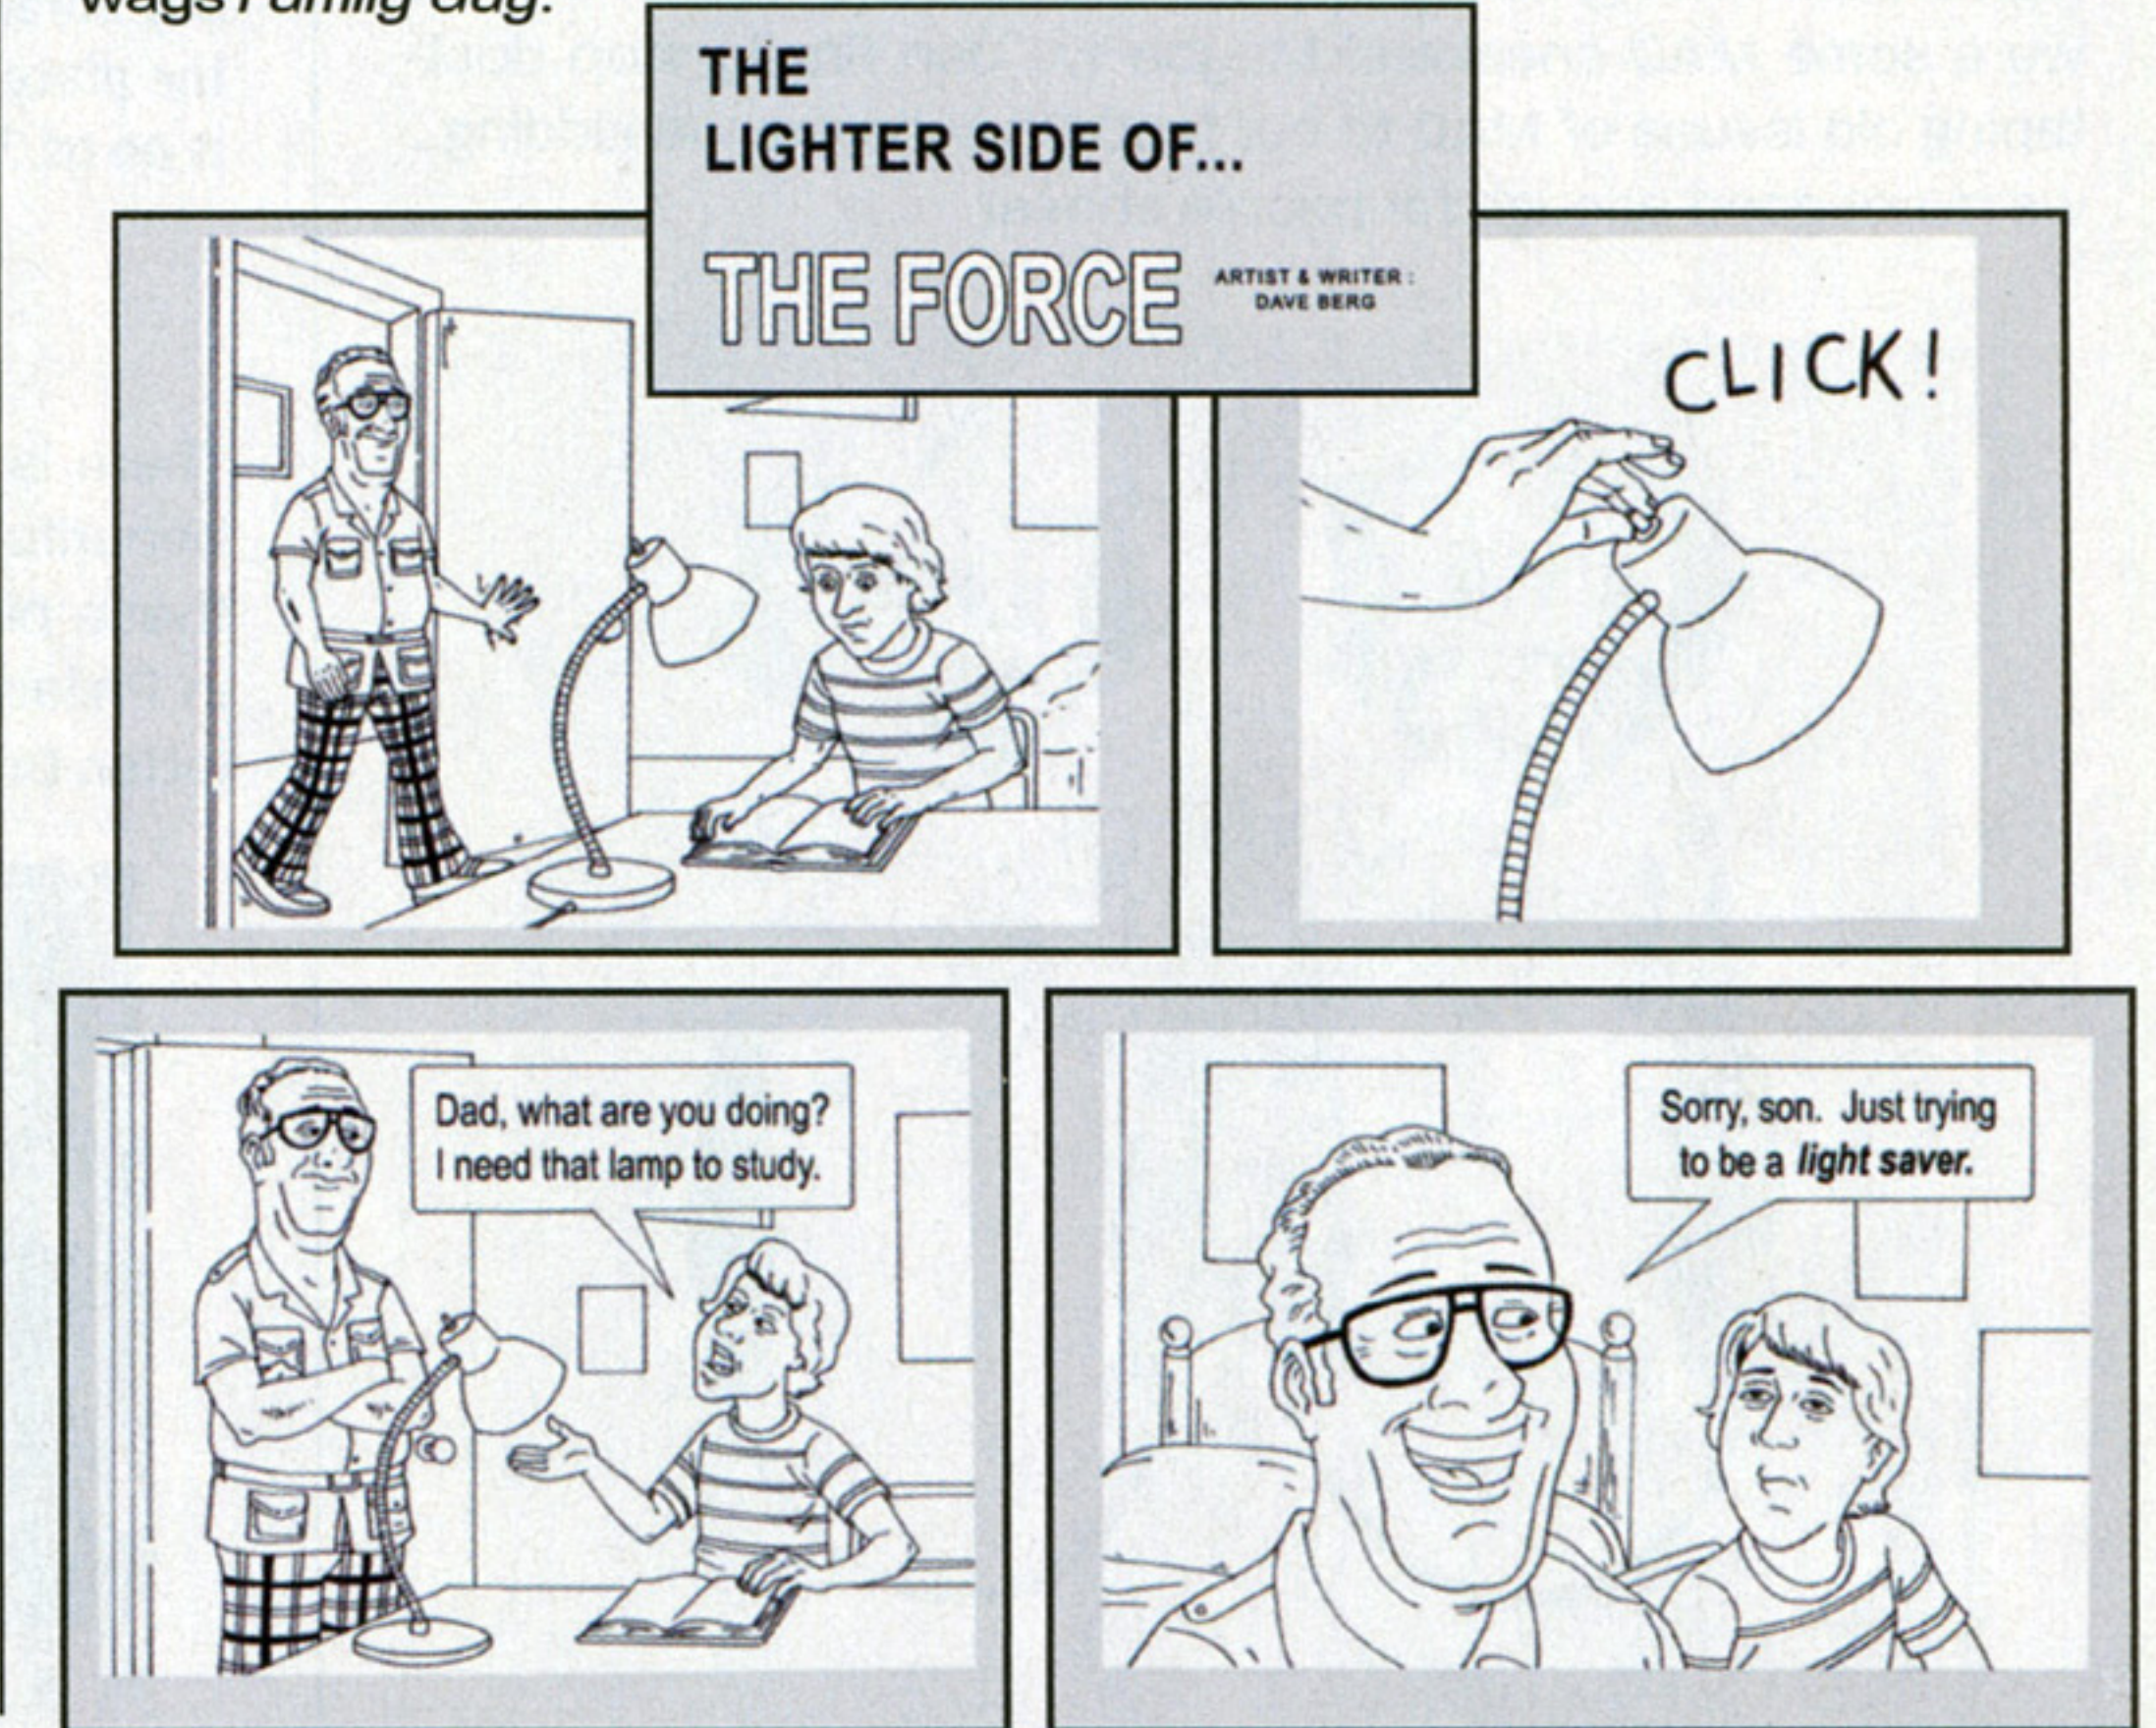

First off — Sammy, you should really thank your wife for preventing you from making a permanent mistake. That said, the tattoo you ended up with isn't so hot either. A flower-knife? Set amongst a bunch of stars? Reeel manly!

ALL IN THE FAMILY GUY

If you saw Family Guy's Return of the Jedi episode, then you caught their reference to MAD's own Lighter Side by Dave Berg! Do you know what this means? MAD was on TV! As a primetime cartoon! Isn't this awesome?! We've finally made it to the big time!

Oh wait, MAD is on Cartoon Network every Monday at 8:30. Eh, thanks anyways Family Guy.

IF THE SPEW FITS

Artist Chris Miles created these amazing custom Converse high tops featuring Alfred and the Spies! It's about time there were some MAD sneakers! Maybe we can finally stop duct-taping old issues of MAD to our feet! Oh, who are we kidding... we're not good enough for people shoes!

A REAL RAGE TURNER

I'm a huge fan of you guys, especially the Spies. I always get the issues at the library, but every time some jerk has to rip out some of the pages. One time with Spy vs. Spy. Can you do anything about this?

Gordon Morgans • Las Vegas, NV

Morgans Donor — They have libraries in Las Vegas? We don't remember seeing any libraries when we were in Las Vegas. Oh — wait, now we remember. That was the place where we got kicked out for ripping pages out of all the books. This one is on us. Sorry. So much for what happens in Vegas staying in Vegas...—Ed.

CAN OF SPRAY TAINT

There is an ongoing and controversial debate about whether graffiti is a beautiful, honest artistic expression, or just petty vandalism. After seeing these pictures that Michael Prendergast sent in of an Alfred wheatpaste in Philadelphia, we think it's thoroughly and unarguably clear that it's the latter. Bring on the next controversy!

READER ALERT

Everyone who was lucky enough to have a letter printed in this issue will get a whole stupid mess of wonderfulness (except for you, Yankovic — you despicable schnorrer!)! From our oh-so-generous buddies at Warner Home Video, you'll be getting DVDs of MAD: Season 1, Part 1 (on sale September 20th!), Two and a Half Men: The Complete Eighth Season (available September 6th!) and The Big Bang Theory: The Complete Fourth Season (available September 13th)! You'll also be getting Fast 5 — five times the action! Vin Diesel and Paul Walker lead a reunion of all-stars from the explosive franchise on speed to pull off one last job, with both a U.S. strike force Fed (Dwayne Johnson) and a ruthless drug kingpin hot on their trail (available Oct. 4) from our chums at Universal Pictures! How's that for an incentive to write in, lazypants?

WHAT CHANGES AND WHAT STAYS THE SAME WITH ASHTON KUTCHER JOINING TWO AND A HALF MEN

- 1 On the set, the stench of bourbon is replaced with a mix of Axe Body Spray and Chipotle.
- 2 Instead of the main character trolling after surgically-enhanced bimbos, he'll chase surgically-altered cougars.
- 3 Jon Cryer is still the third most desirable man on the show.
- 4 Audiences won't have to pay $11.50 to be disappointed by Kutcher; now it's free!

It's a sleepy little comedy about quirky, low-level employees who don't always get along...like many other sitcoms. And the whole thing is shot like a documentary...like many other sitcoms. With the characters talking directly into the camera explaining what just happened...like many other sitcoms. Actually, there's not an original thing about this whole show...except that the workers manage a town's playgrounds, trees and lawns! Which is why we call it...

Parks and Regurgitation

Okay, let's get down to Yawnee Parks & Rec business...

The sycamore tree on Bumblebee Lane unexpectedly dropped a leaf. Let's find it, give it mouth to mouth, and bring it back to life!

There's a seesaw in Putnam Park that has a splinter. I want the See-Saw Task Force to check into that!

I notice we don't have full attendance. Where is the Haystack Committee?

They called in sick today. They're all home. Sneezing!

What about the Pothole Task Force? They fell in!

And our Budget Task Force? Terminated! They realized there's not enough money in our budget to pay for the Budget Task Force!

They couldn't afford gas. They had to abandon their cars and walk home!

One of them stopped at Putnam Park, sat on a see-saw and got a splinter!

Yessss! I'm pumped! You may not realize it but this is the best day our department has had in five months!

Well, well, what do we have here?

It's just what TV audiences have been clamoring for...a civil service comedy!

This is what's known as a "gentle" comedy.

That sounds great when the NBC Execs are in the "Program Development Stage," but then they actually schedule the show and suddenly viewers have heard one alfalfa joke too many and are tuning out to watch The Real Housewives of Fresno!

I'm Rage Stetson! Here's the deal: I'm rocking the best mustache in Indiana! I love meat! I can rip telephone books in half! Okay, yeah, it's the Yawnee Directory, only six pages, but hey, it's a phone book! I'm working in a dull municipal job because I couldn't get a gig in my dream job — the Brawny paper towel guy!

I'm falling in love with the town of Yawnee! Great! So you're on board!

In the past I've also fallen in love with heat rashes, sewage treatment plants and fat gals with phlegm. Hmm. Maybe you're not on board!

Hello, pleasant looking stranger! What are you doing in this town?

I wanted a change in my life! One day, I literally just got in my car, set a destination on my GPS and ended up here!

What destination did you set on your GPS?

