FAMILY UN-DYNAMIC

I am writing to you (grudgingly) to ask for a favor. You see, I am the fourth Joseph Salvatore Cannizzaro, my dad is the third, etc. Over the years, all the Joes have enjoyed MAD, from my grandpa in the '50s, my dad in the '70s, and me in the 2000s. And apart from being an angry family of Sicilians (not Italians!) we don't share much except the unfortunate love of MAD. Now, besides leaving two generations of screw-ups, my grandparents haven't left a huge impact on the world. So I come to you today to ask you to please publish this letter to show that our reading of MAD for the better (worse) of five decades hasn't been in vain (it probably has). My grandparents may never see the Cubs win the World Series, but they may see my letter get published in MAD Magazine.

Joey Cannizzaro • Chicago, IL

Cannizzaro of Worms — Wow! It's really impressive that stupidity could span so many generations — we thought natural selection prevented this sort of thing! We're touched that you want us to print your letter, but your reasoning is downright dismal. It's harsh enough to say that your grandparents "haven't left a huge impact on the world," but to think they would find worldly fulfillment from a letter in these miserable pages? You're clearly insulting their intelligence. Regardless, please consider having children — we've found that the more stupid people there are in the world, the better business is for us! —Ed.

CONTENTS (PAGE) UNDER PRESSURE

Why does your magazine have a contents page? How hard is it to find an article again after you have put the magazine down? Besides, you usually put everything in the same place issue after issue. I'm pretty sure I know by now that the MAD Fold-in will be the very last thing I come to. In fact, about the only thing I even look at on the "MAD Departments" page is that little Alfred head you put in the right hand corner. Anyway, you can get rid of the "MAD Departments" page... I don't think anyone will miss it.

Brian Eckerson • Stuttgart, Germany

Eckerson Marks the Spot — You raise a potentially valid point (a first for you, we're guessing), but you have to remember the golden rule of publishing MAD: never, EVER underestimate the stupidity of a MAD reader! Thank you for your letter — while it hasn't made us rethink the need for a contents page, it HAS made us wish we didn't have a Letters Page! —Ed.

MAD INK

Here is a photo of the greatest mistake I've ever made in my life. I got this tattoo of vampire Alfred E. Neuman without thinking of the consequences of him sucking the intelligence out of me every day! It's been over 10 years now and I am more stupid than ever. I have the rest of my life to find out what else he will do to me.

Margie Hammett • Ambler, PA

Hambone — We'd say it's only your second biggest mistake — the biggest is SHARING it with the world, ya knucklehead. We hear they're doing marvelous things with lasers these days... —Ed.

SCHNOOK OF THE NORTH

I was recently taking a vacation to Canada when I stopped by a convenience store, and I was appalled by what I saw. Sitting on the magazine rack was an issue of MAD! Why on earth, I thought, would a country with better healthcare than us, better gun control than us and better education than us, sink so low as to sell a piece of trash like this? Perhaps you can enlighten me.

Liam McCrickard • Kensington, MD

Carpe Liam — As your tragic travel tale so richly illustrates, not all is well with our neighbors to the north. Sure, on the surface, everything seems fine — they're all polite and whatnot, offering you ladle after ladle of fresh maple syrup as you watch the regional curling championships from atop a placid moose — but when you dig a little deeper, it becomes clear that the place is rotten to its core. We'd give a few examples of Canada's downfall — that horrid "ice hockey" fad is certainly one — but MAD's appearance there is as terrible as anything we could come up with. On the other hand, they stuck us with Bieber, so they're still coming out way ahead in all this! —Ed.

LESSENED PLANS

When I was a sophomore in high school, back in 1972, our English teacher, Mrs. Jouthas, had us read MAD every Friday, as a lesson in how to write satire. It was a great lesson, and we all looked forward to it every week. Now that I'm teaching creative writing to college students, I'd like to incorporate MAD into my classes. But the department and the dean's office won't let me use your fine publication; they see it as too silly and irrelevant. I was wondering if you could help me convince them that reading MAD would be good for the future writers of our world. Any advice?

Lewis Buzbee • San Francisco, CA

Buzzy-Bee — Sorry, but you may have to fight this battle by yourself, teach! We're just not comfortable saying that MAD will be good for future writers...in fact, our current writers are always saying how bad MAD is for them. All we know for a FACT is that MAD isn't good for readers, past, present or future. However, as far as MAD being "too silly and irrelevant," please tell your colleagues to go eat a fart. —Ed.