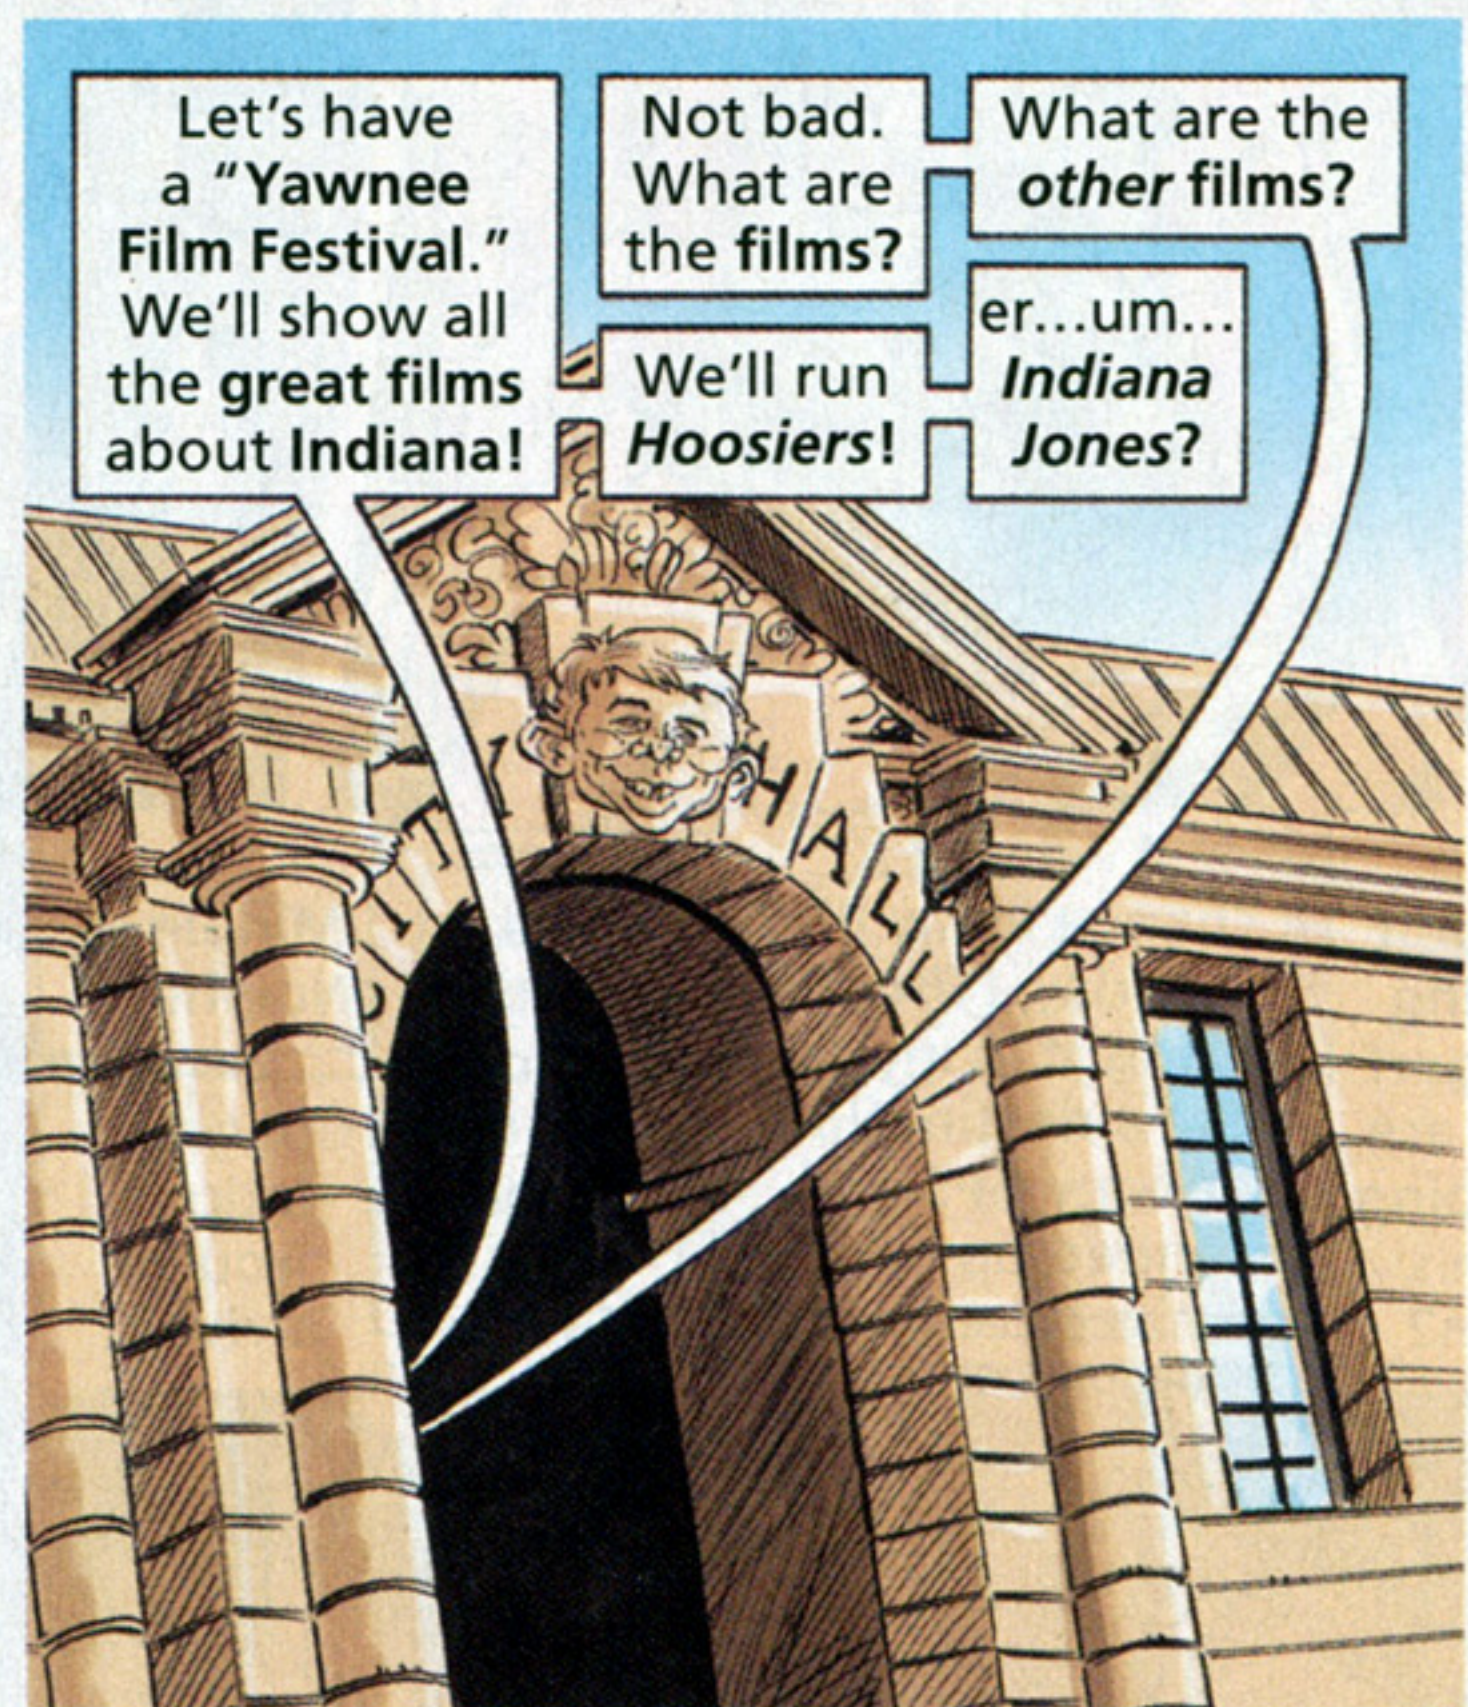

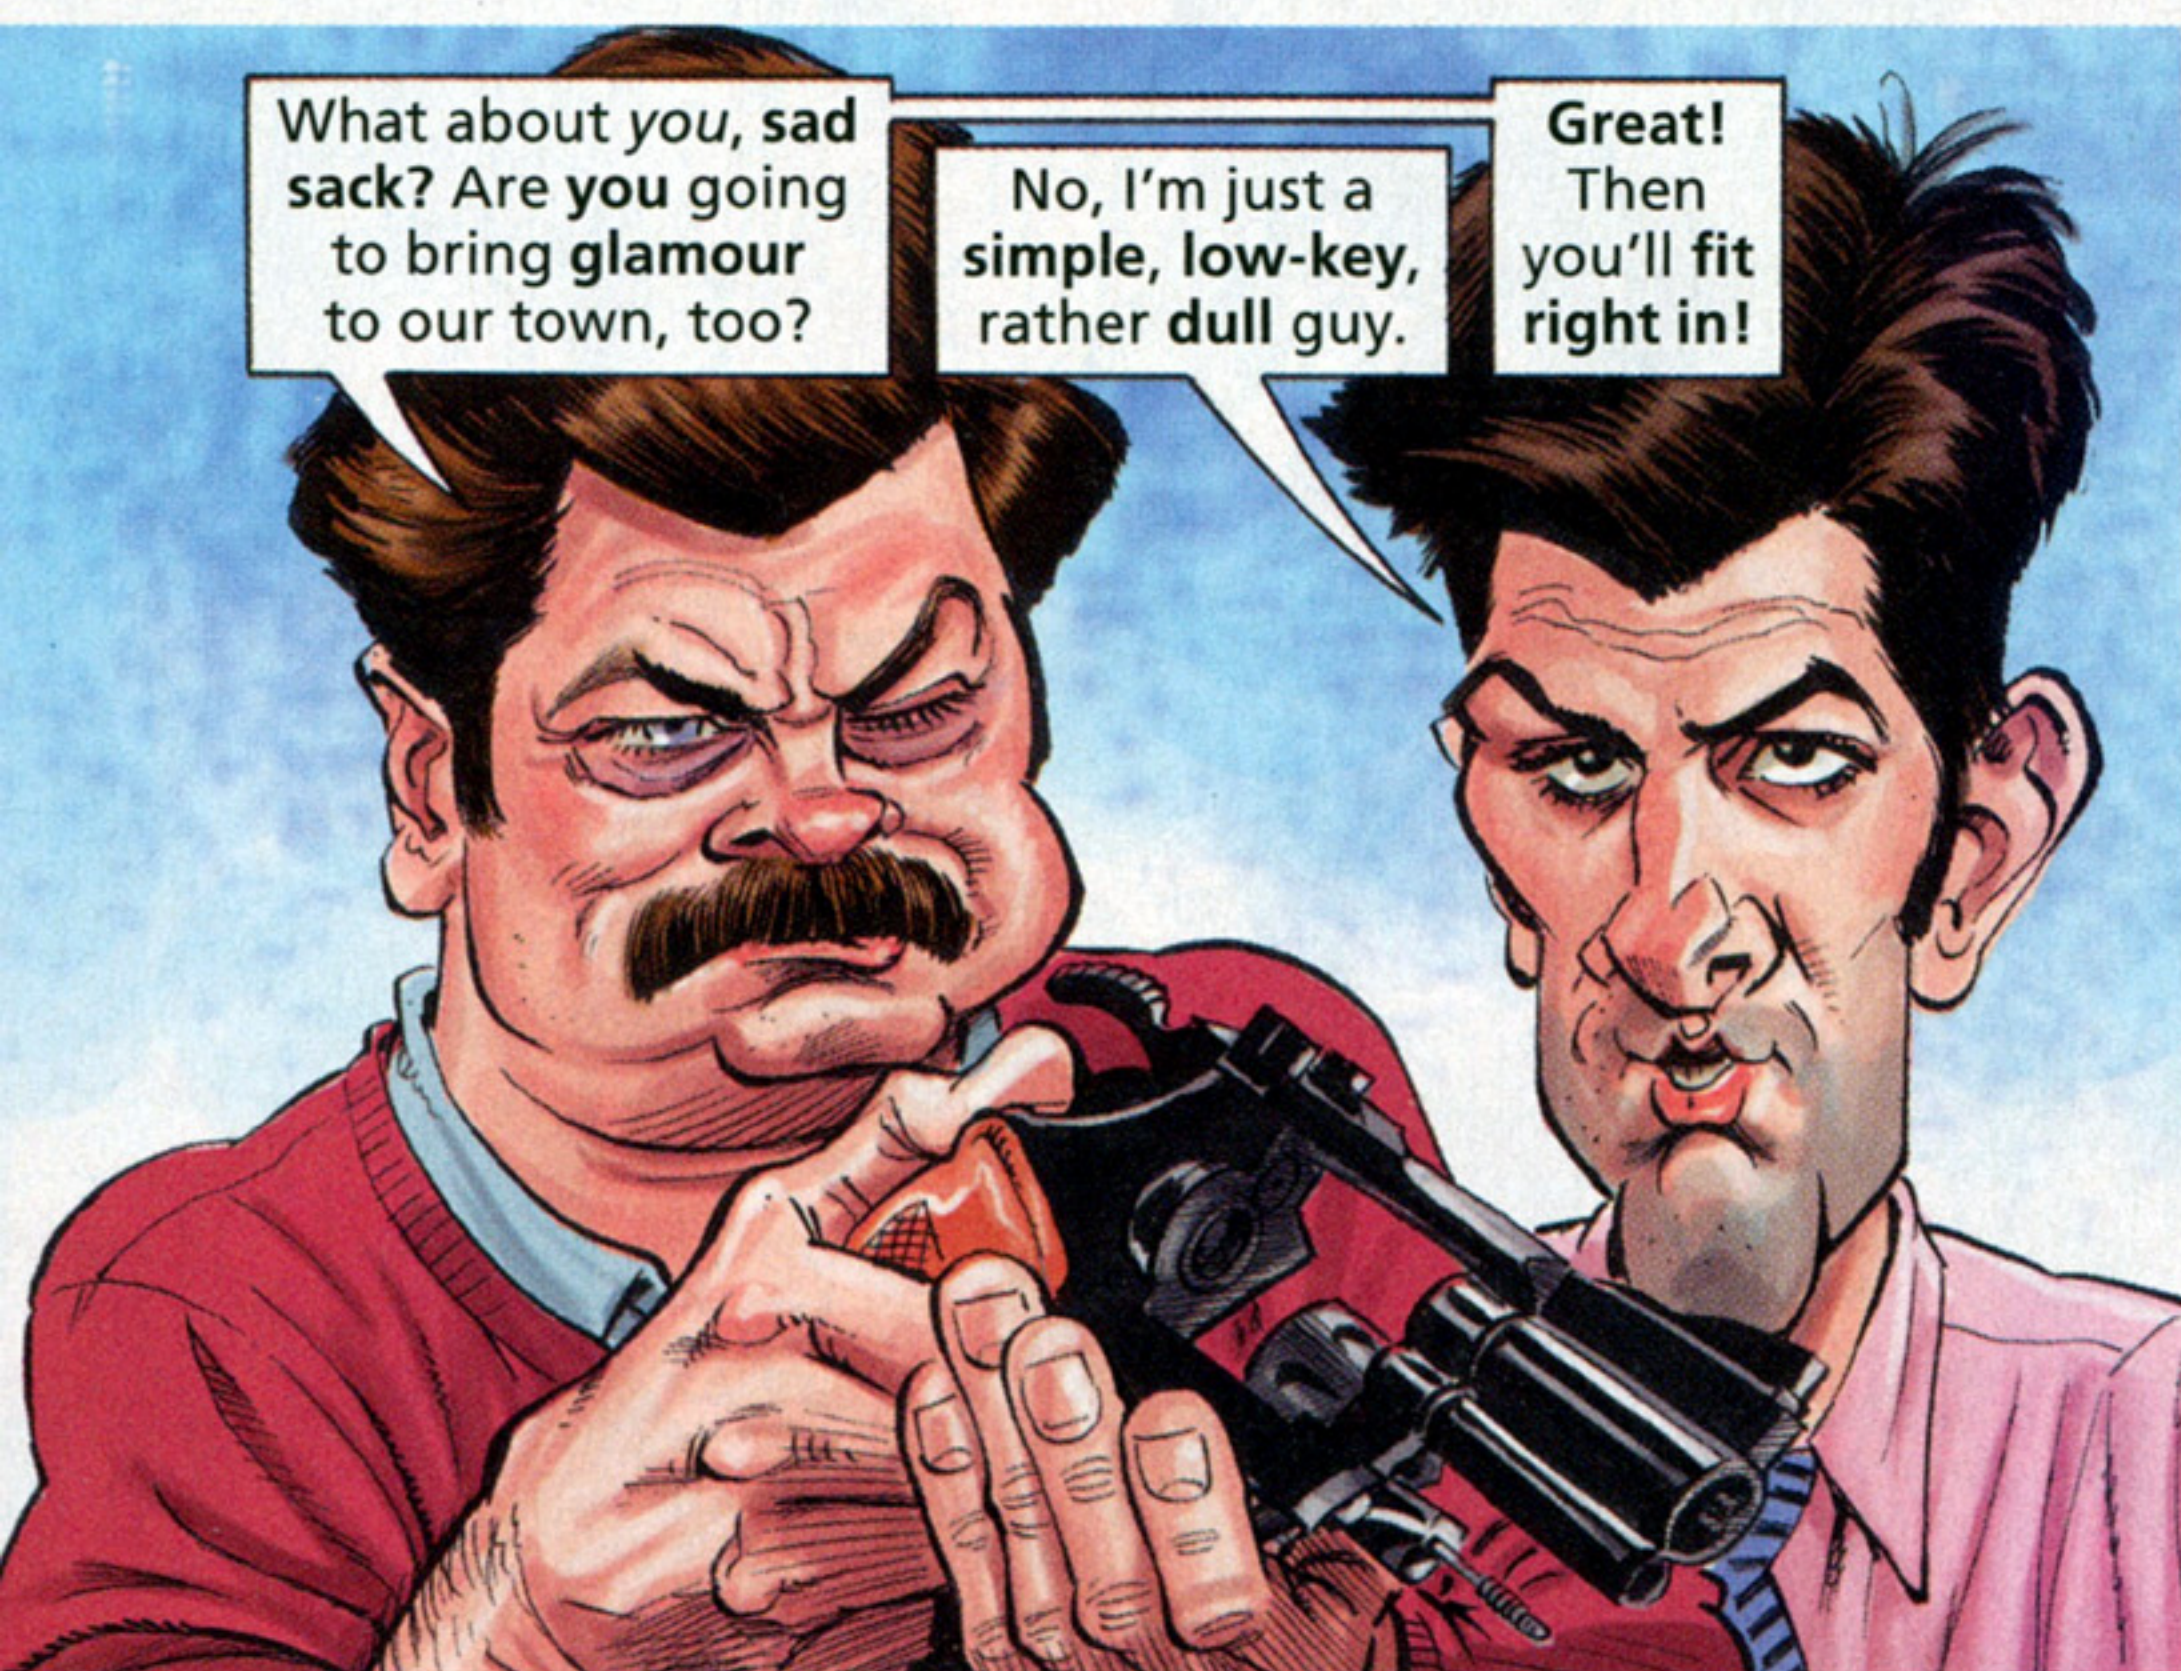

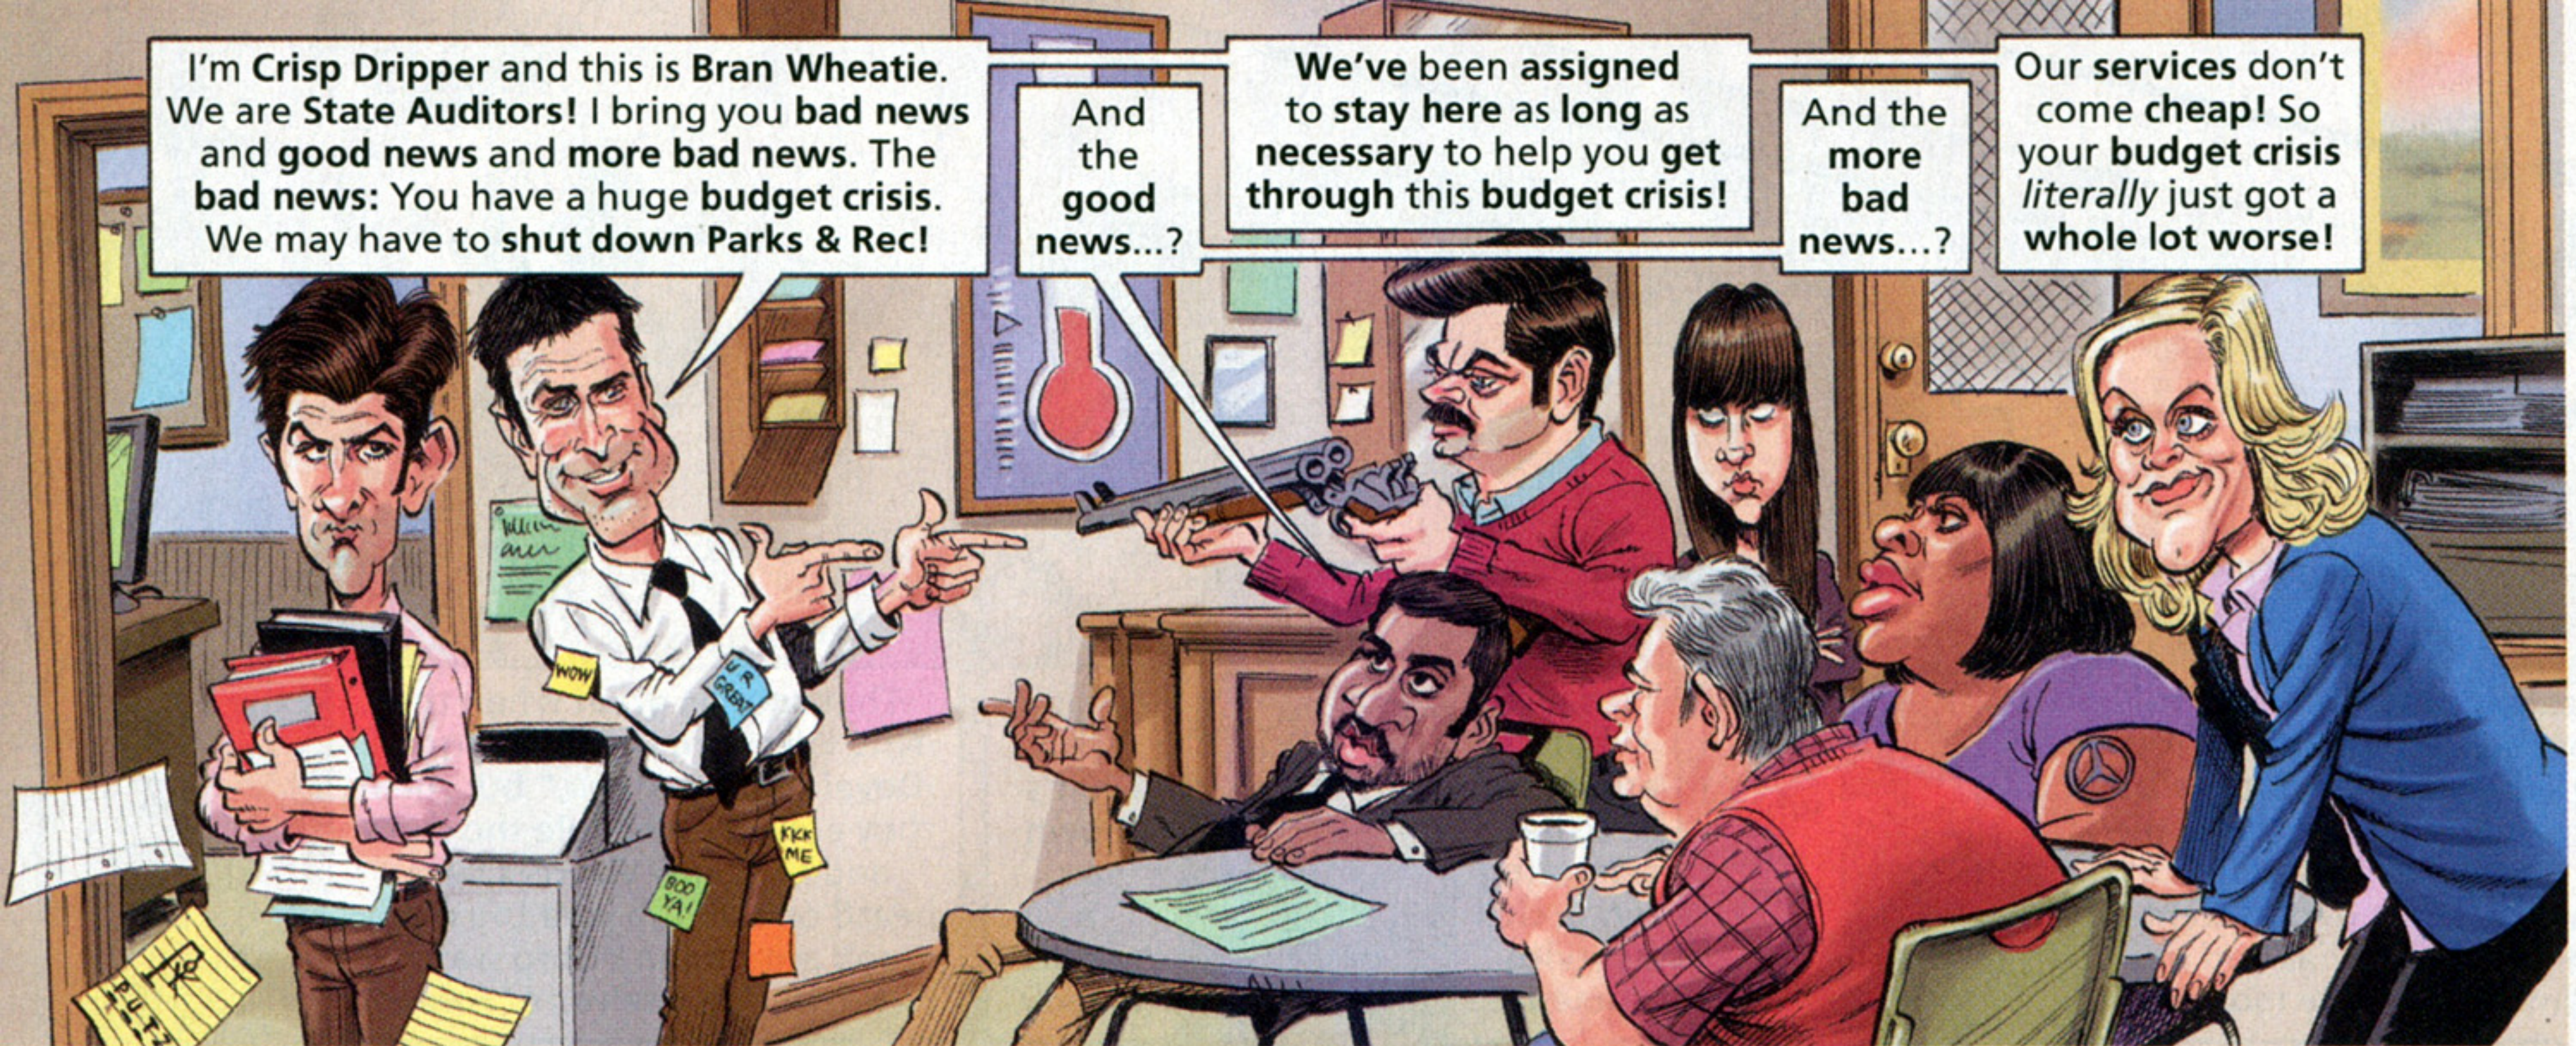

The Middle of Nowhere! Congratulations. You've arrived!

It's great here! Plenty of parks, plenty of green space, plenty of crops and animals!

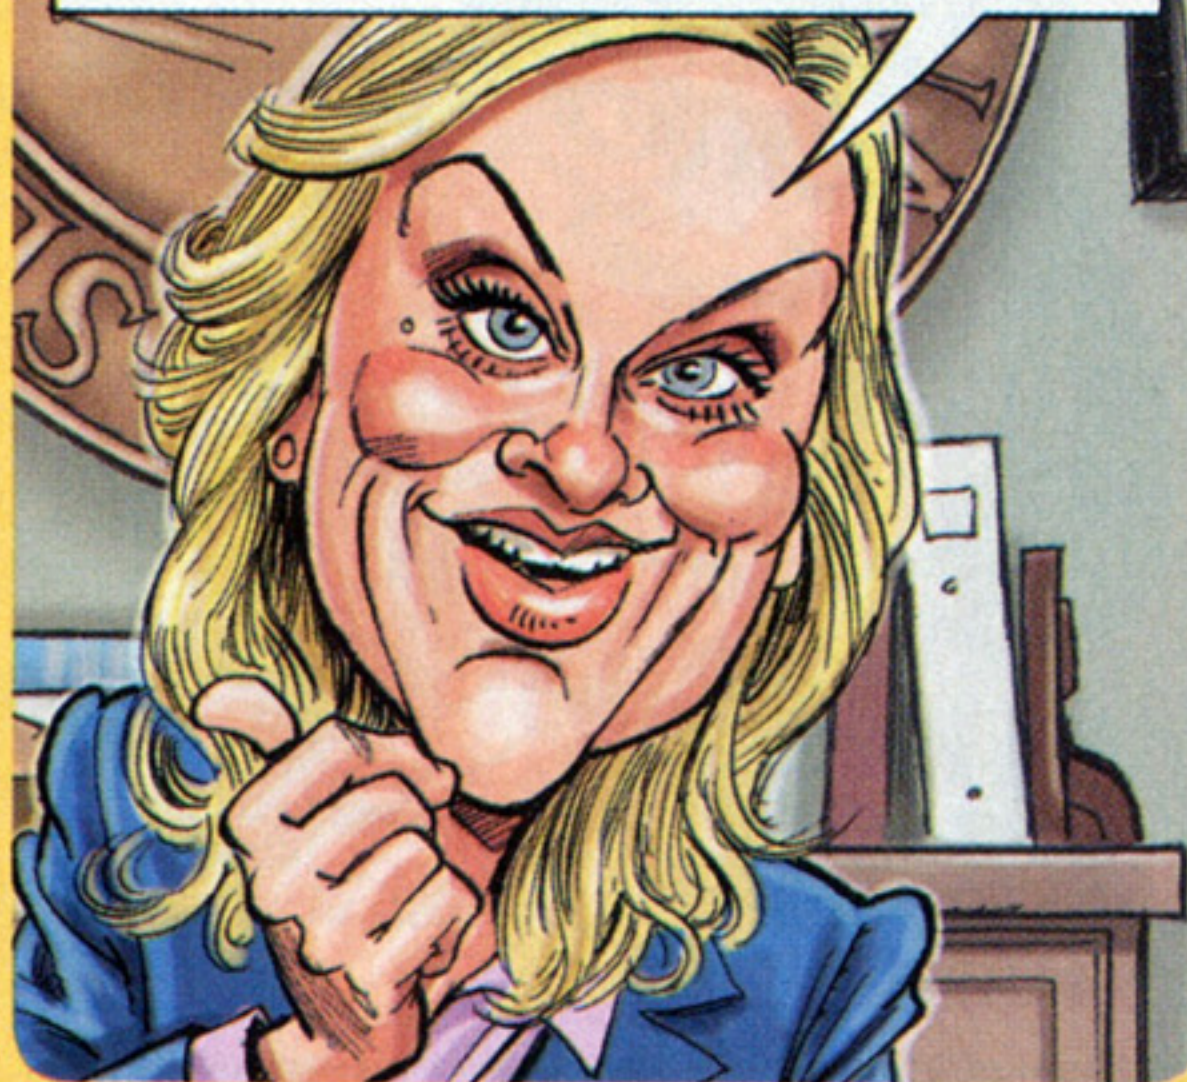

Big deal! I could get all that by playing Farmville — and I wouldn't have to smell manure 24/7!

This will be remembered like the series Ed from 2004!

But I don't remember the series Ed. Exactly!

That's Glom down in the fourth panel of the last page. He's the sleazeball of our group! We have all types: the sleaze, the weird loner, and the psychotic, perky, peppy, Reese Witherspoon wannabe. That's me!

As you've noticed, our characters are not terribly original! Neither is this "mockumentary" one-on-one camera interview! You've seen this on The Office and many other sitcoms!

I wish this show were fresher and more original! It's getting me depressed. I've asked the writers to take my character to a darker place. Next season I'm transitioning from perky and peppy down to plucky!

This is the interview portion of our show. We stop the script and the characters talk directly to the camera.

It's shot in faux-documentary style. It's also called "mockumentary." It is a unique film technique called "breaking the fourth wall."

The lawyers for The Office called it "stealing."

What the hell just happened? What are those two gay guys from Modern Family doing here? They aren't even from Parks and Regurgitation!

With so many shows doing one-on-one camera "interviews," something like this was bound to happen!

You have any thoughts on our budget situation, Rage?

I object to government intervention of any kind!

That Rage is a real throwback!

To Reagan?

To Attila the Hun!

The Yawnee Town Meeting will come to order! I'm Lashley Dope, Deputy Director of Yawnee Parks and Recreation. To put this in terms many of you farmers will understand, our group is ankle deep in meadow muffins! We need your help! We need ideas!

Do you think this will solve their budget problems?

I'm not sure. But on this series, a rousing town hall meeting full of local crazies often solves some script problems!

Let's throw down some spike strips on the outside of town!

That's not going to bring in tourists!

I don't care about bringing in tourists! It will keep out illegals! Yesterday at the diner I got back a Canadian nickel in my change! We need to keep those scheming Canuckleheads out of here!

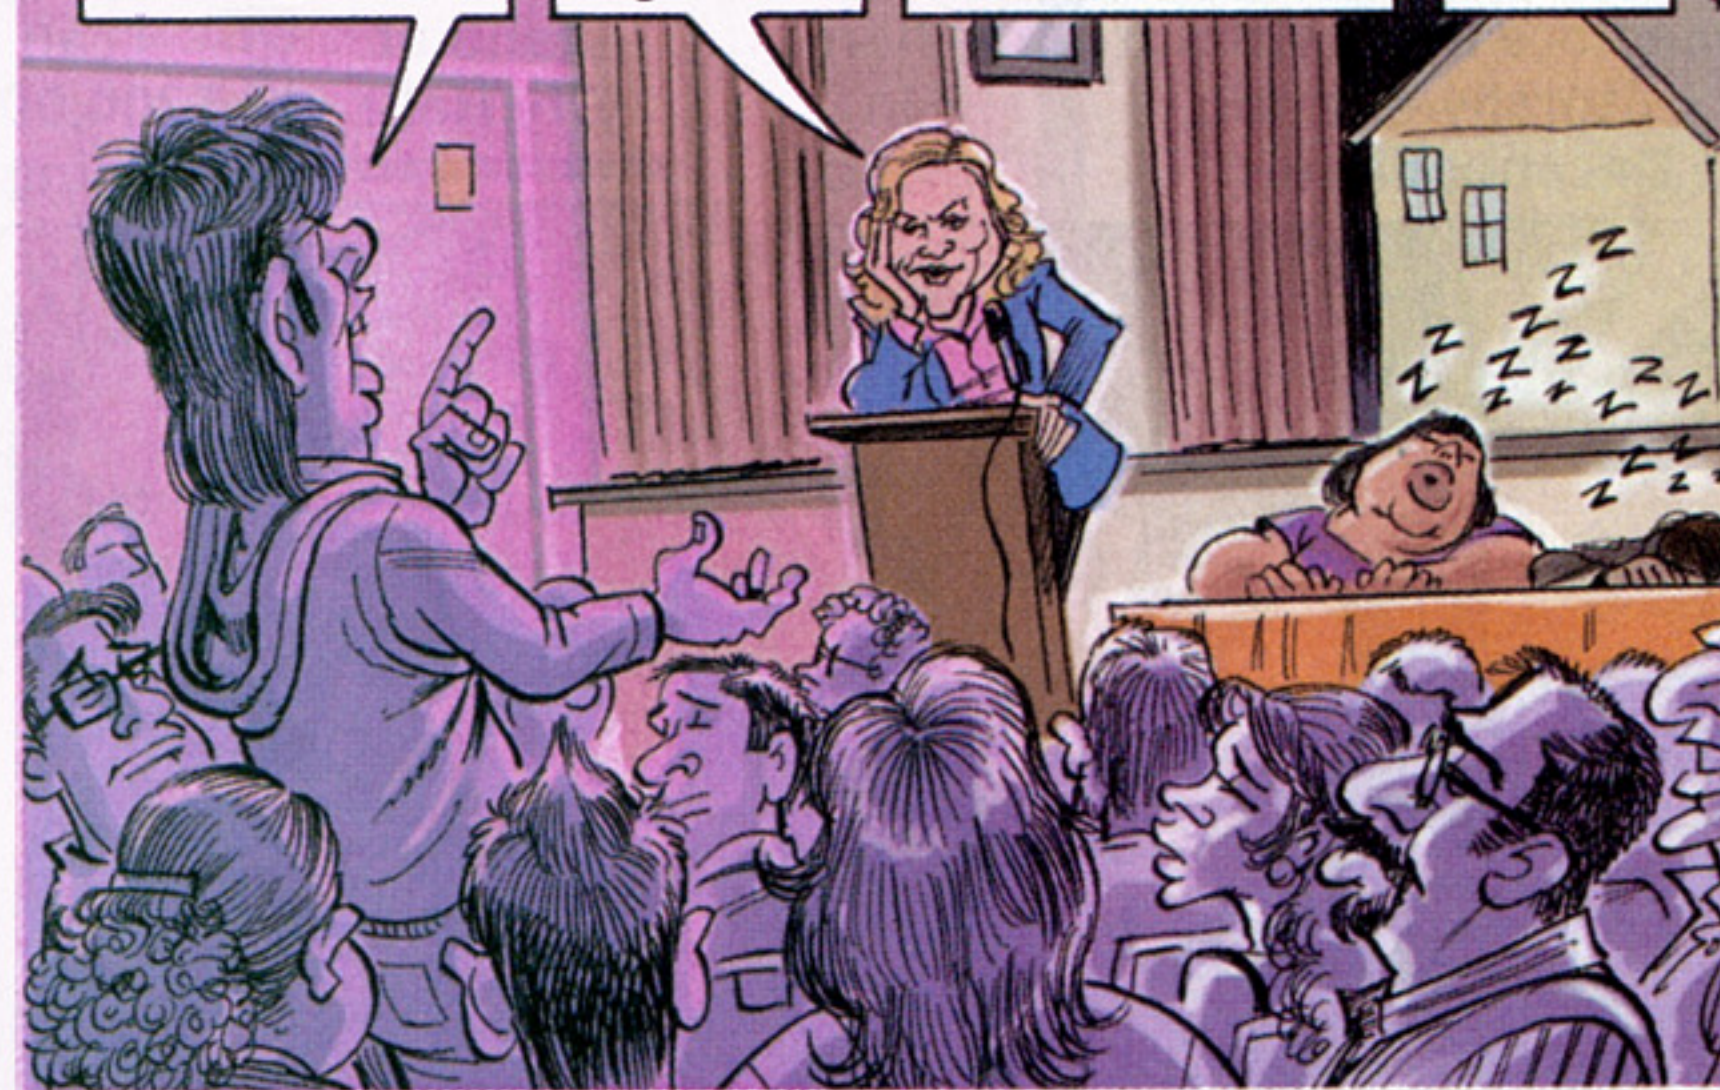

Let's stage a Yawnee Rock Concert! I have a distant cousin who knows the Foo Fighters!

But we can't afford the Foo Fighters!

How about the Jonas Brothers?

We can't afford the Jonas Brothers, either!

Darn! Maybe we can get one Jonas!

There's not enough romance on this show. What about you and me, Slim? Interested?

You?

Yes, me! There aren't any other love interests for you on this show!

Uh...are those Modern Family guys still around?

Can you help us, Pastor? We are in deep trouble!

What is it, my child? Is it your crippling budget problems?

That's huge. But we have another major problem. We have to somehow make audiences laugh at Rob Lowe!

Sorry, some miracles are even beyond the powers of the Lord Almighty himself!

Good news, everyone! We lucked out! The state has decided not to close us down! Instead, they're bringing in a new city manager! A woman with two solid years of experience in government!

Great! Our fiscal problems are solved!

Hello great Americans of Yawnee, Indiana! I'm here to help this town return to the good, old-fashioned way of American life! We need common sense solutions to fix the problems of real Americans! We need to return to our forefathers' honest to goodness old-time American values! We can't let those in the lamestream media write lies and falsehoods about those God-given things that we love and cherish that make America great! And we can!

What is she talking about?

It was total clichéd gibberish! What did she just say?

I have no idea! But I have a feeling this woman just brought us a whole new set of bigger problems!

WAITING FOR THE OTHER COUP TO DROP DEPT.

If you've been able to turn your attention away from The Voice for a few seconds to watch the news, then you've probably noticed the numerous revolutions in the Middle East. In places like Egypt and Tunisia citizens are throwing out their dictators like a houseguest who's overstayed his welcome...and who has also egregiously violated basic human rights. Other corrupt dictators have taken note — and live in fear of losing their power, their lives, and most importantly, their solid-gold toilets. The people of the world are tired of being ignored like that rash Gaddafi assumes will go away on its own, and there are more rebellions on the horizon. In eager anticipation of these changes, MAD's crack team of Wikipedia researchers have identified...

DICTATORS NEXT TO BE OVERTHROWN

RAMADA IBN MUFTI SULTAN OF SLURBISTAN

HOW HE CAME TO POWER:
Won it in a poker game in 1957.

WHY HIS PEOPLE WANT HIM OUT:
Insists on wearing a big, dumb cowboy hat during rambling five-hour speeches. And the widespread torture doesn't exactly help his image, either.

MEMORABLE QUOTE:
"Call me a mass-murdering cannibal pedophile if you must, but at least I put the jaywalkers in prison."

MISC. FUN FACT:
Has over 100 children, though not all with the same woman.

WHERE HE MAY END UP:
Guest on Dancing With The Stars.

GRUNHELGA IV RULER FOR LIFE OF GULDENSTERN

HOW SHE CAME TO POWER:
Her brother owns the company that makes the voting machines, so it was really pretty easy.

WHY HER PEOPLE WANT HER OUT:
Her plan to convert the city's only public playground into a missile testing range, even though they already have a perfectly good range downtown.

MISC. FUN FACT:
Used her own funds to set up a casino for handicapped children.

WHERE SHE MAY END UP:
Whining on the couch of whoever took Oprah's place.

SHIH TZU LUNG BELOVED POTENTATE FOR LIFE, SATSUMA

HOW HE CAME TO POWER:
On the third day of the third week of the third month, he spotted a rainbow above a mountaintop, which seemed as good a reason as any to assassinate the then-current leader.

WHY HIS PEOPLE WANT HIM OUT:
It was revealed that he earned his nickname, "The Lion of the Delta," due to his fondness for raw antelope meat.

MISC. FUN FACT:
Sharply criticized a NATO food-drop effort, noting that there was no Frankenberry cereal, his favorite.

WHERE HE MAY END UP:
In the V.P. slot if New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie gets the GOP nomination.

INTESTINO DEL SALAMANDAREZ PRESIDENT OF DOS MUERTOS

HOW HE CAME TO POWER:
Installed by the CIA in 1983 during the "War to Install Our Guy."

WHY HIS PEOPLE WANT HIM OUT:
Ardent supporter of Wisconsin Governor Scott Walker.

UNIFORM:
For official state functions, he favors an "I'm With Stupid" tee shirt, novelty spinning bow tie, and vintage spiked Prussian Army helmet he got on eBay.

MISC. FUN FACT:
Has gone through 73 tasters, a Guinness Book World Record.

WHERE HE MAY END UP:
As a bench coach for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

HANFORD "SKIPPY" MBOBATASU GRAND EXALTED EMINENCE OF LALALAND

HOW HE CAME TO POWER:
Default winner in 1992 election after his five opponents were mysteriously trampled by "rogue giraffes."

WHY HIS PEOPLE WANT HIM OUT:
He only allows freedom of speech if it's in the form of a dirty limerick.

UNIFORM:
His "formal military attire" is a haphazardly BeDazzled UPS uniform.

MISC. FUN FACT:
His royal palace boasts a muffler repair shop on the ground floor.

WHERE HE MAY END UP:
Being choke-slammed by Snooki at Wrestlemania #28.

DMITRI CZUHLIZCHACHECK PRIME MINISTER OF PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF ANALGESIA

HOW HE CAME TO POWER:
Worked his way up from the mailroom.

WHY HIS PEOPLE WANT HIM OUT:
Orders beheadings for "crimes against fashion" as declared by Mr. Blackwell.

MEMORABLE QUOTE:
"I did not have sex with that woman. I had sex with that woman."

MISC. FUN FACT:
He was nicknamed "Coochie Coo" by George W. Bush, who didn't even try to pronounce his last name.

WHERE HE MAY END UP:
Back in the mailroom.

Everyone's always talking about how terrible smoking is for you. But it can't be ALL bad — despite what that killjoy Surgeon General would have you believe! Every cloud of cigarette smoke has a silver lining — just take a look at these...

12 GOOD THINGS ABOUT YOUR SMOKING ADDICTION

WRITER AND ARTIST:
TERESA BURNS PARKHURST

You can (GASP) say what you want about emphy~~(HACK)~~sema, but my abs have never looked (SPIT) better.

A constant, hacking cough helps keep you in shape.

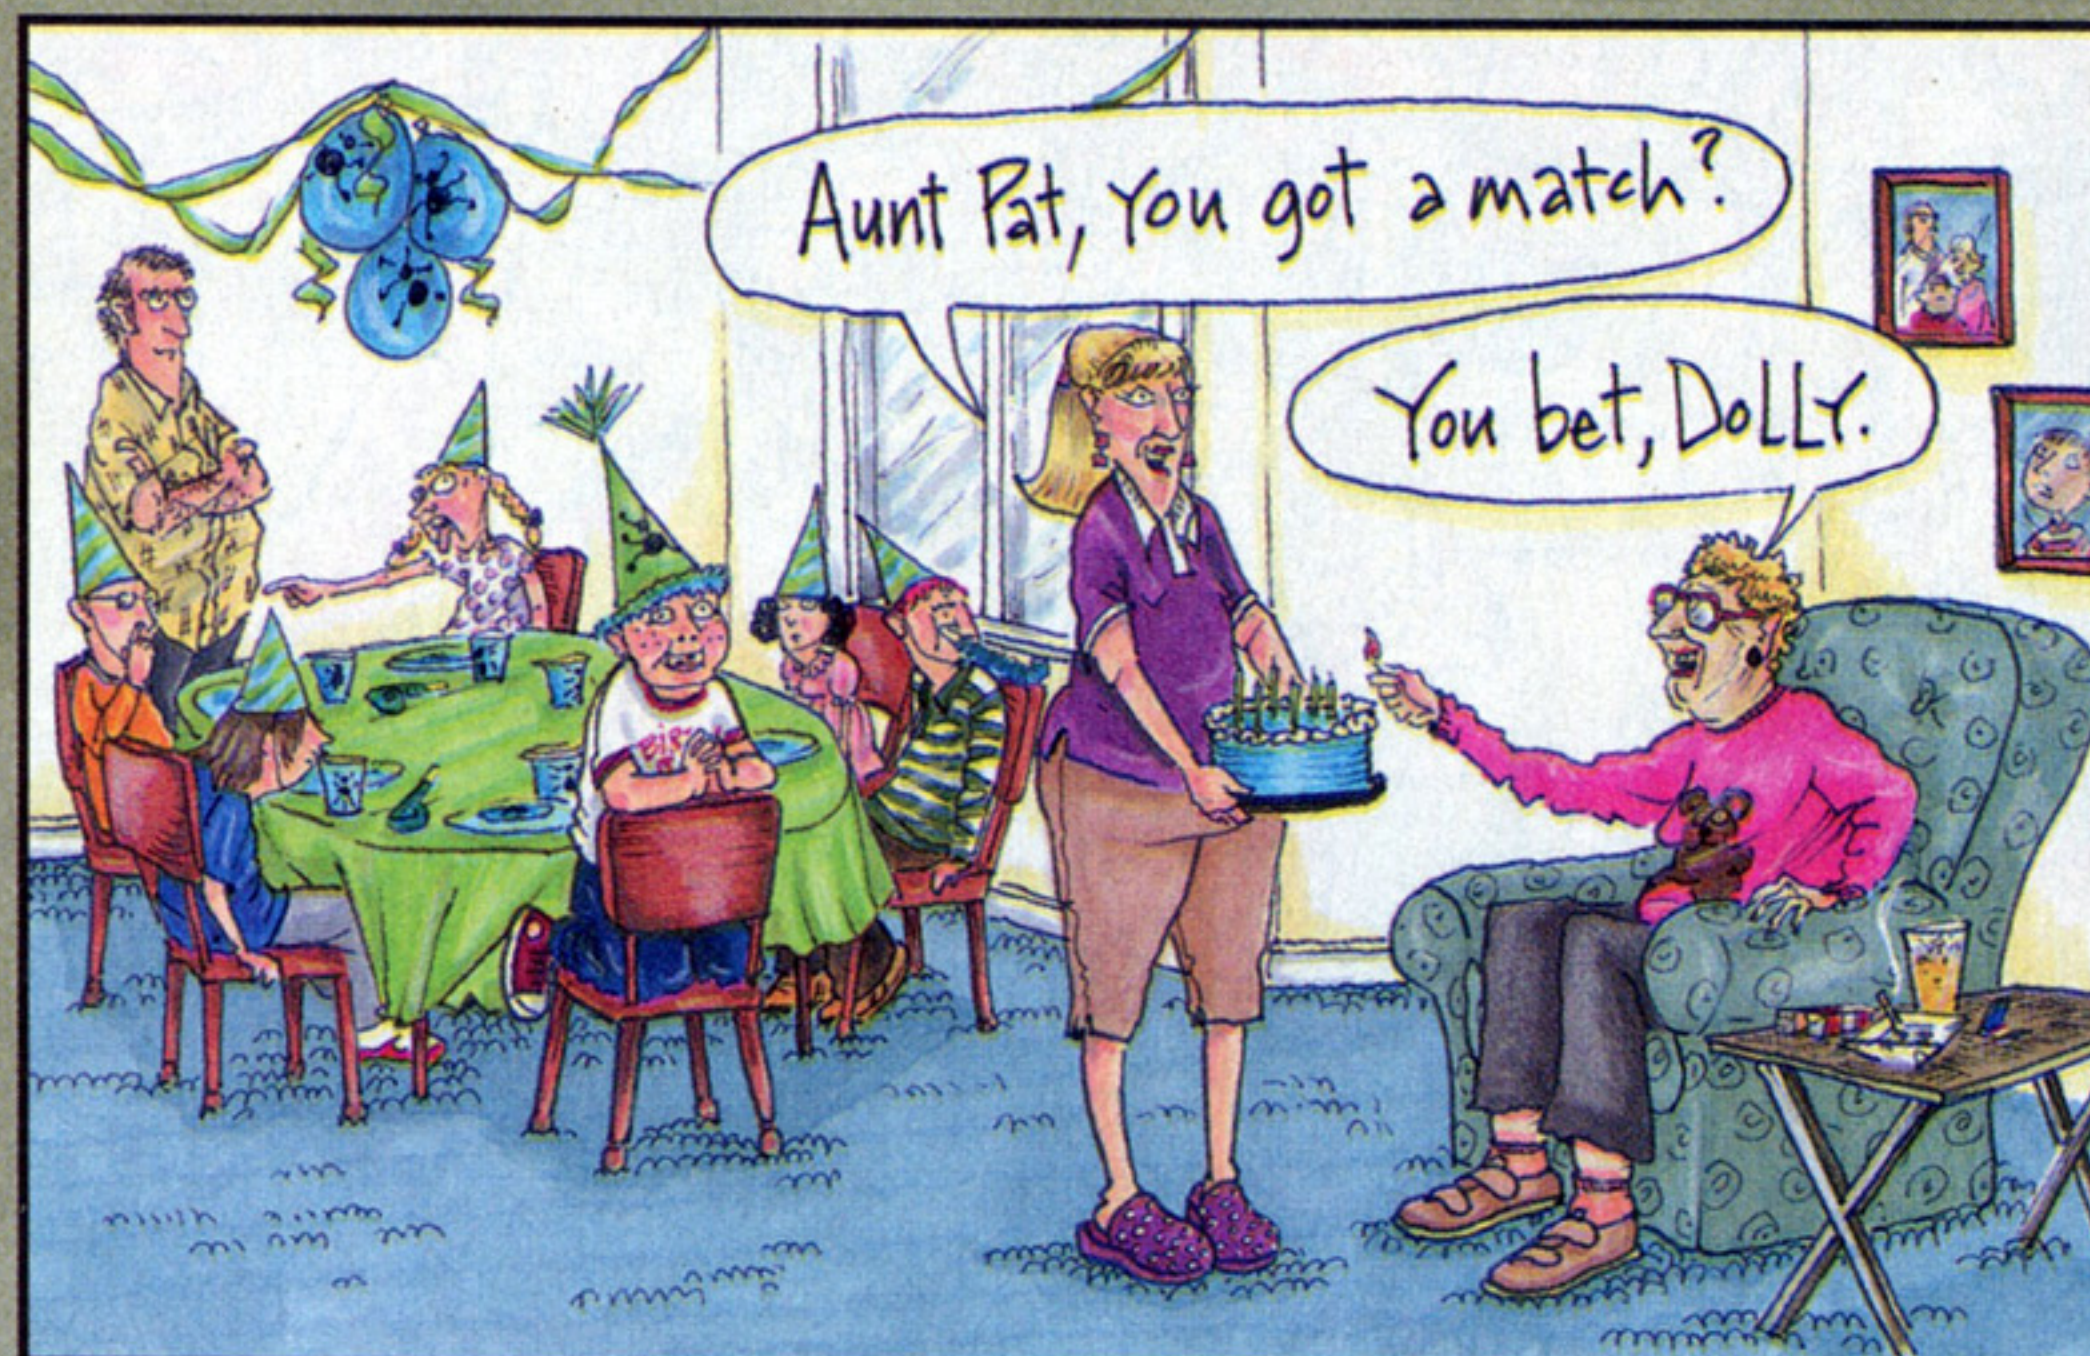

You swell with pride each time you imagine some health class passing around YOUR dead lung.

It's fun to finger-draw on tar-stained surfaces.

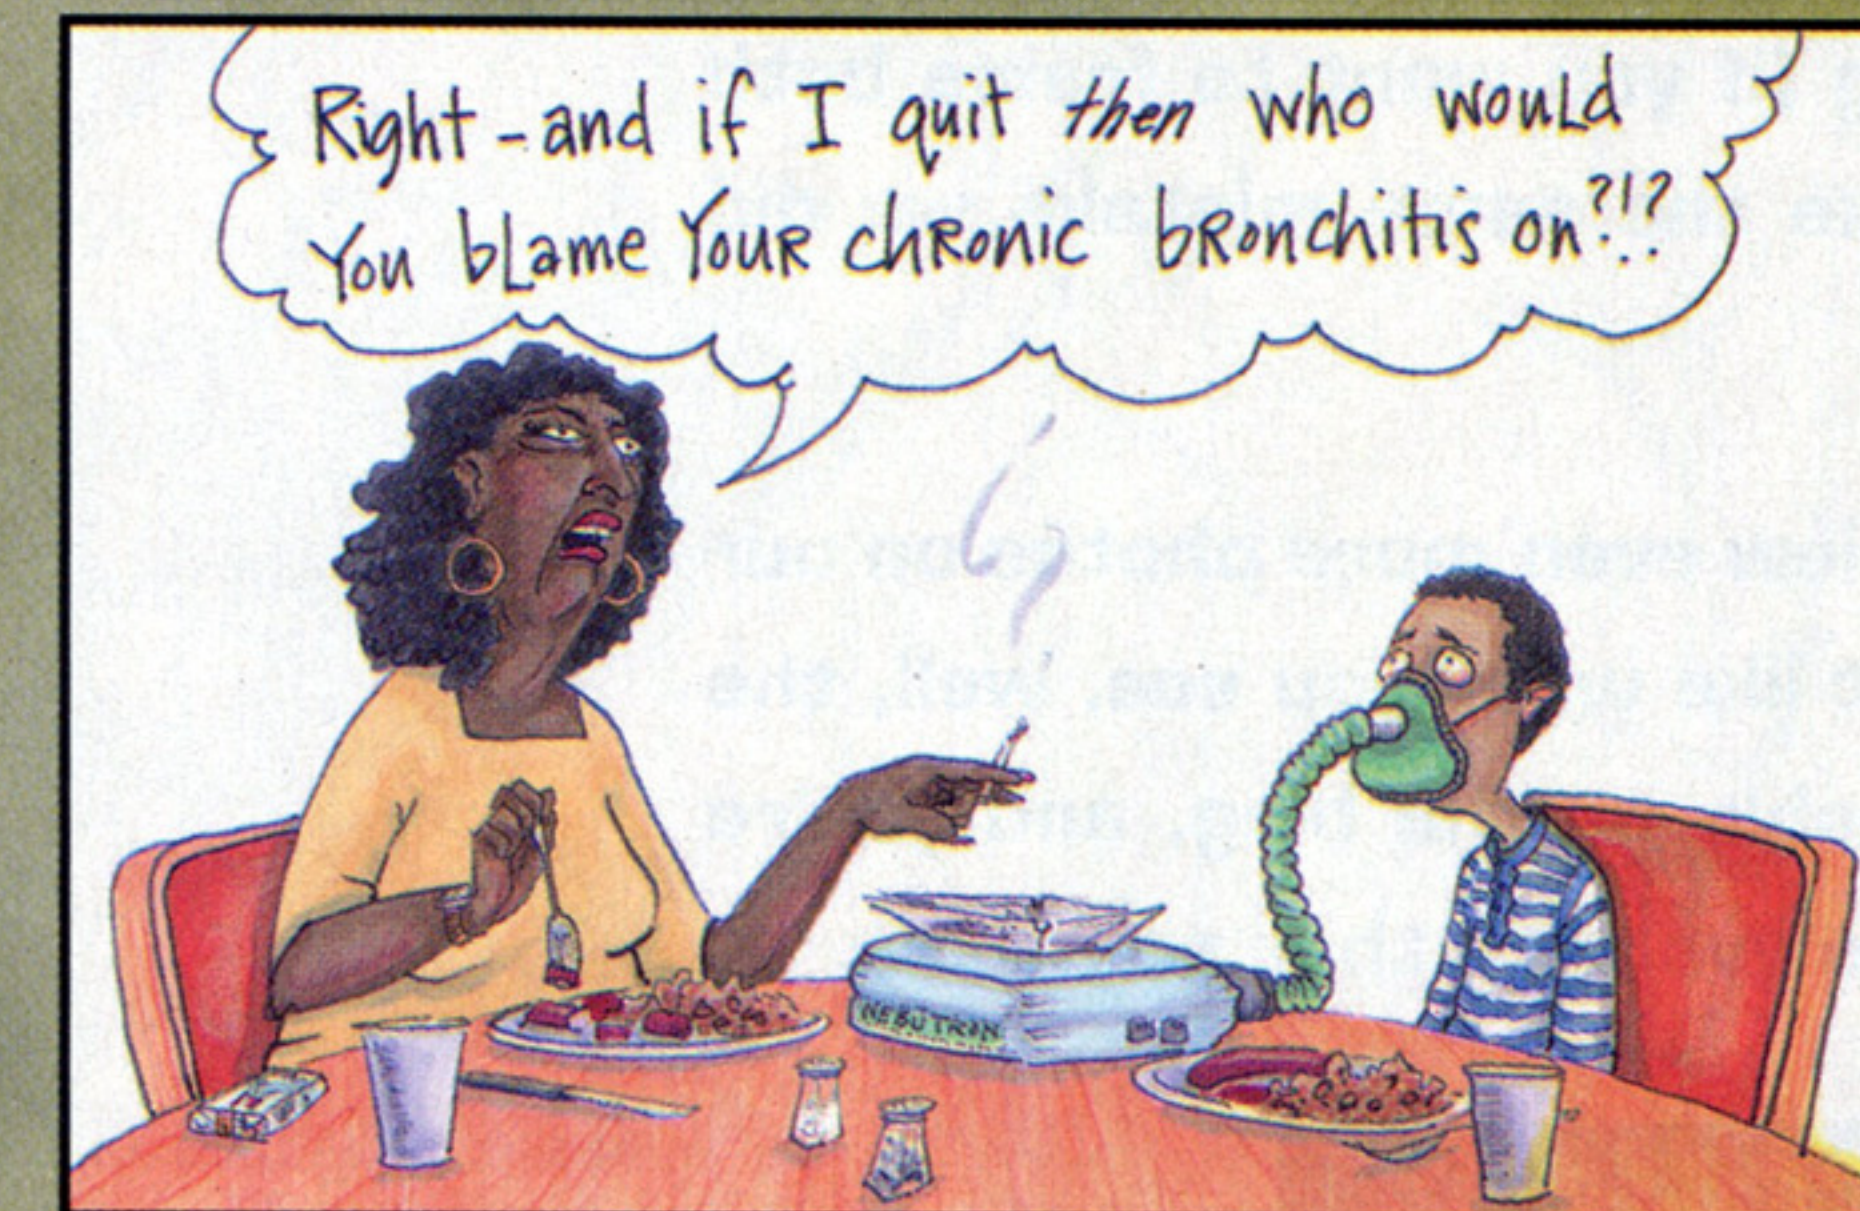

Looking 20 years older than your actual age has its benefits.

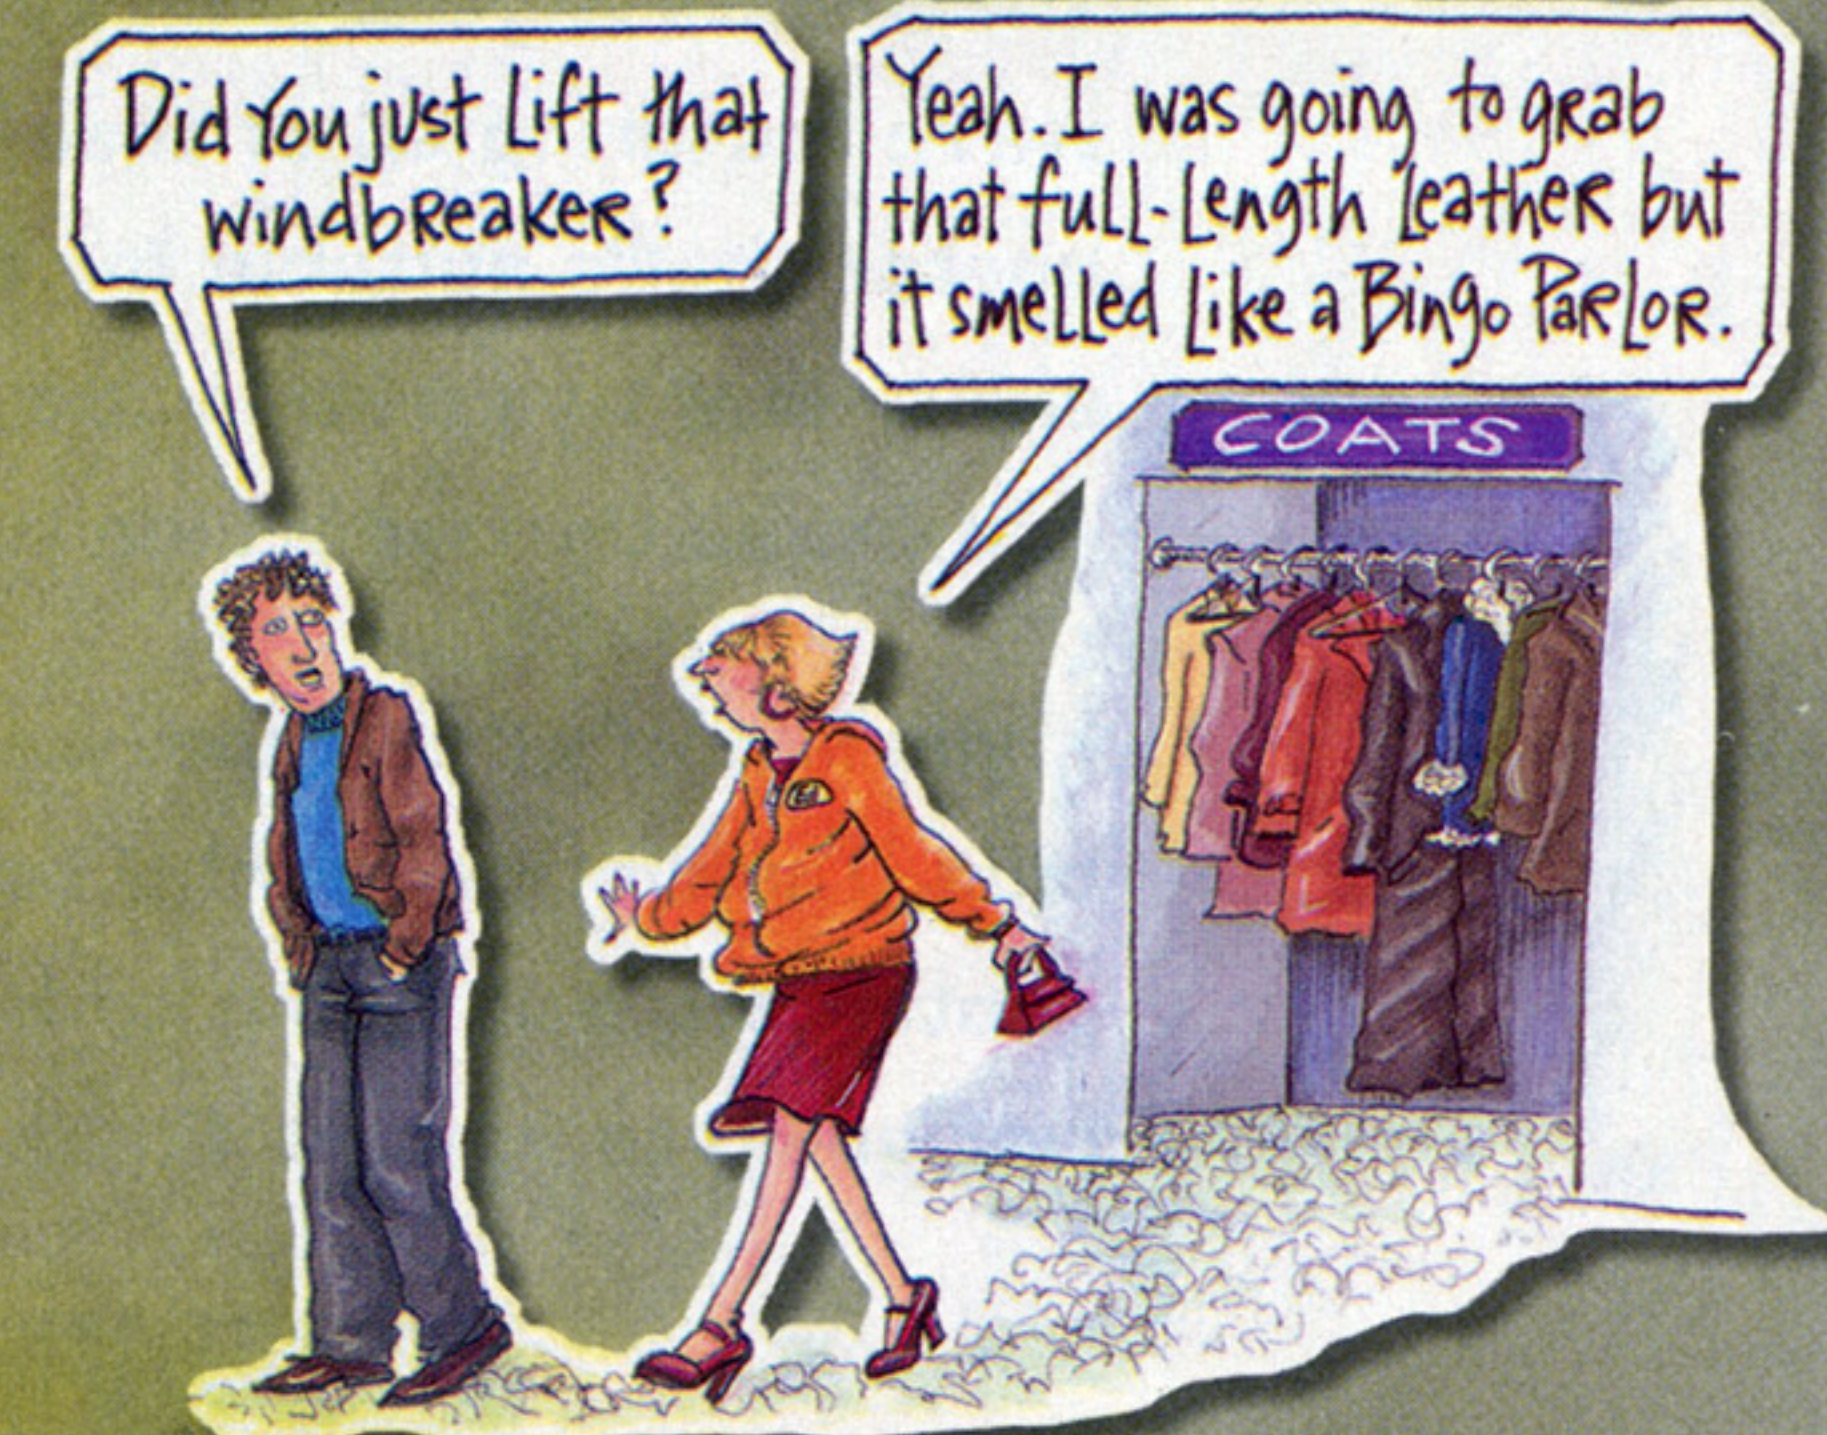

You're a vital part of any birthday party.

Having an oxygen tank is kind of like having a pet.

The whole "second-hand smoke" conspiracy falls completely apart without YOU.

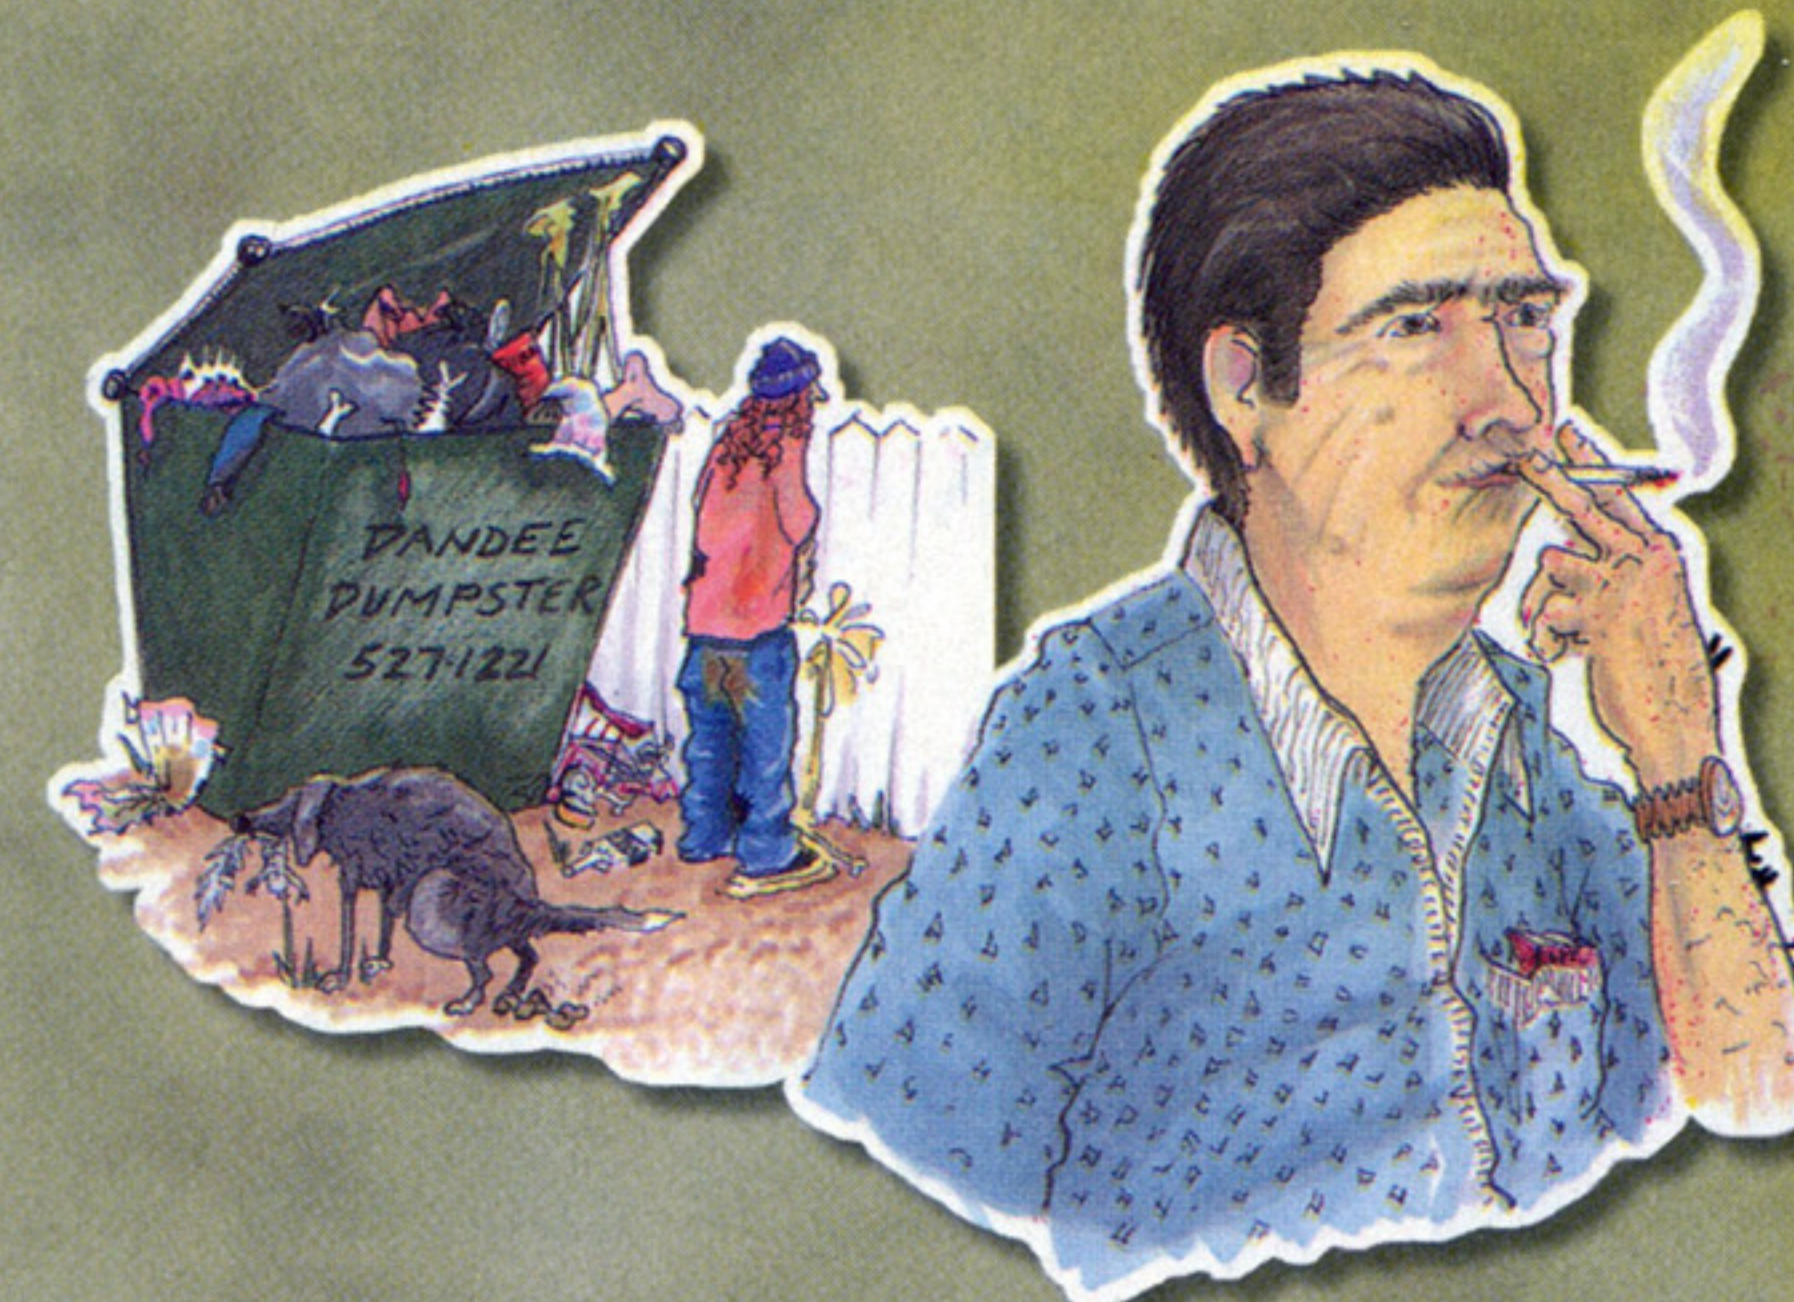

Your coat never gets swiped.

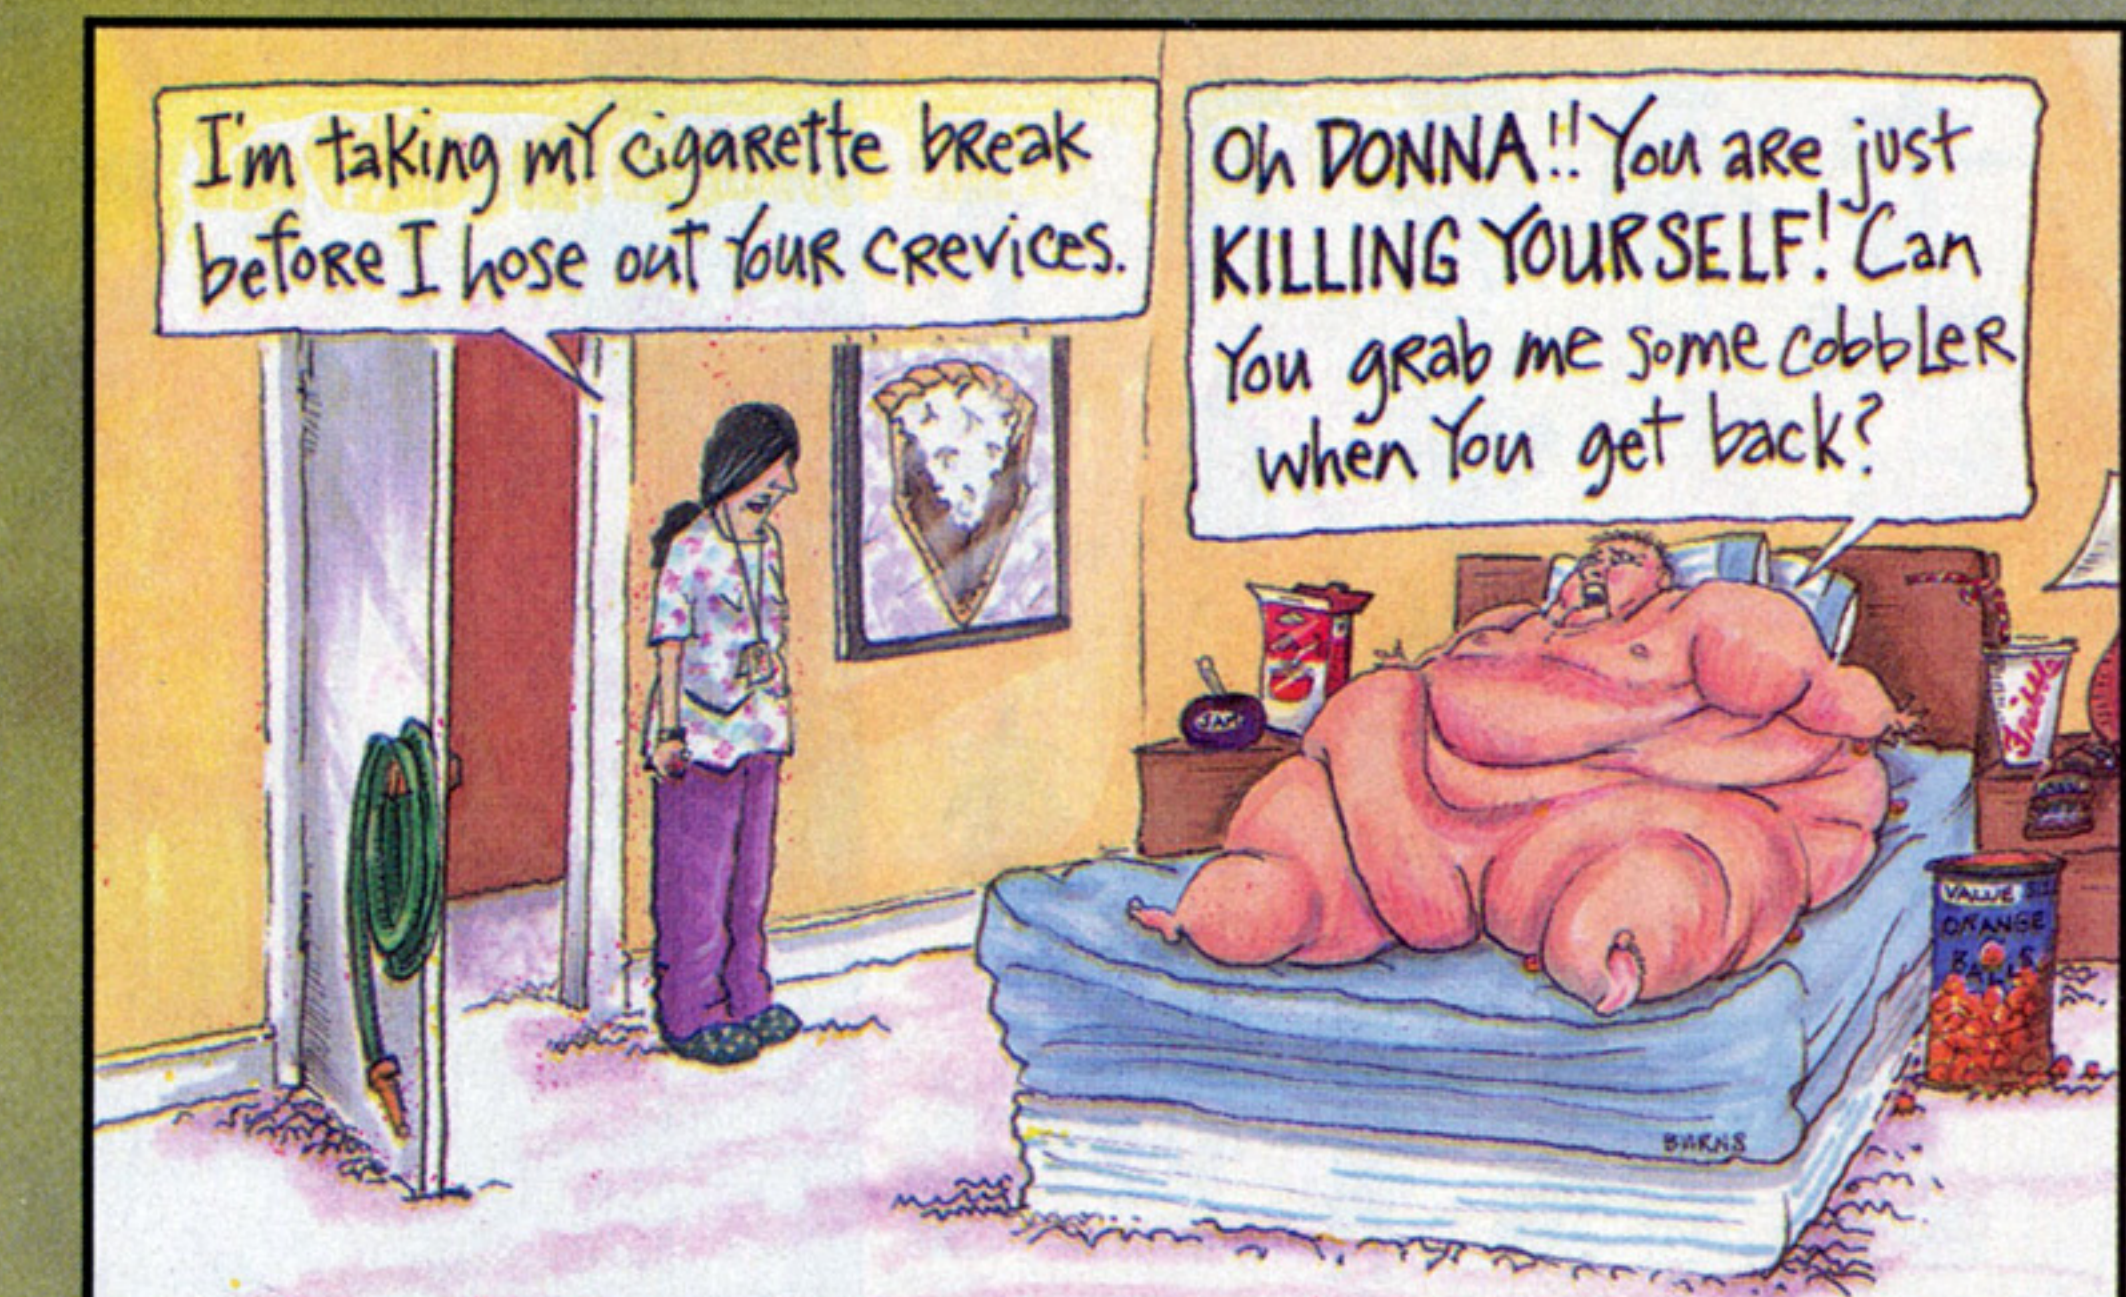

You always have an easy "out" at boring family get-togethers.

You're helping the economy — because the last thing this country needs is for another American ashtray factory to go out of business.

Truth is, life's a little easier with a deadened sense of smell.

You give unhealthy non-smokers the chance to feel really good about themselves.

In 1961, MAD published the first installment of Spy vs. Spy by Antonio Prohias.

What was intended to be a one-shot comic strip quickly grew to become one of MAD's most popular and iconic features.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of Spy vs. Spy and to celebrate this milestone (and five decades of exploding teeth) we wanted to do something really special! So, in addition to getting a Carvel ice cream cake, we also produced a limited number of 6-inch, "blank" Spy action figures (below) and sent them to a select group of cartoonists, comic book artists, toy designers, and miscellaneous creative genius-types to customize however they like!

The results were absolutely amazing — so amazing, in fact, that we're featuring all of them on this commemorative two-sided poster that's suitable for framing (if you want to frame both sides, buy two issues...don't make the same mistake we did and frame the same side twice).

If you like what you see, you can view even more photos on our blog, Theldiotical.com! If you don't like what you see, well, the photos are still going to be available on the blog, and you're just going to have to find a way to live with that somehow.

The tremendous popularity of Angry Birds predictably led to predictable sequels. First came Angry Birds Halloween, then came Angry Birds Seasons. Whoopee! But if the game wants to remain relevant and keep people interested, they can't just release Angry Birds Arbor Day — they need to reflect the real life battles of newsmakers and celebs!

NEW EDITIONS OF ANGRY BIRDS

WE'D LIKE TO SEE

ANGRY BIRDS REPUBLICAN PARTY EDITION

The political survival of the Republican Party is at stake! Dish out revenge on the "Kenyan-born illegal immigrant" who trounced John McCain in 2008. Use the supercharged, rhetorical fury of 2012 GOP candidates Romney, Bachmann, Paul, Gingrich and others to crush President Obama and his ultra-left wing cabinet in the White House.

ANGRY BIRDS FACEBOOK EDITION

The ownership of Facebook is at stake! Dish out revenge on the scrawny, ruthless twerp who took all the credit for inventing it and screwed poor Cameron and Tyler Winklevoss out of a fortune they richly deserve. Permanently de-friend Mark Zuckerberg by smashing his corporate headquarters with explosive lawsuits.

ANGRY BIRDS CHARLIE SHEEN EDITION

The future of CBS's primetime schedule is at stake! Dish out revenge on the dysfunctional, overpaid, out-of-control addict who got fired from Two And A Half Men for being a douchebag and then tried to convince everyone that he was "winning." Eradicate from the public eye forever Charlie and his skanks holed up at the "Sober Valley Lodge" by pulverizing him with family members Martin Sheen and Emilio Estevez and sitcom producer Chuck Lorre.

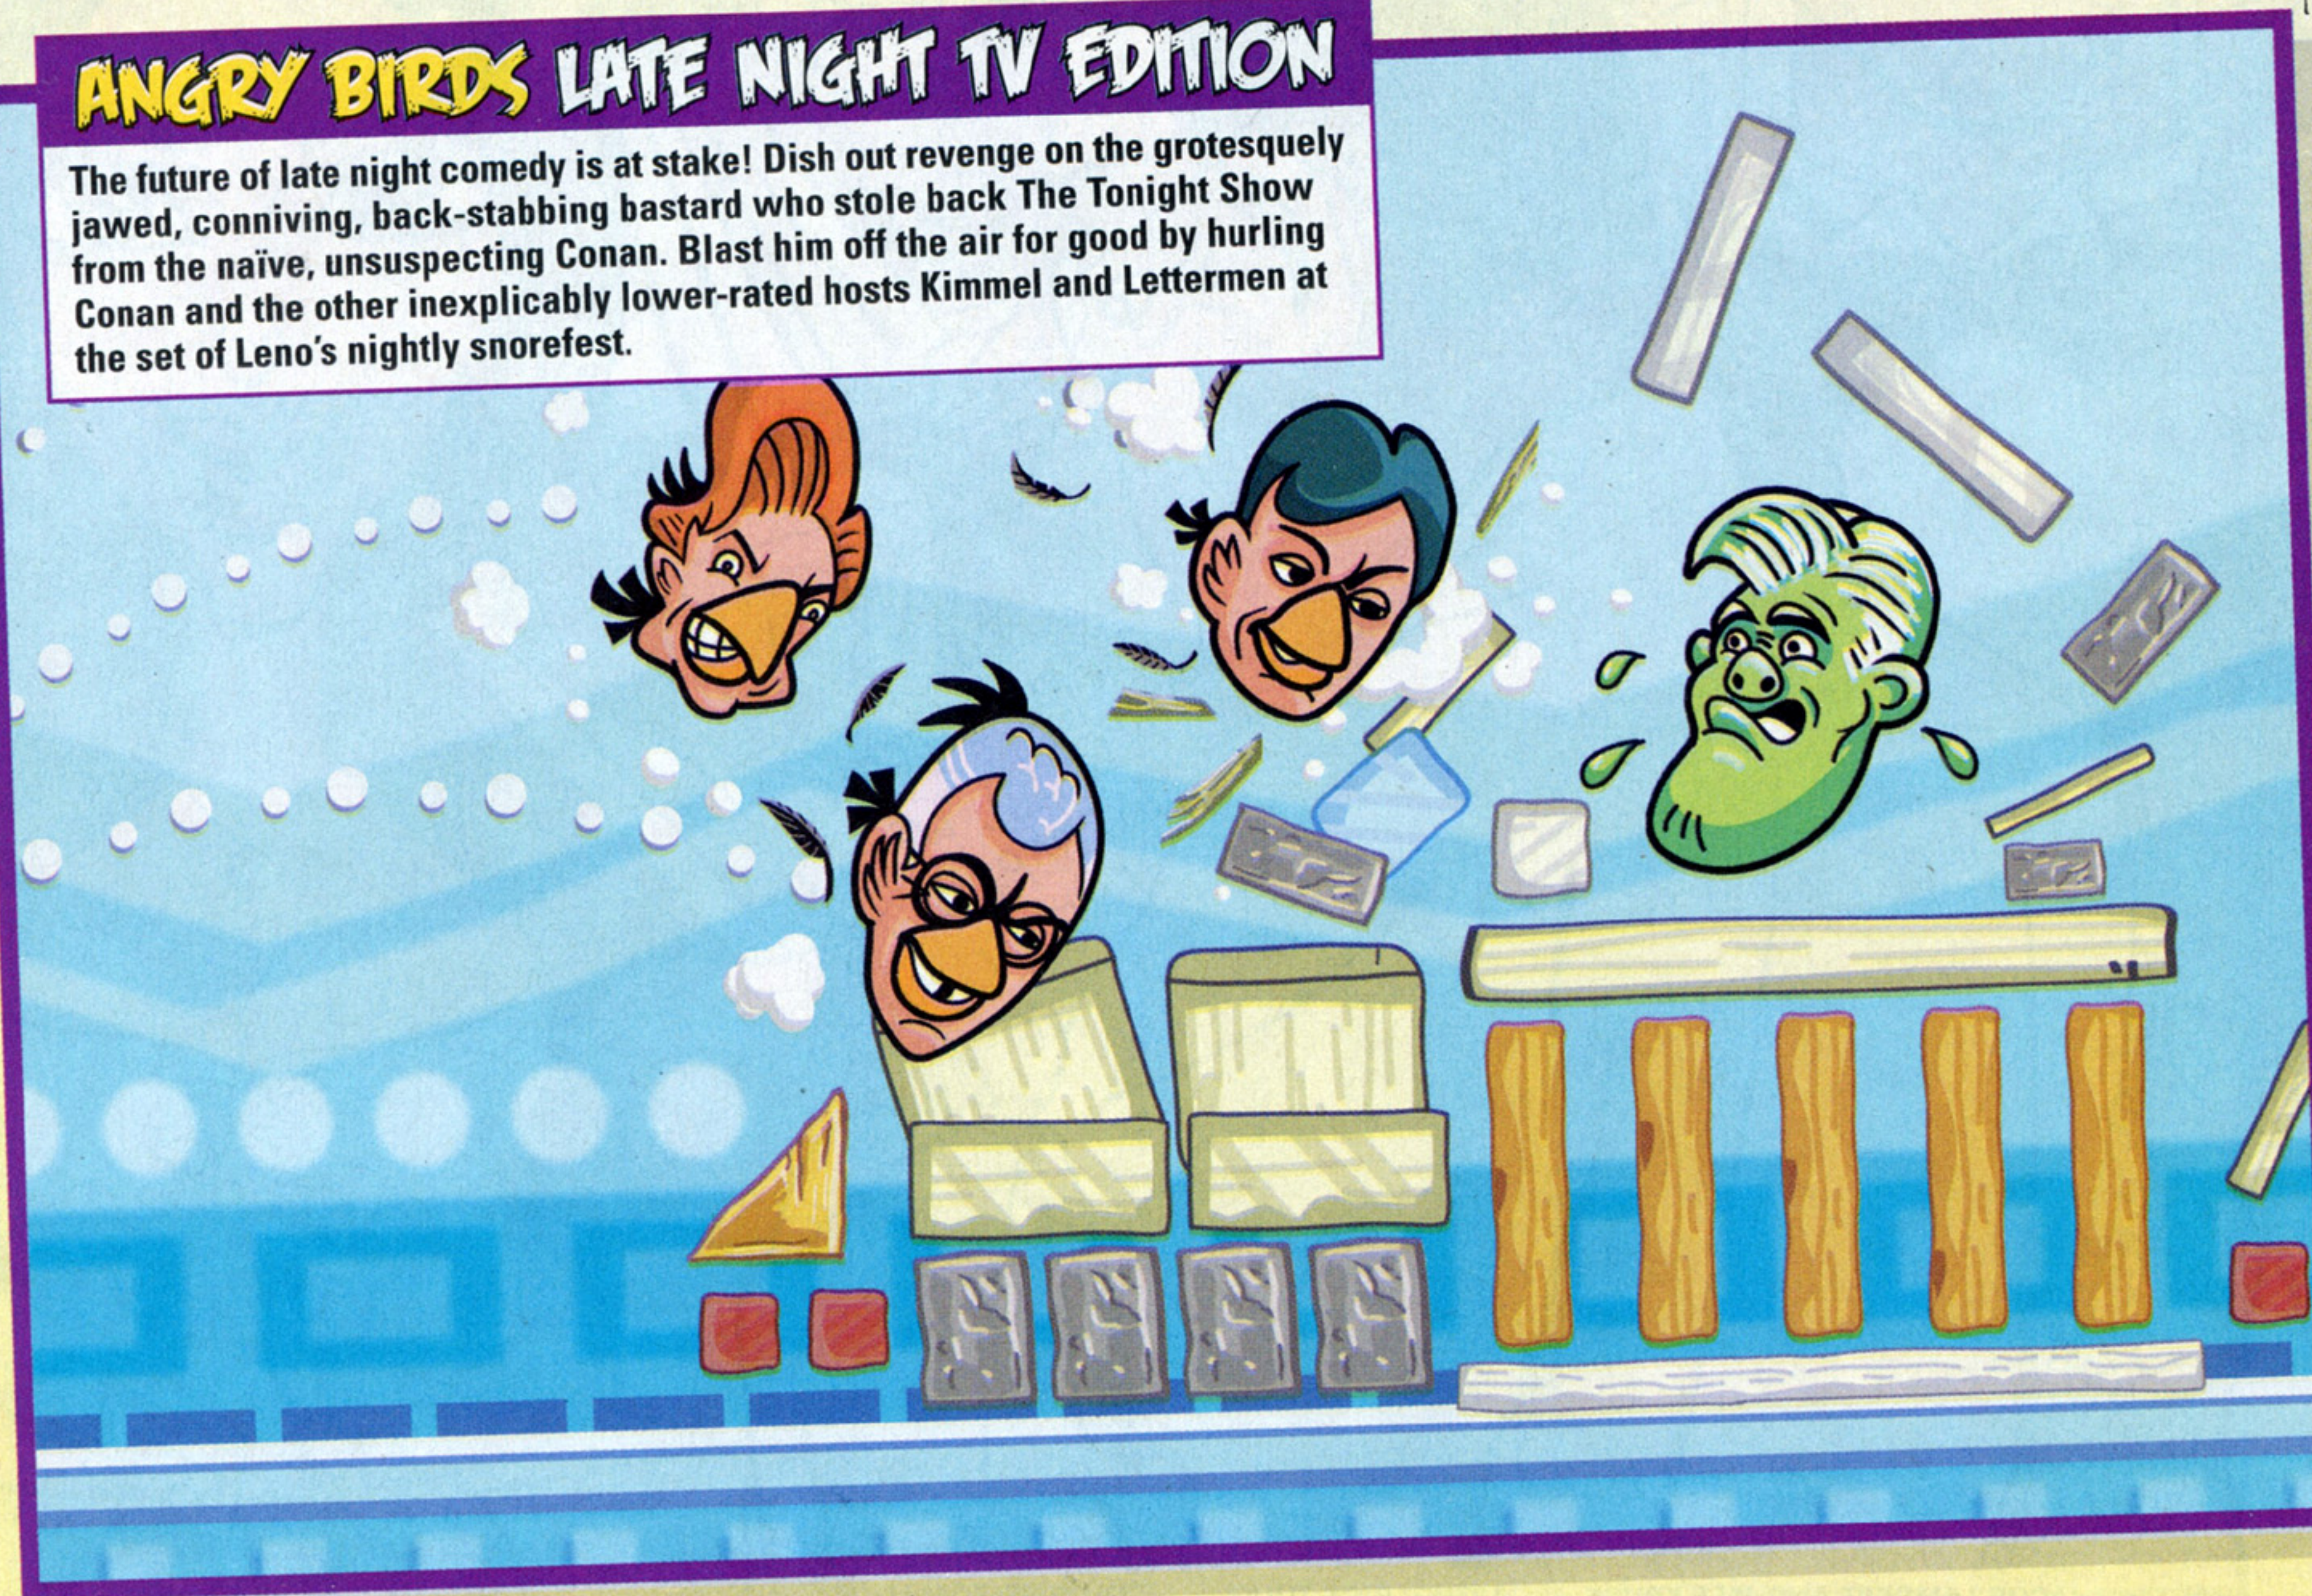

ANGRY BIRDS DONALD TRUMP EDITION

The integrity of America's political process is at stake! Dish out revenge on the shallow, narcissistic megalomaniac who based his election hopes on convincing as many as possible that President Obama is a "Kenyan-born illegal immigrant." Use the outraged mocking by Jerry Seinfeld, Howard Stern, Robert DeNiro and other celebrities he's feuded with to destroy the pretentious tower that bears his annoyingly self-promotional name. (Extra points for inflicting damage to his hair.)

ANGRY BIRDS LATE NIGHT TV EDITION

The future of late night comedy is at stake! Dish out revenge on the grotesquely jawed, conniving, back-stabbing bastard who stole back The Tonight Show from the naïve, unsuspecting Conan. Blast him off the air for good by hurling Conan and the other inexplicably lower-rated hosts Kimmel and Letterman at the set of Leno's nightly snorefest.

The Brits can prattle on all they want about Harry and Kate's recent wedding. It's here, across the pond, where the marital event of the season...no the century...no the millennium...is taking place. And since invitations to this truly marvelous event are strictly limited to the bride and groom's family, closest friends, and every working media outlet on the planet, the only way MAD readers will be able to share in this wonderful day is by reading the following:

OVERHEARD at the Kardashian Wedding

I now pronounce you Kim Kardashian and The Guy Who's Married to Kim Kardashian.

So how long do you think it'll be before she trades him for a player to be named later?

How cute! The little bride on top of the cake also has a ginormous ass.

I hope Chris isn't nervous. There are more people here than ever come to a Nets game!

Is Harvey Levin on the bride's side or the groom's side?

I can't believe she made it through the whole ceremony without cheating on him!

It's so sad that Bruce Jenner's nose couldn't be here for this.

Don't worry, dear — what we've lost in a son, we've gained in a vapid mannequin whore!

I haven't seen Kim this emotional since minute four of her sex tape!

I can't help it: I always cry at manufactured, cynical media creations!

This is the dumbest thing a basketball player's done since LeBron did The Decision!

Superstar athletes and top actresses never have lasting marriages. Happily, that doesn't apply here.

Those vows were the emptiest words a Kardashian's uttered since her father defended O.J.!

Of course her mom is crying — it's in her contract.

September 2, 2011

Today's the last Friday of summer. There's something just depressing about knowing that, next Tuesday, I have to go back to school. I tried talking to my parents about it, but my dad was just like, "Oh, so after three months of vacation, you only have four days left? Yeah. That must be really hard." I feel like he might've been being sarcastic.

September 3, 2011

I've been reading some old "Green Lantern" comics. It's weird to me that someone created a super hero whose weakness was the color yellow. Like, it seems to me like you're a pretty lame crimefighter if you can be killed by a banana.

CAN IT KILL GREEN LANTERN?

NO.

NO.

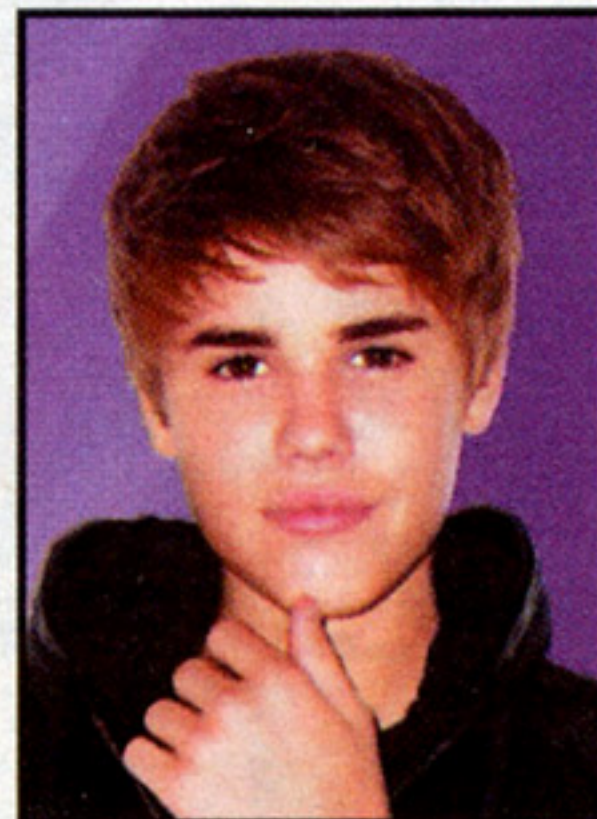

YES.

September 5, 2011

Today's Labor Day. I asked my parents what the day is supposed to celebrate, and my mom told me it's a salute to the labor movement, which fought for stuff like the eight-hour day and the five-day workweek. I told her that, in honor of the labor movement, I wouldn't be setting the table tonight. My mom said that, if that was the case, she'd salute the labor movement by not making dinner tonight. And my dad said that he'd do his part by not driving us to the movies after dinner. So I said, "Fine, I'll set the table." And my dad said, "Congratulations. Now you understand how strikes get resolved."

September 6, 2011

Today was the first day of school. The good news is, I got a new locker, in a much better location than the one I had last year, which was right next to the cafeteria, so all my stuff wound up smelling sort of like Sloppy Joes. The bad news is, it's a bottom locker. And even worse, it's below Beth Carmichael, who's the editor of the yearbook and captain of the volleyball squad, whose friends all cluster around her between classes to hang out and talk – which makes it impossible for me to get to my locker. Today I had to wait until the bell rang, just to get my Spanish workbook, and Señora Lutz yelled at me for being late. I tried to explain that I was only late because Beth and her friends couldn't decide whether Justin Bieber's haircut made him look too much like Hilary Swank, but I didn't know the Spanish word for "haircut." (Also: Yes. It does.)

September 7, 2011

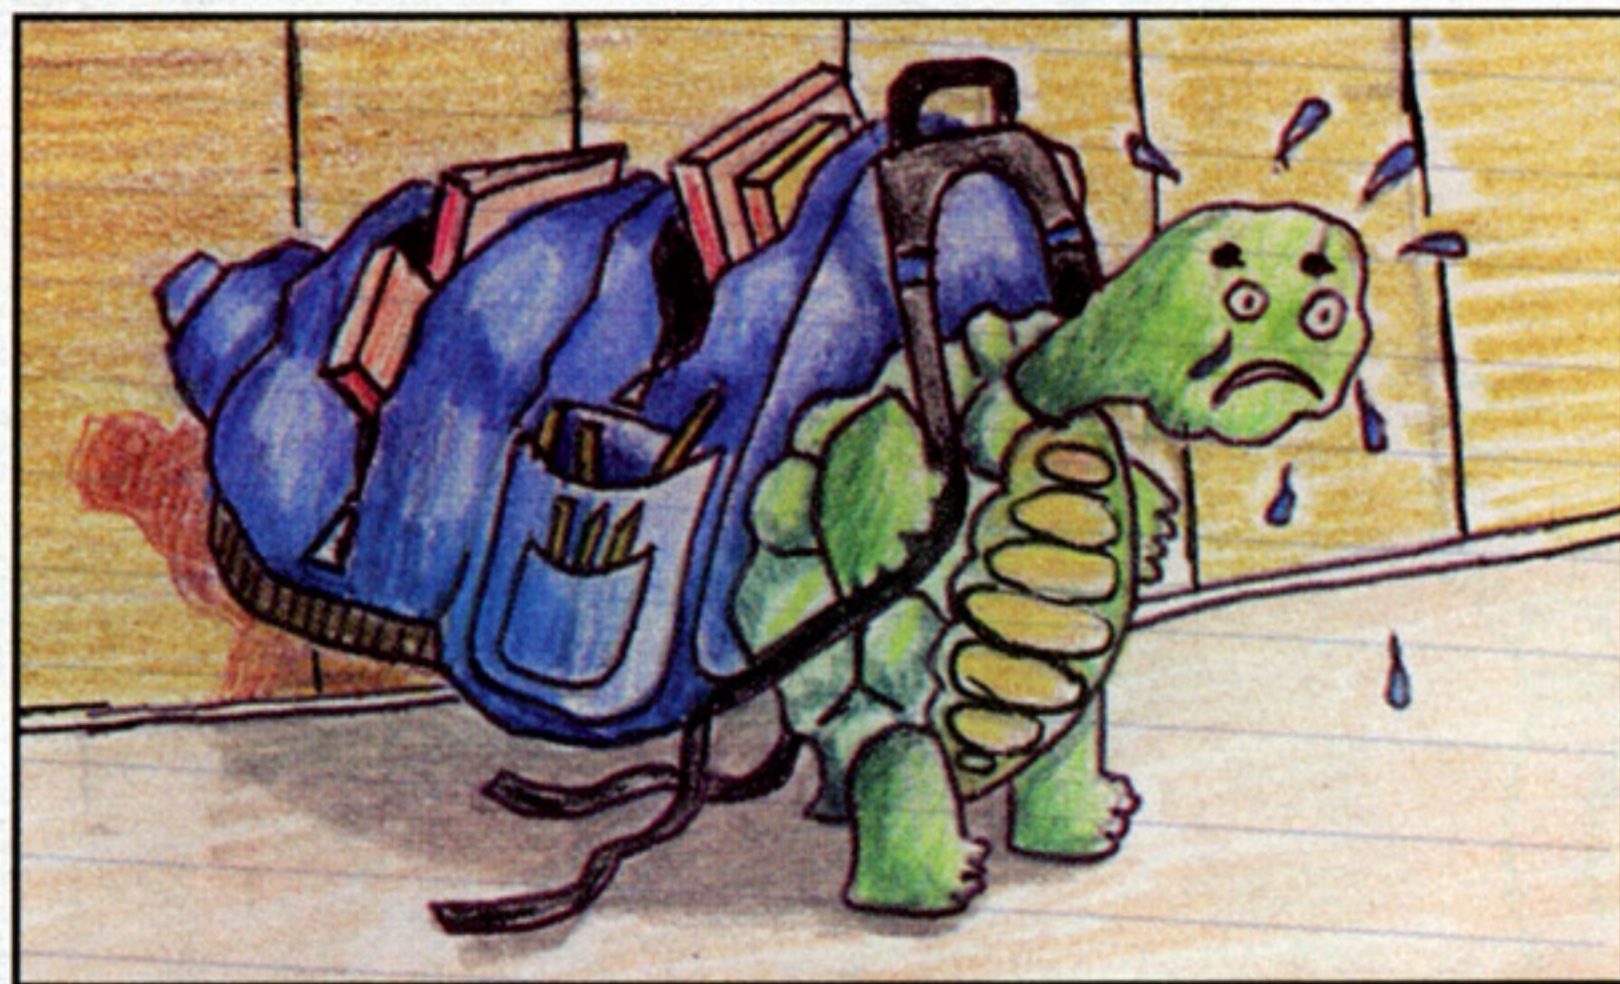

OK, this locker situation is getting bad. Today, I tried to get into my locker to get my geometry book, and Beth's friend Jessica glared at me and said, "Ex-CUSE me. We're having a PRIVATE CONVERSATION." And then she rolled her eyes and went back to talking to Beth. So I wound up being late to geometry – if I get one more tardy notice, then I have an automatic detention.

Tomorrow, I think I'm just going to try carrying all my books around with me.

September 8, 2011

OK. I'm never trying carrying all my books around with me again. My backpack got super-heavy, and by fifth period, I was hunched over, just trying to get to my next class. My friend Chuck saw me and said, "Man. You look like a sad turtle." So I went up to Beth at lunch and said, "I think we need to figure out a system for us to get our books between classes." And she said, "I'm sorry. Who are you?" It's not even that she doesn't care about me – she's had the locker above mine for a week, and doesn't even know who I am. It's like I'm invisible or something. This must be how Bruce Willis felt at the end of "The Sixth Sense."

Spoiler alert, by the way.

September 10, 2011

Today's Saturday. Spent the day celebrating the fact that I don't have to deal with Beth for two whole days by sitting on the couch, watching TV and eating Teddy Grahams.

I bet that, somewhere out there, there's some guy named Theodore Graham whose life got ruined by the invention of Teddy Grahams.

September 12, 2011

So, today at lunch, my friends Kevin and Chuck and I tried to figure out a solution for the whole Beth problem. Kevin suggested that maybe, if I put a sardine in my locker, it would smell so bad that Beth's friends wouldn't want to hang out there anymore. And Chuck said, "Wouldn't that make Tad's stuff smell all sardine-y, too?" And Kevin said, "Oh, yeah. Right. I forgot about that."

We agreed that I have no options – Chuck said that the last time he saw a girl be this mean to me, it was after I asked April Lee to the spring dance and she avoided me for the rest of the school year.

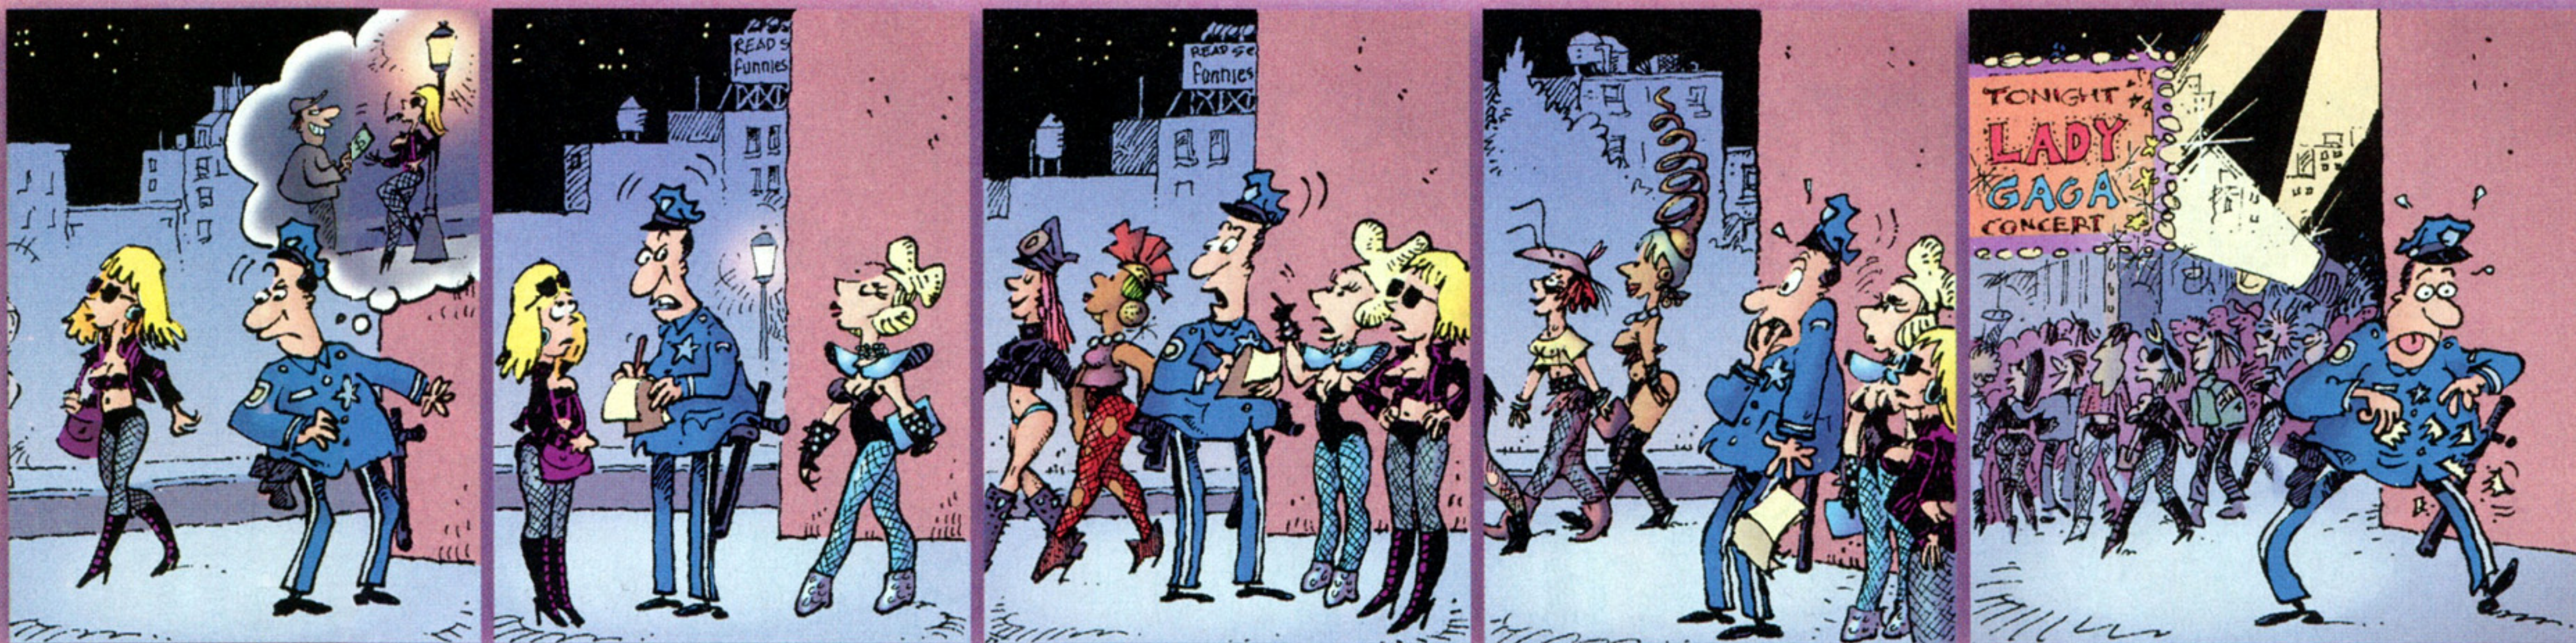

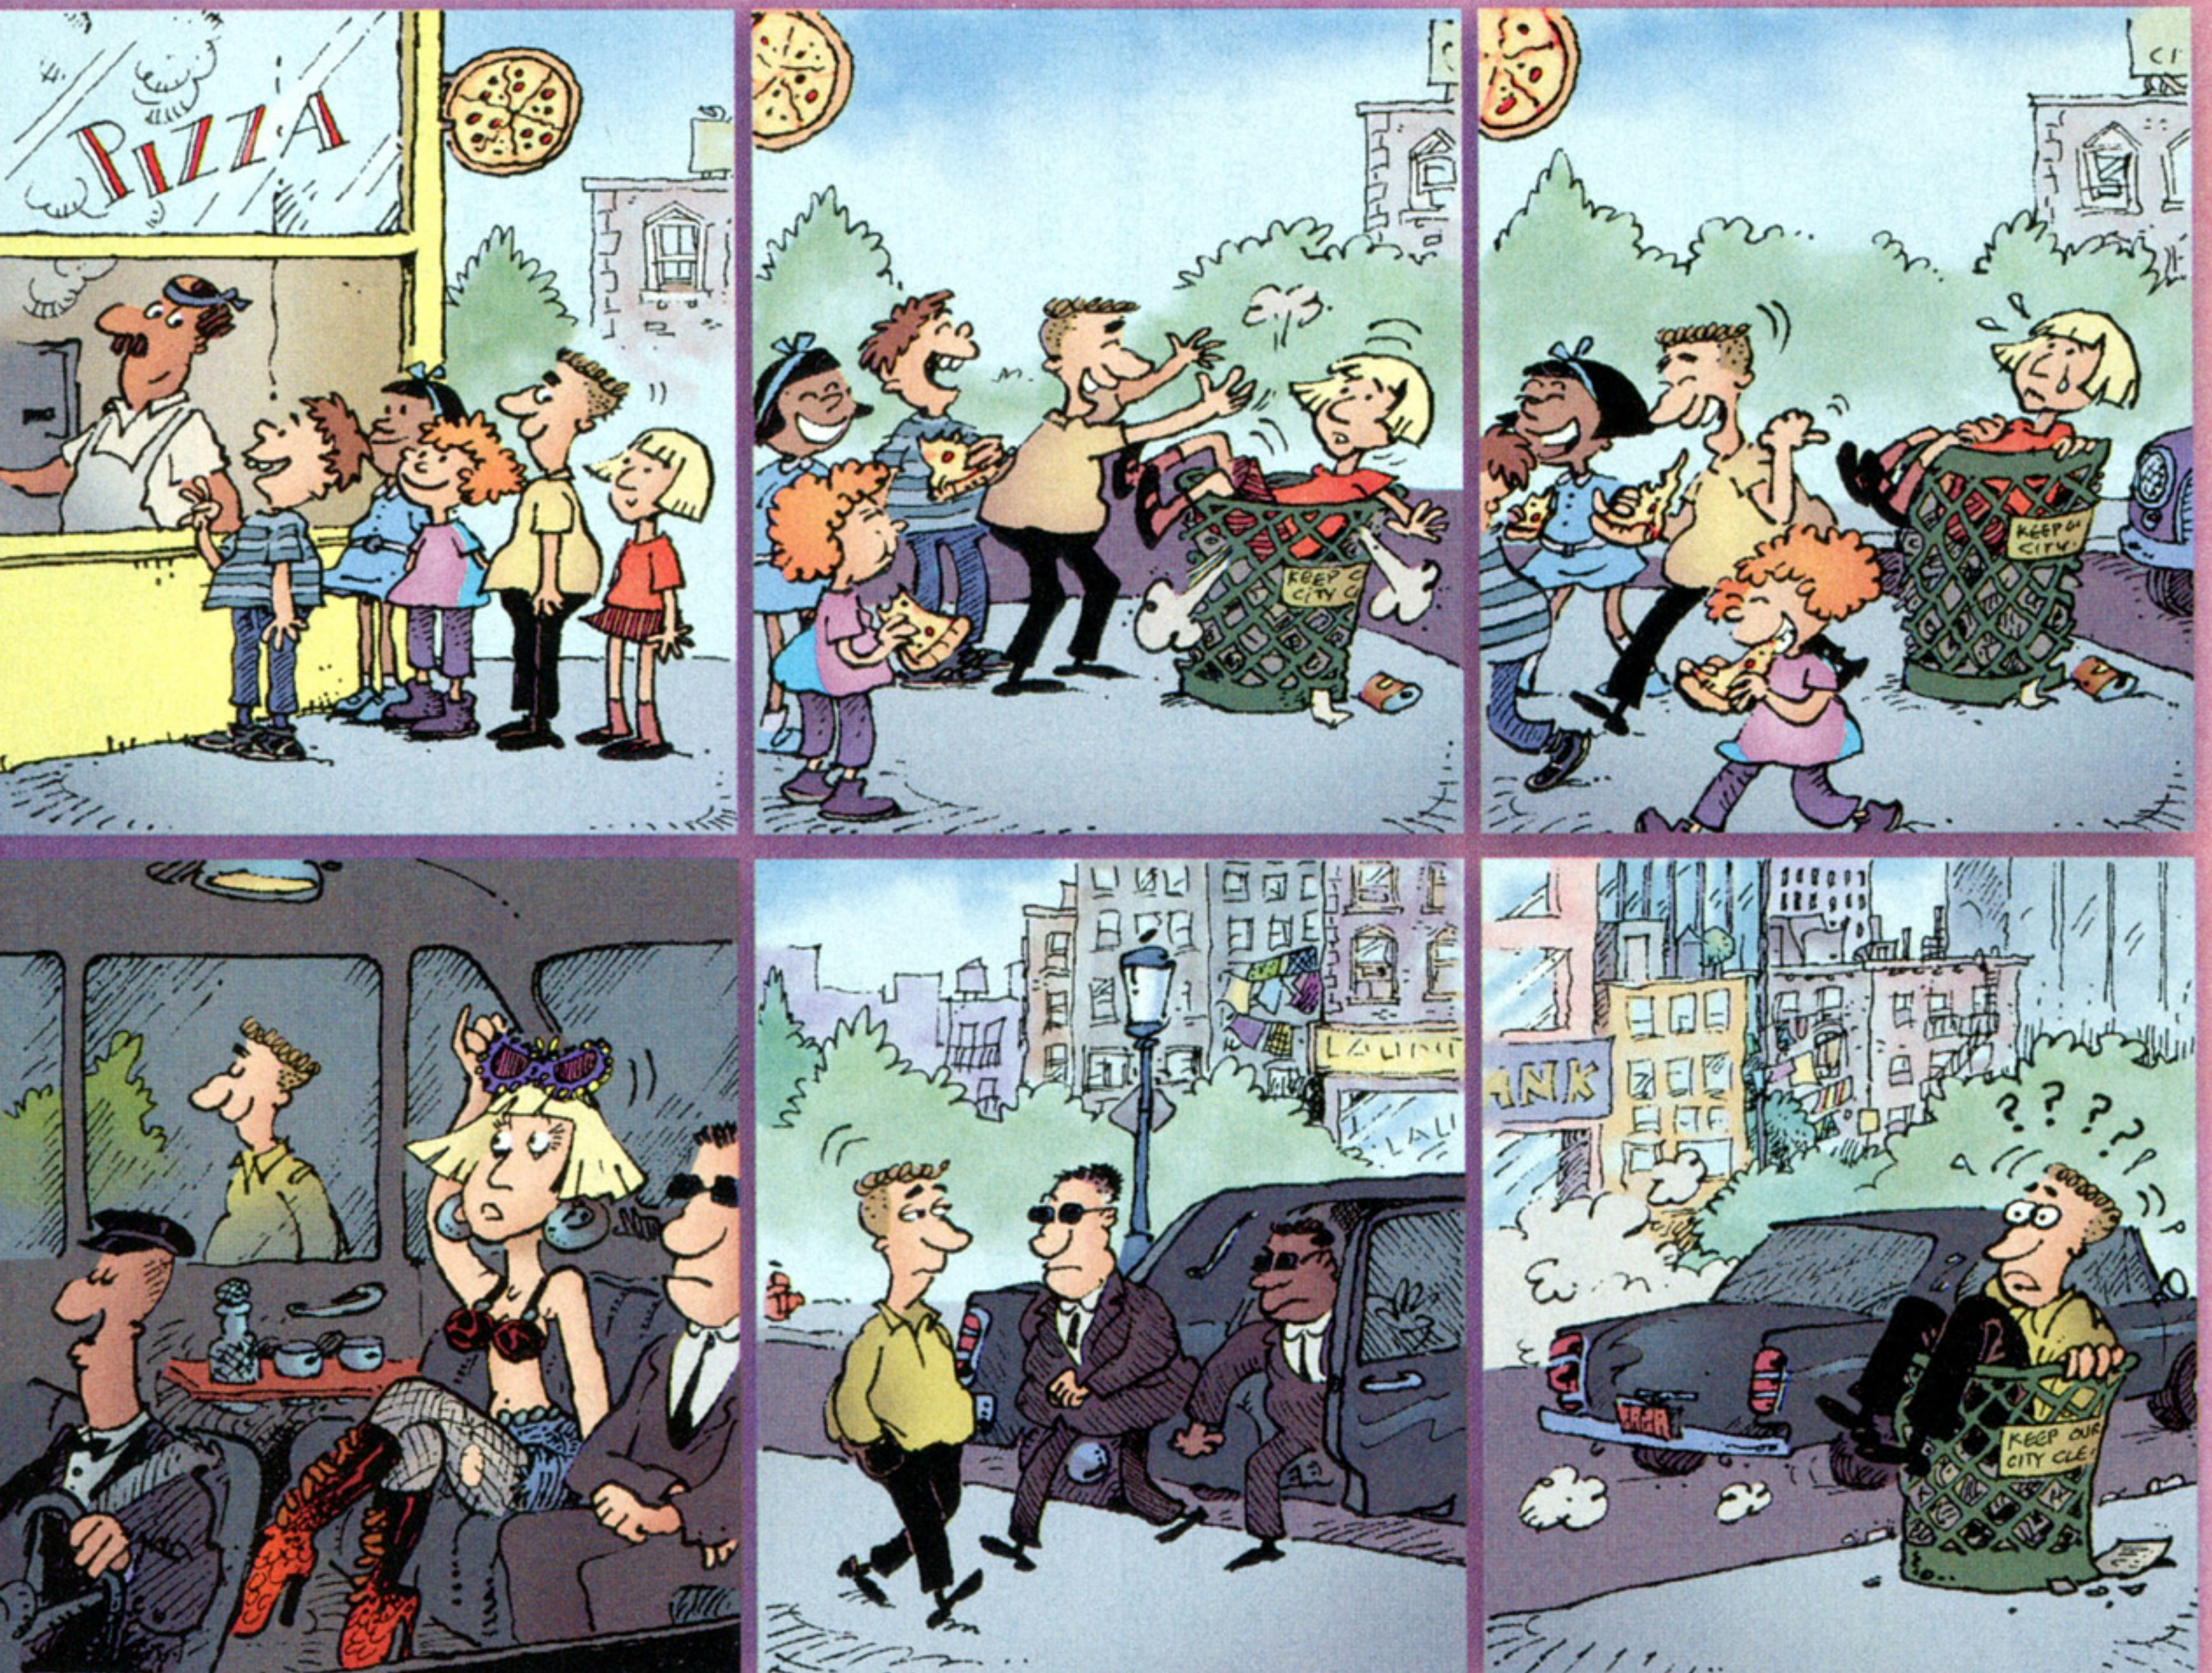

Wait a minute.

I just had an idea. I think I've figured out how to get my locker back.

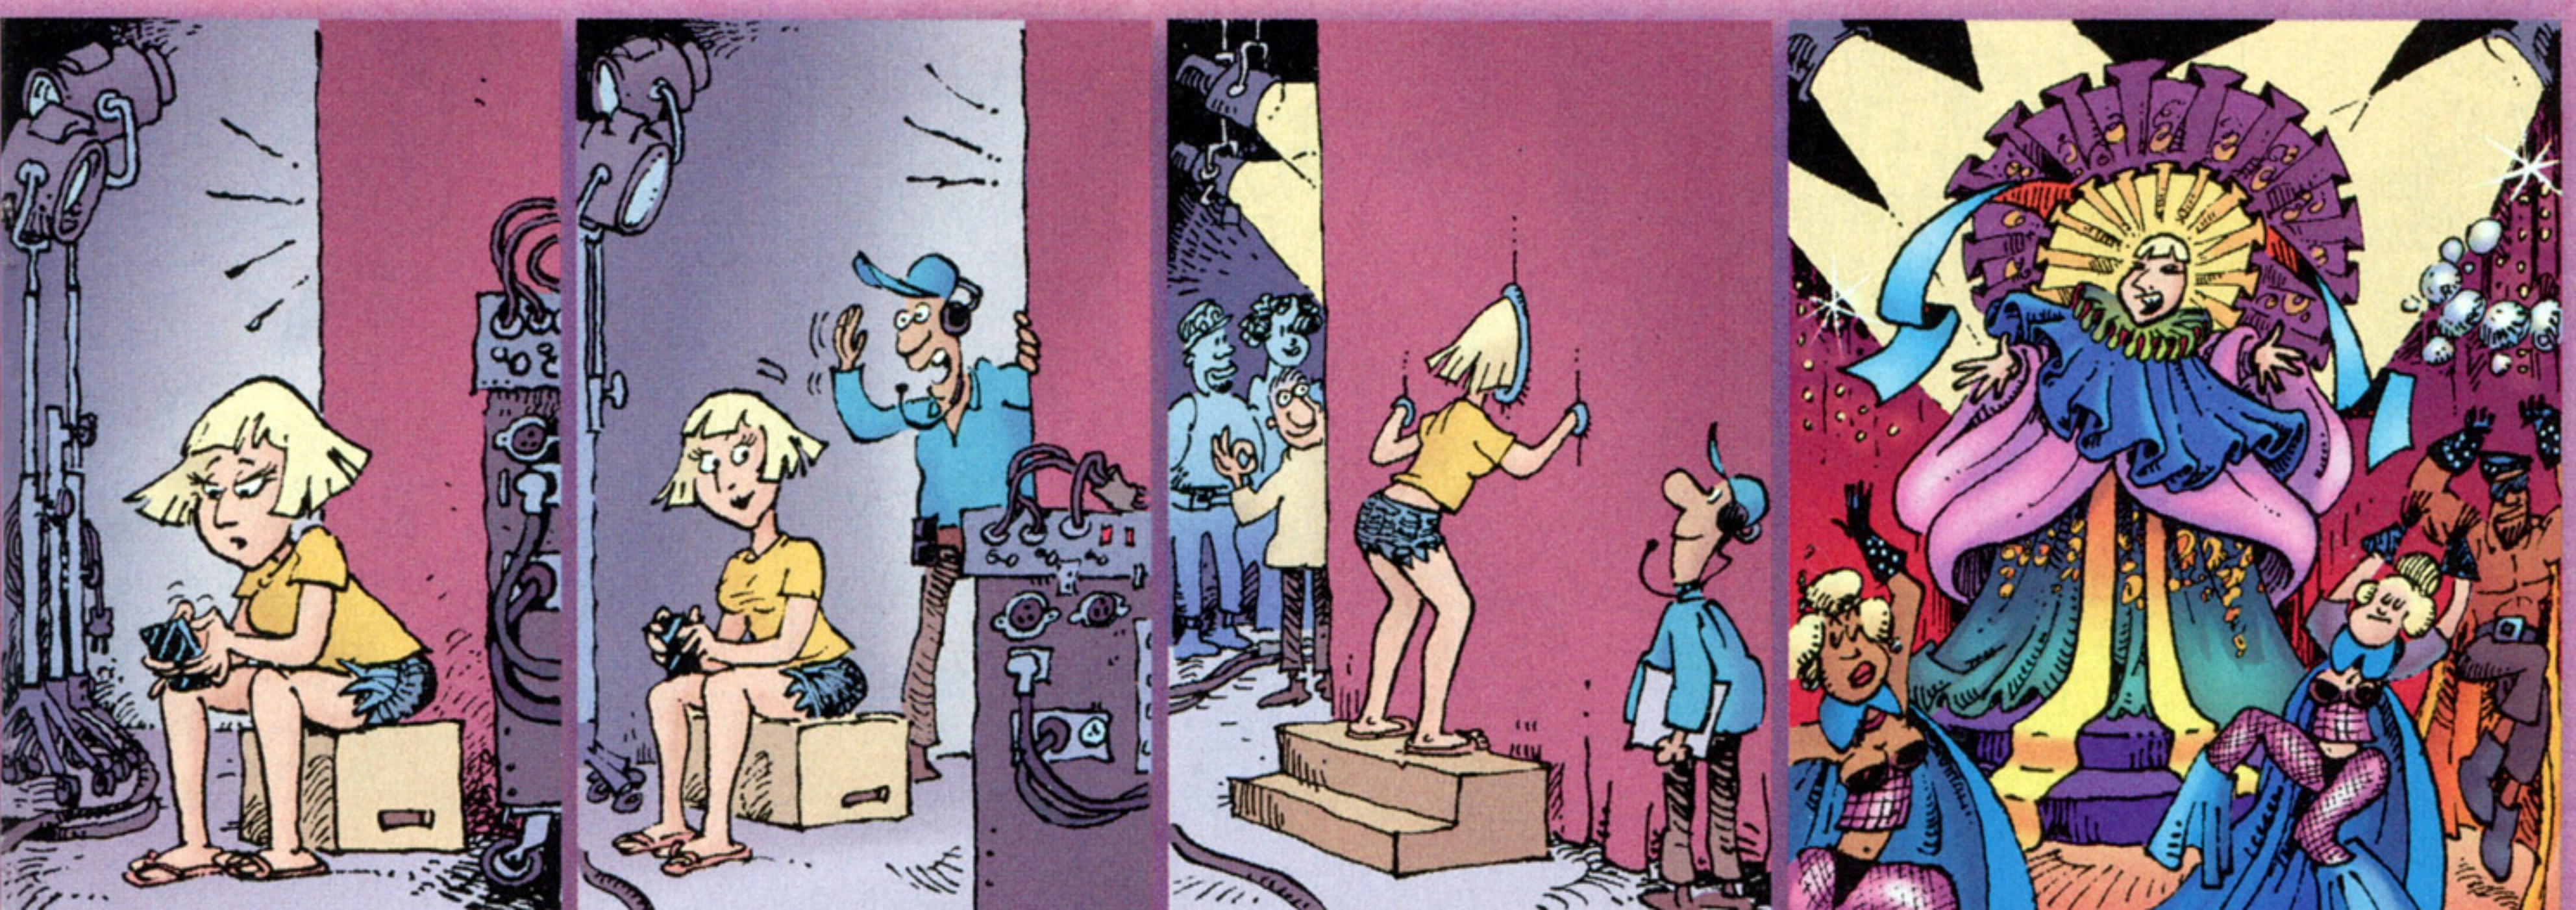

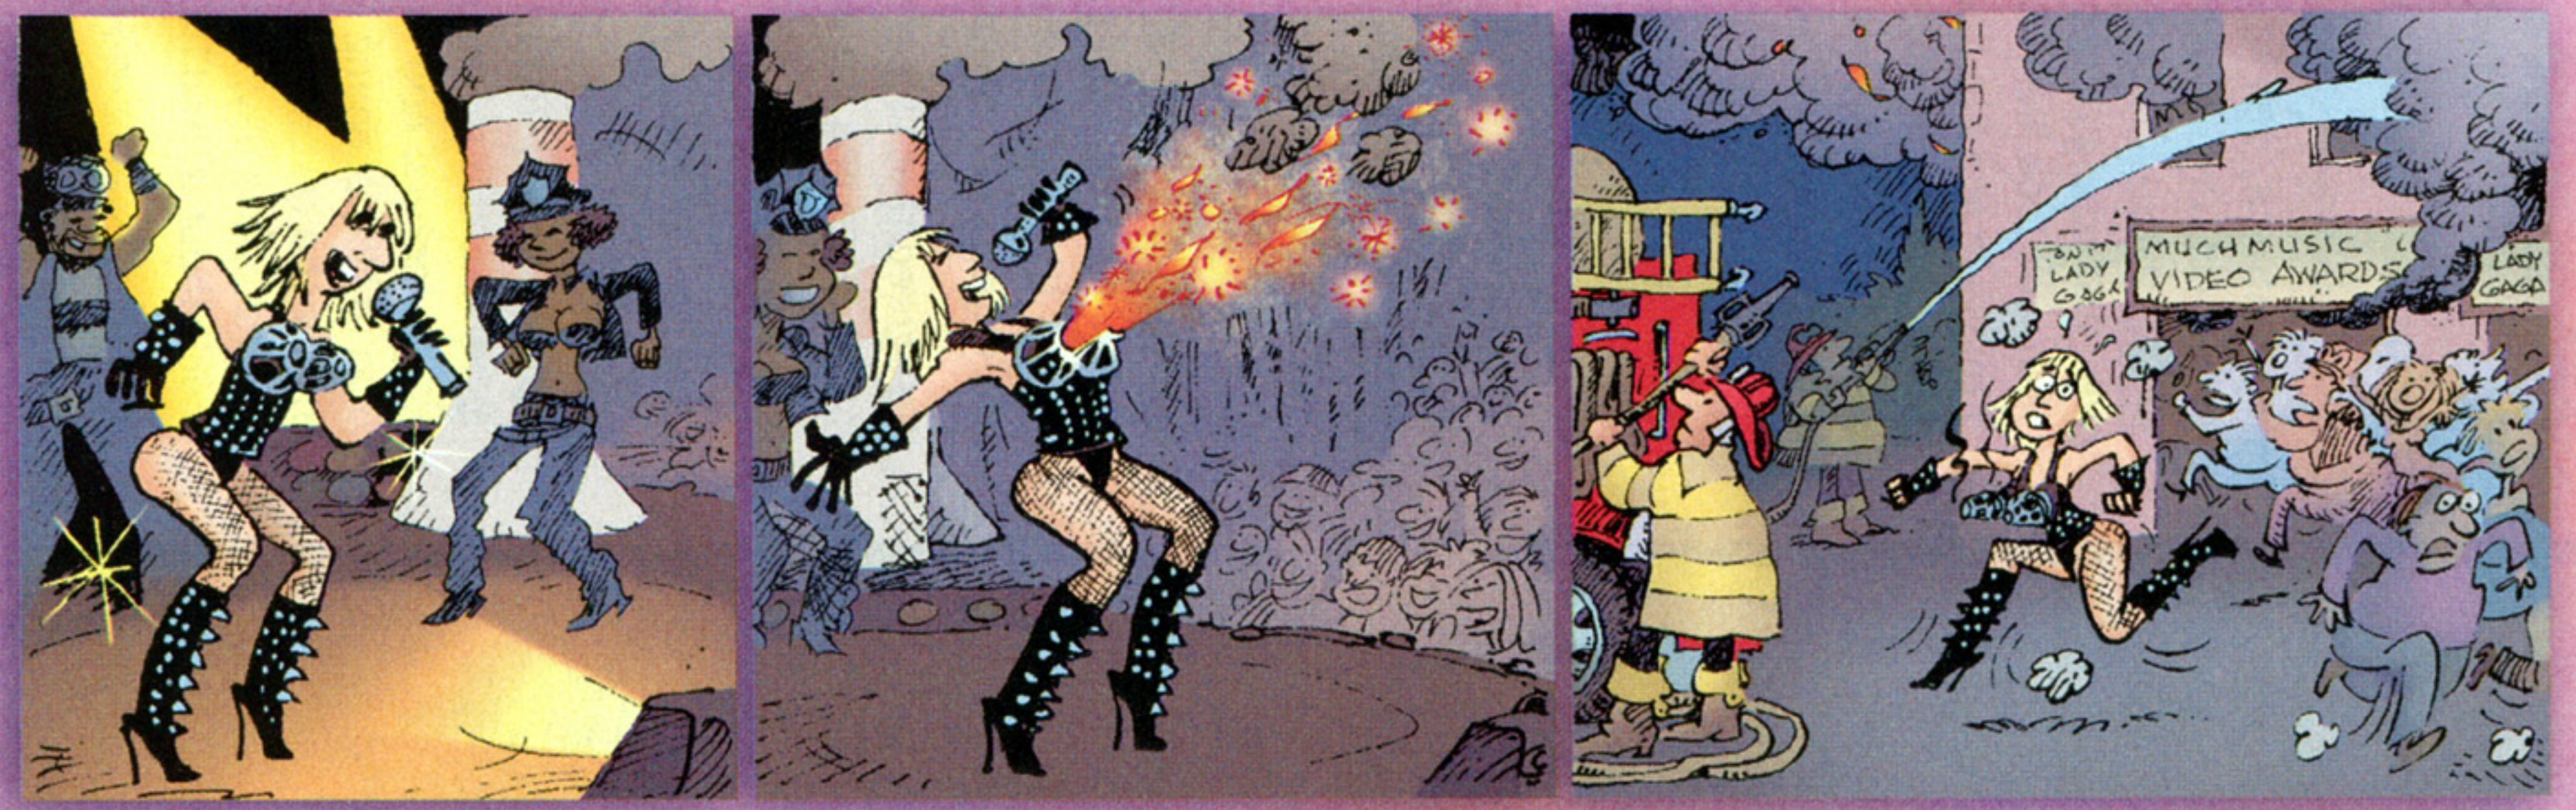

September 13, 2011

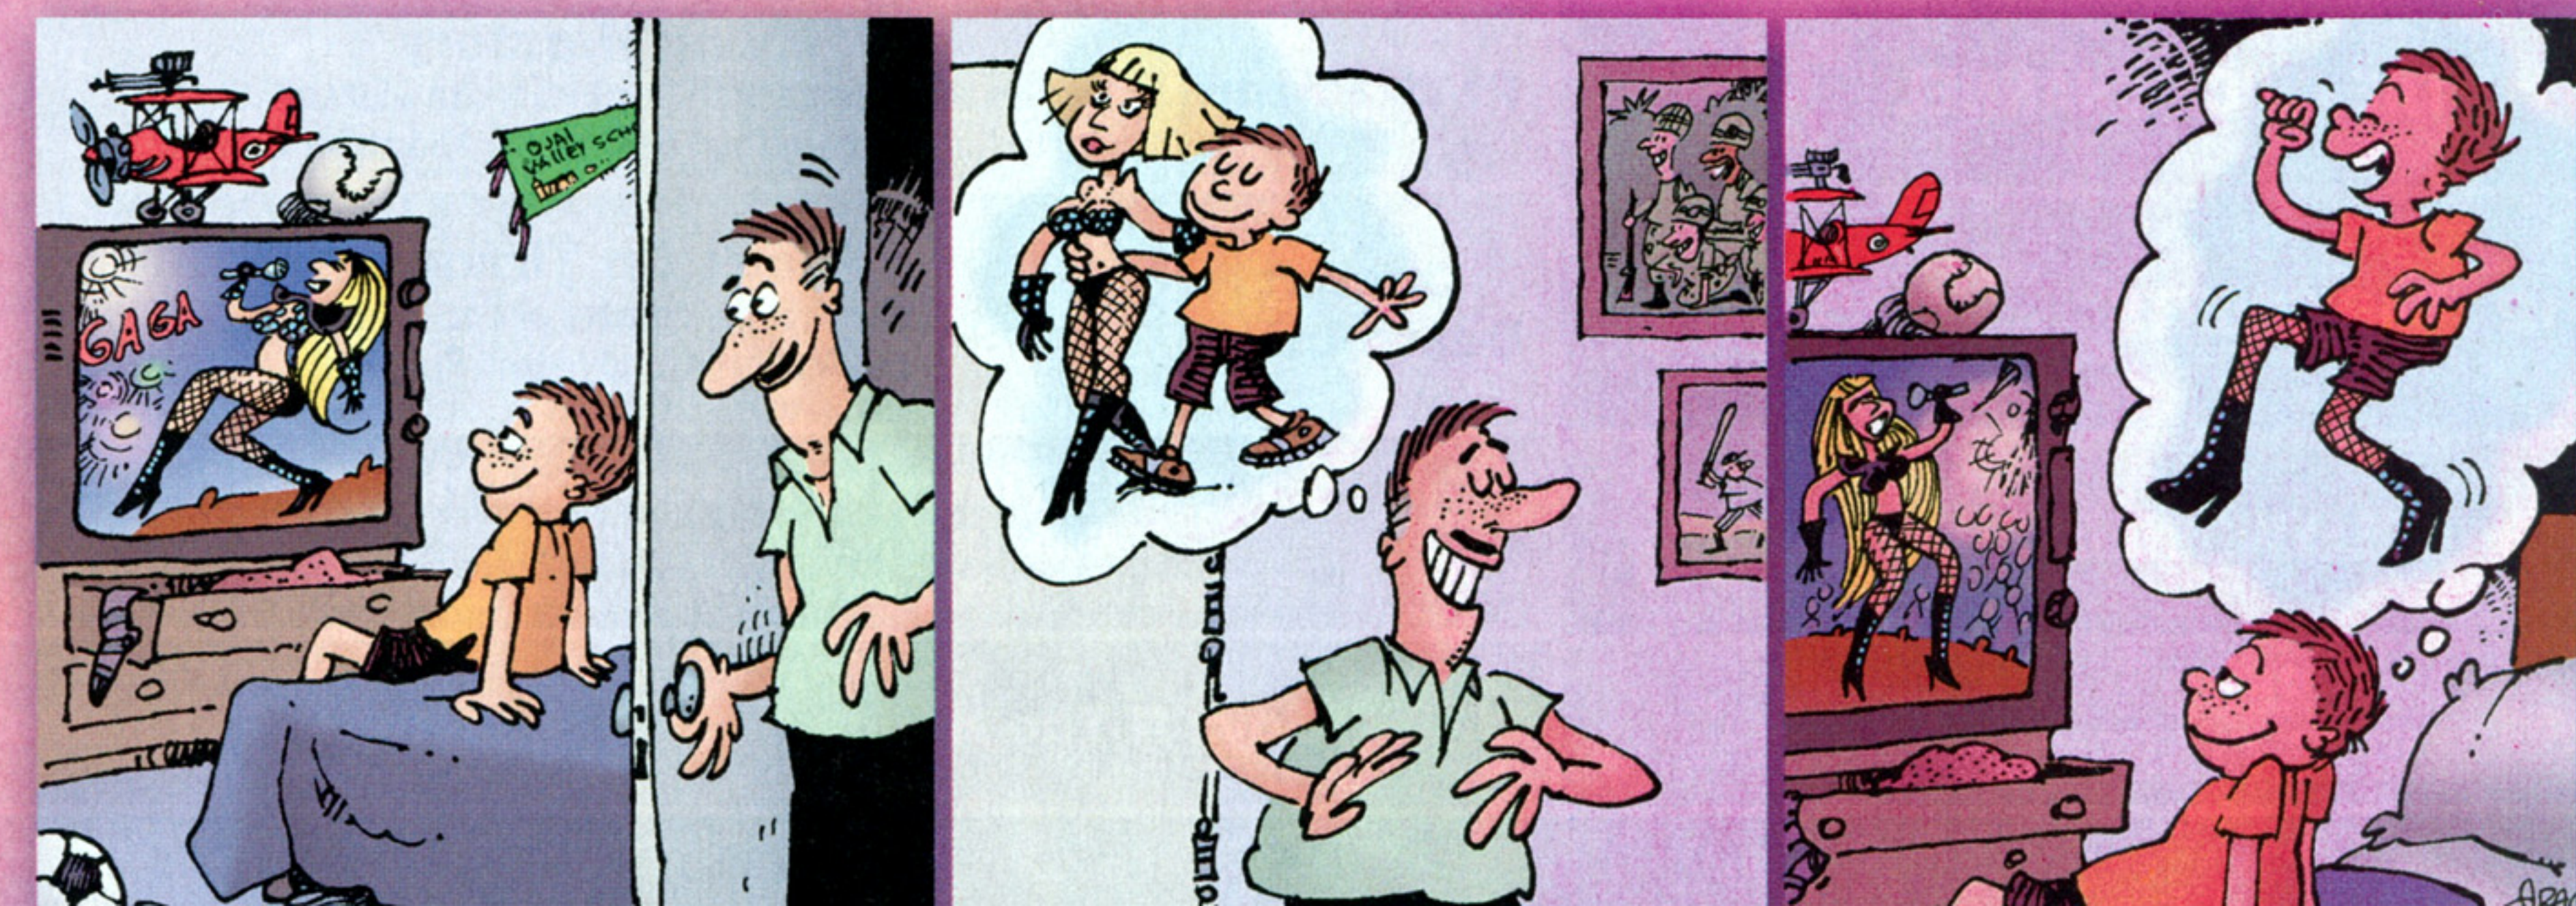

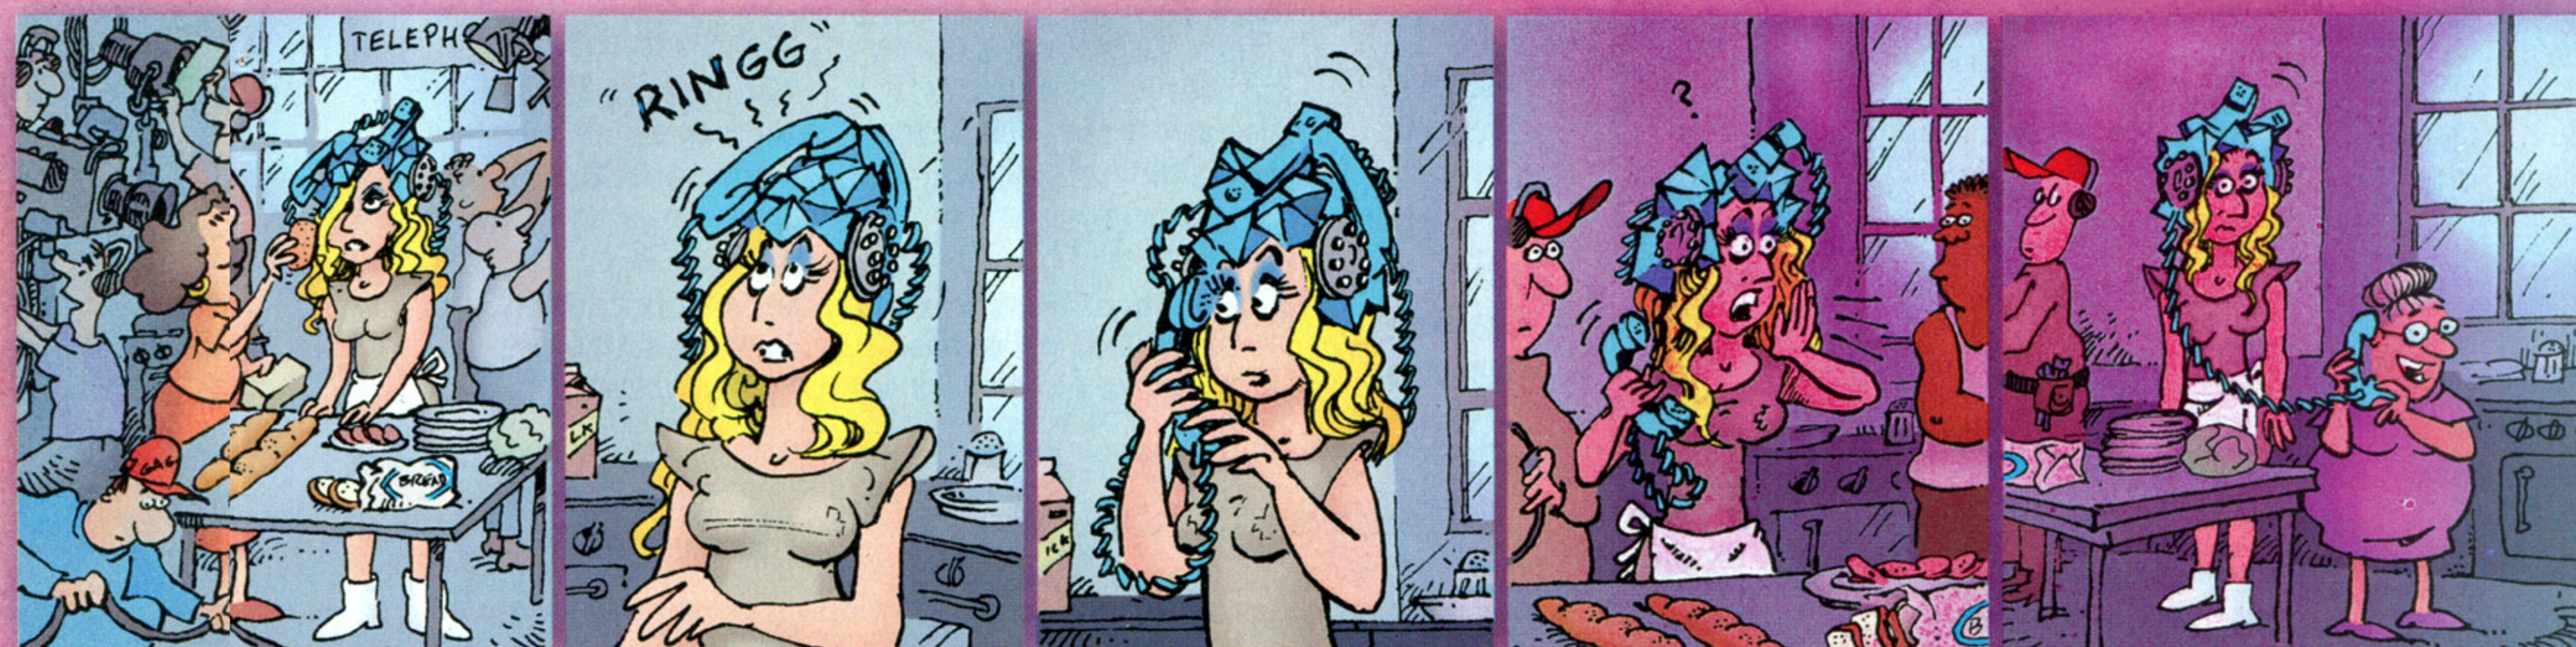

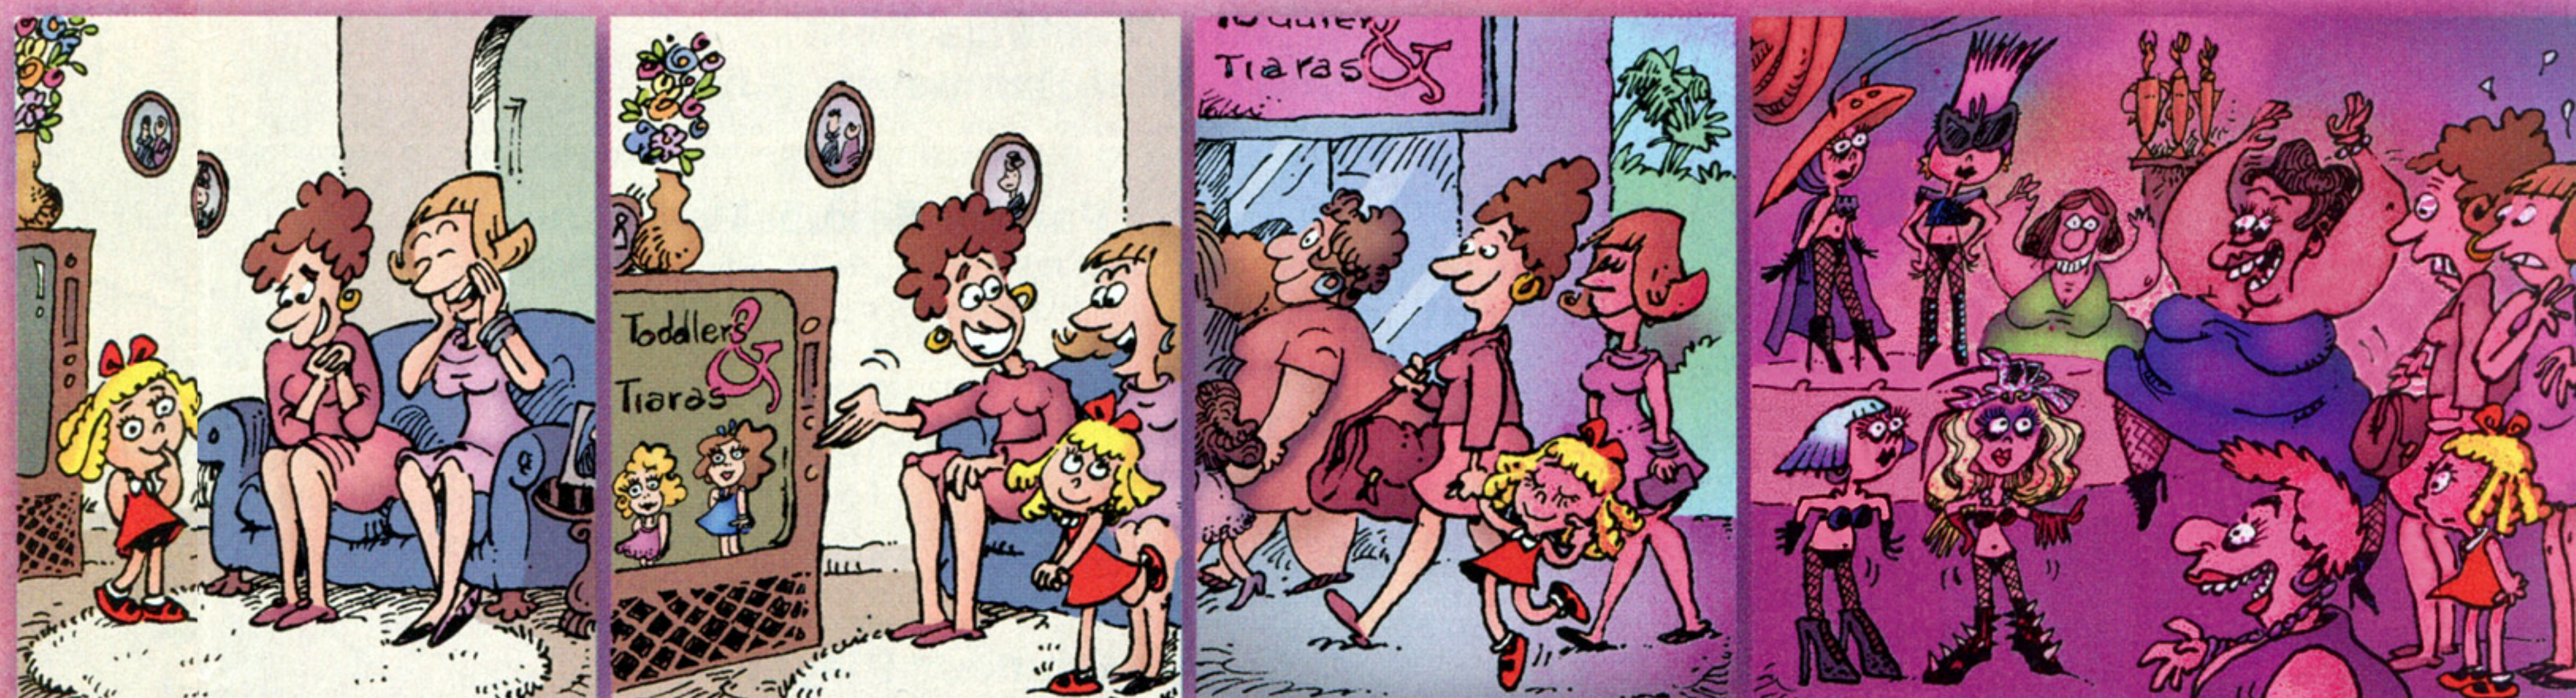

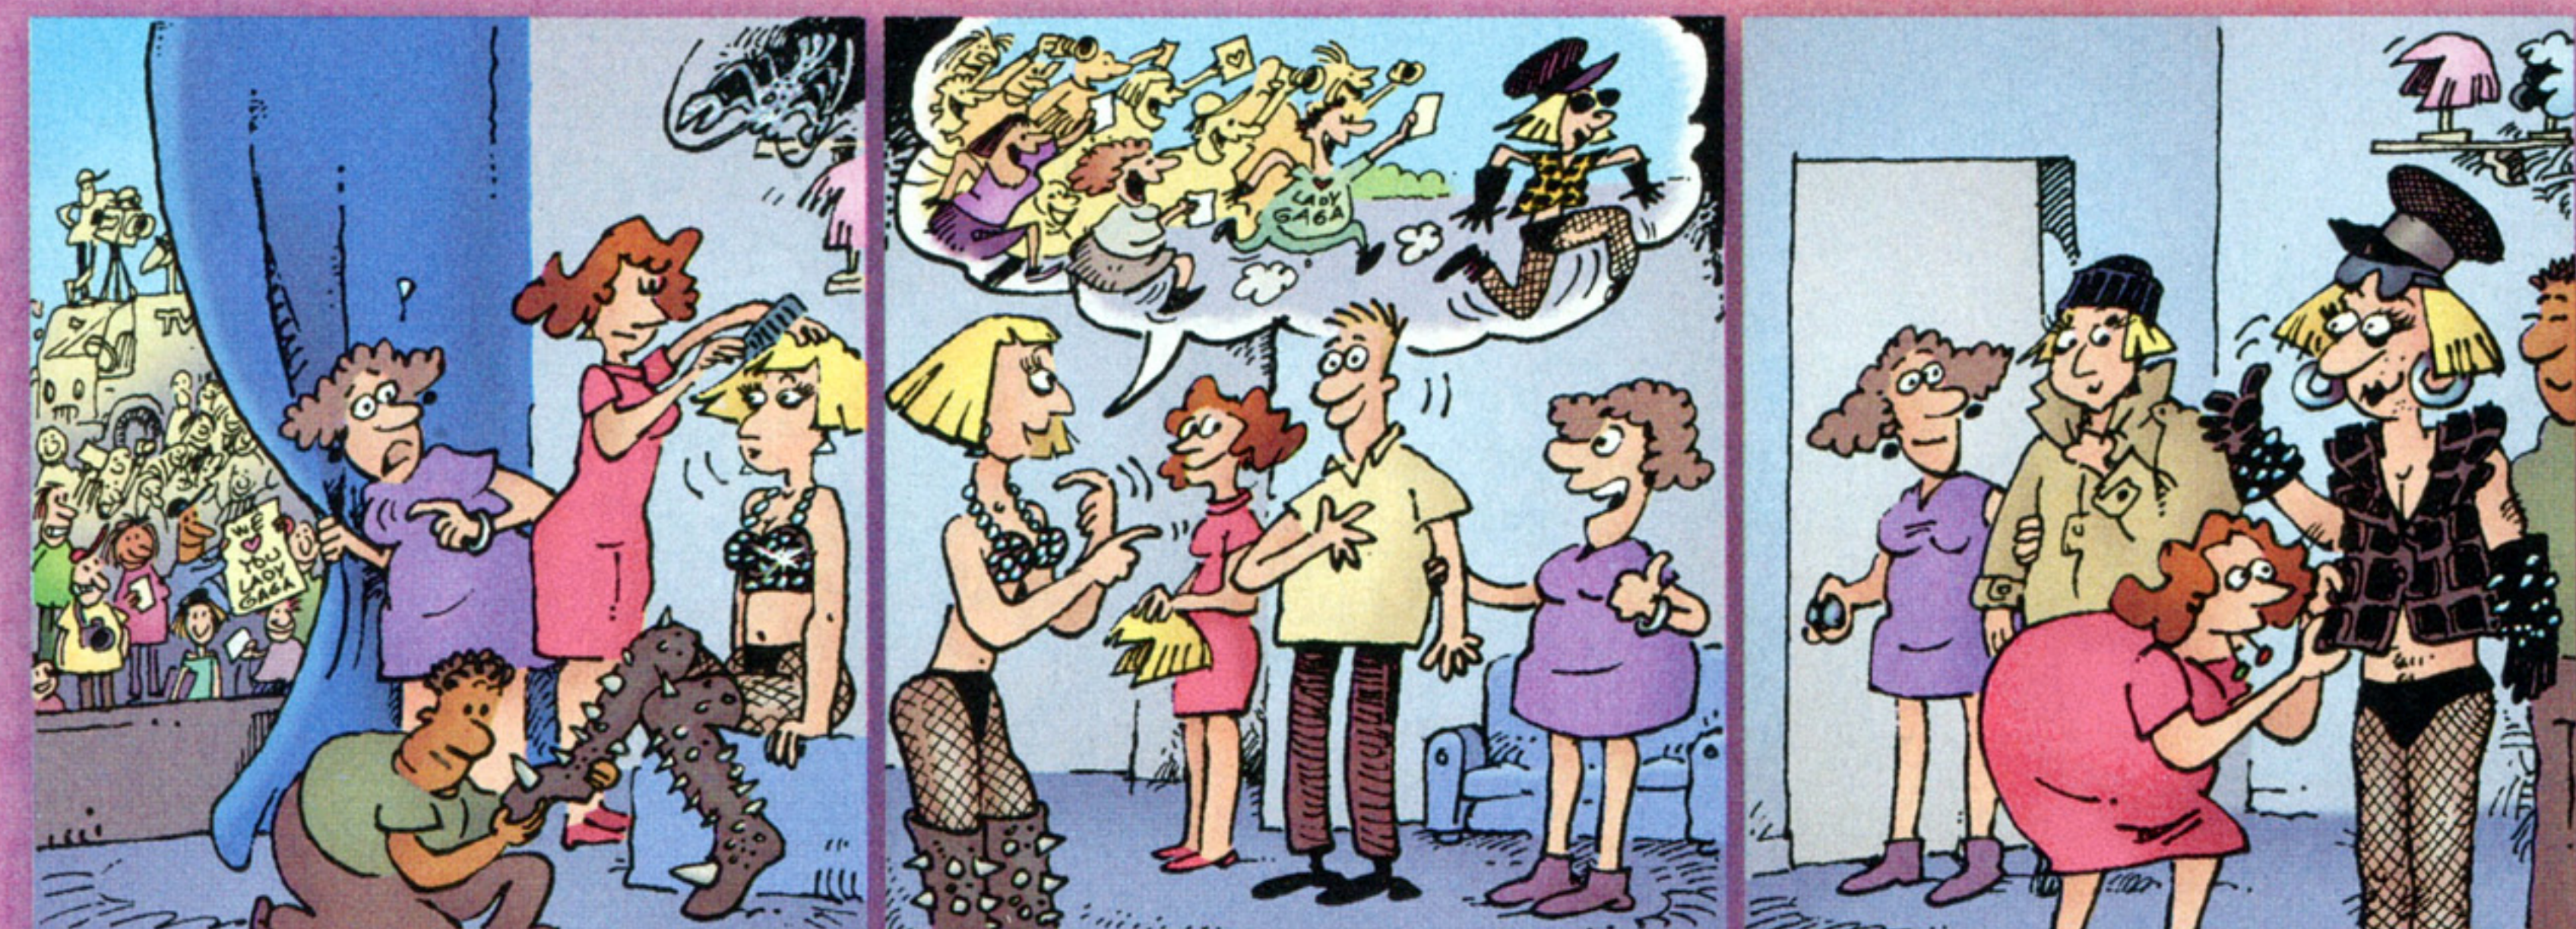

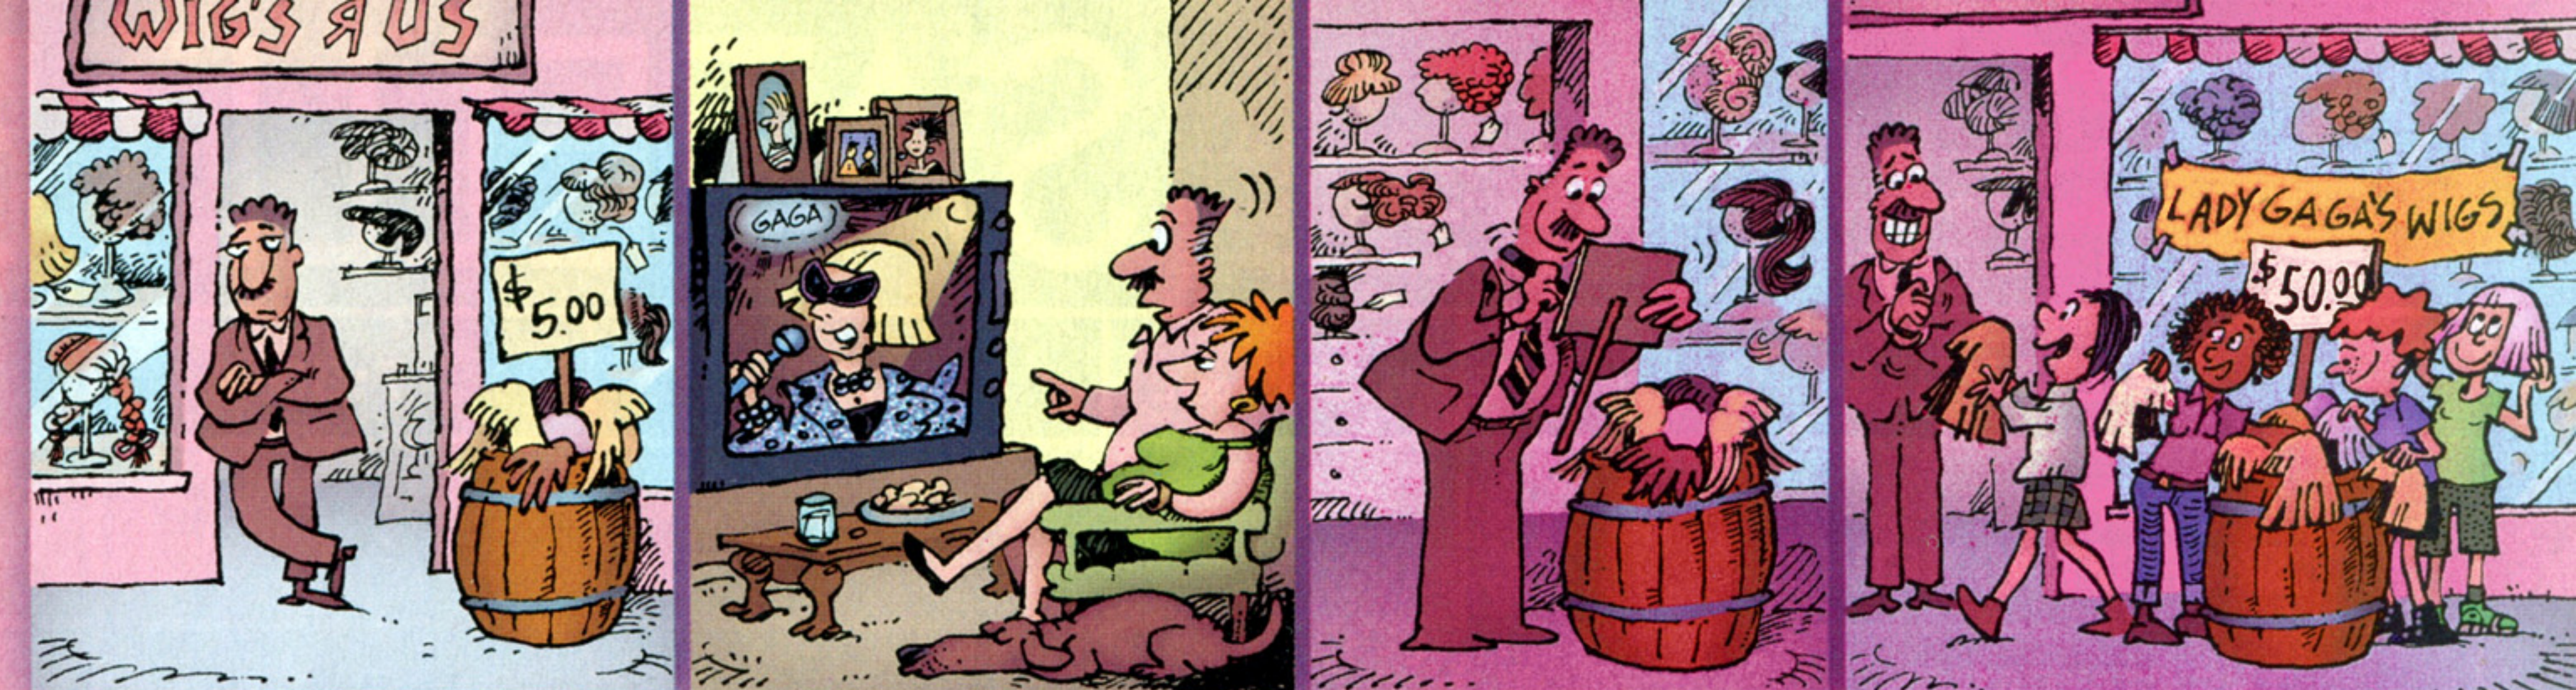

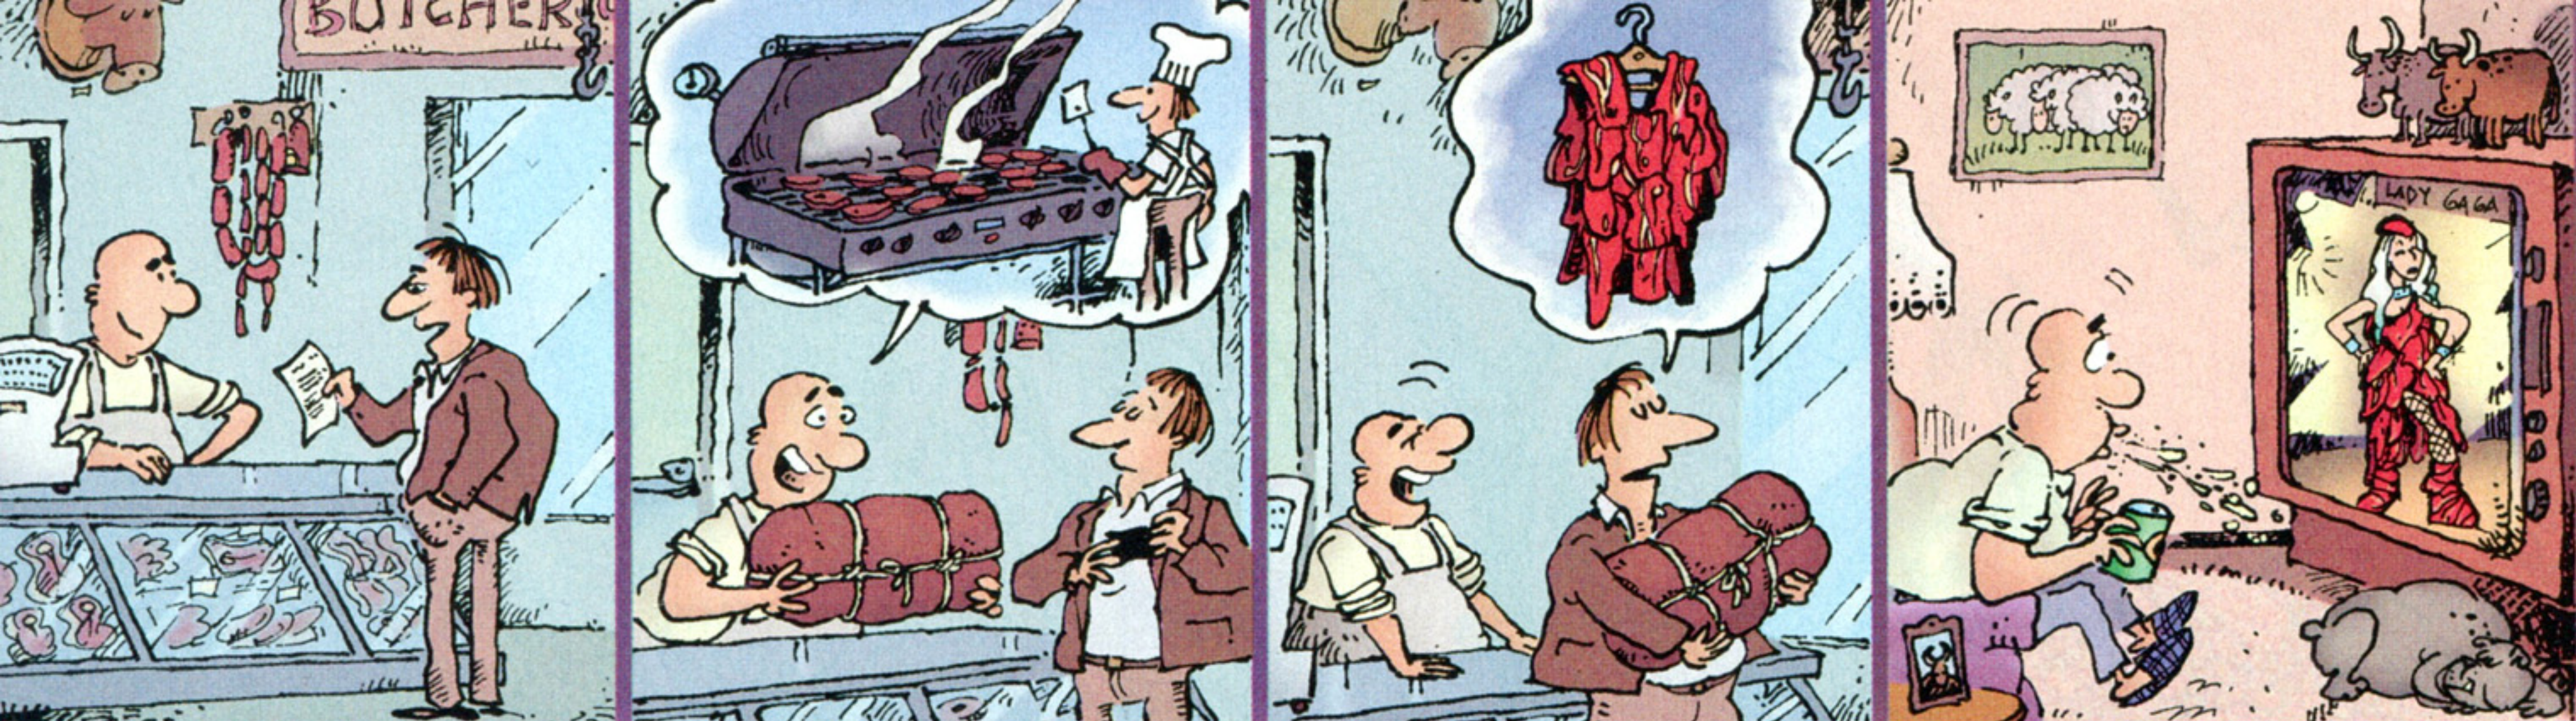

So, this morning, first thing before school, I went up to Beth Carmichael and all her friends as they were standing around our lockers. And I said, "Hi, Beth. I'm Tad. I just want you to know that I really, really like you, and I want us to go out. Do you want to go to Homecoming with me?" She got this really upset look on her face, and backed away slowly, and all of her friends followed her. And for the rest of the day, every time I went to get my stuff out of my locker, she'd see me, look really nervous, and hurry away. By the end of the day, she and her friends had started hanging out near Jessica's locker, all the way at the other end of the hallway. I told Chuck about it, and he said, "You know, repelling girls is a pretty lousy superpower. But every once in awhile, it does come in handy."

The "Mindset List" was created by two professors at Beloit College in 1998 to reflect the worldview and cultural touchstones of entering first year college students. Recent lists have included the realizations that to those students (born in 1993), Bud Selig has always been the Commissioner of Major League Baseball and Czechoslovakia has never existed. At MAD, where there are no professors, we realized that from year to year, new college students were basically the same — but it was their cultural touchstones that kept getting weirder, as you'll see in our list of...