GOON WITH THE "IND"

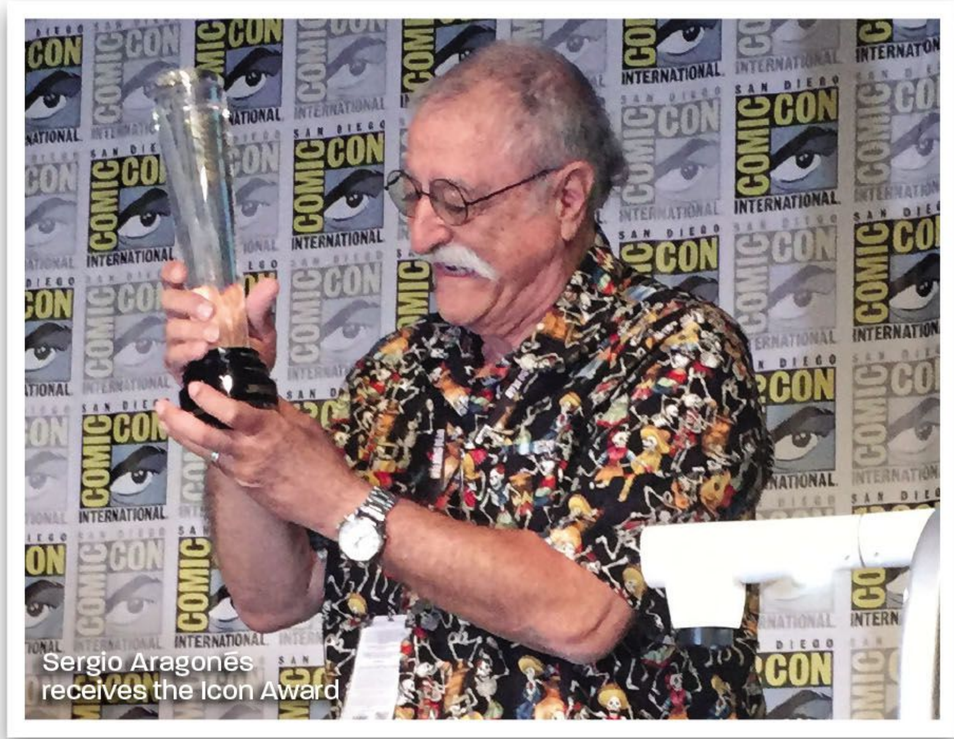

I noticed in issue #540, (with Trump) you put the "IND" right by the "M" (in MAD), making it spell "MIND." Then I noticed, if you put "MAD" right by it, you get "MAD MIND," as in "Donald Trump has a mad mind"! Was this on purpose?

Eli Poll • Seattle, WA

Poll Position — You've cracked what is perhaps MAD's longest-running joke! In 1958, the eerily prescient editors first put "IND" by the "M" in "MAD," on the cover of MAD #48. Knowing that it was a brilliant seed of a joke and we just needed to keep watering it, we put "IND" on nearly every cover for the next 59 years. And finally, it paid off! Donald Trump was on our cover and our stinging comment was made! Sure, it was the second time he was on the cover of MAD, and we'll continue to put "IND" on every cover in the future, but you nailed it — #540 is the reason it's there! Well done, Eli — you've made sense of a 59-year-old joke! In fact, it's topped only by Trump himself: a 70-year-old joke that no one can make any sense of! —Ed.

MAD GOES TO SAN DIEGO COMIC-CON 2016

San Diego Comic-Con 2016 was a big one for MAD! Our section of the DC Entertainment booth was consistently packed with fans checking out our spoofs of this year's presidential candidates (or looking for a bathroom, but we're counting them!). As always, the "Mad about MAD" panel was a rollicking affair, featuring guest appearances by God, a stoned William Shakespeare and even Donald Trump! All attendees left the panel poorer for the experience, as each received an (unofficial) Trump University diploma.

During SDCC weekend, legendary MAD cartoonist Sergio Aragonēs also received the prestigious Icon Award (slightly less prestigious now), presented to "individuals or organizations who have been instrumental in bringing comics and/or the popular arts to a wider audience." Previous honorees include George Lucas, Frank Miller and Ray Bradbury! Not to be outdone, MAD's own Peter Kuper won the Eisner Award for "Best Graphic Album" for his book Ruins, and MAD colorist Jim Campbell received the Eisner for "Best Publication for Kids" for the comic book series he illustrated, Over the Garden Wall. There you have it, kids — SDCC: where even losers can be winners!

REMEMBERING JACK DAVIS, 1924-2016

It is with great sadness that we report that legendary MAD artist Jack Davis passed away on July 27 at the age of 91.

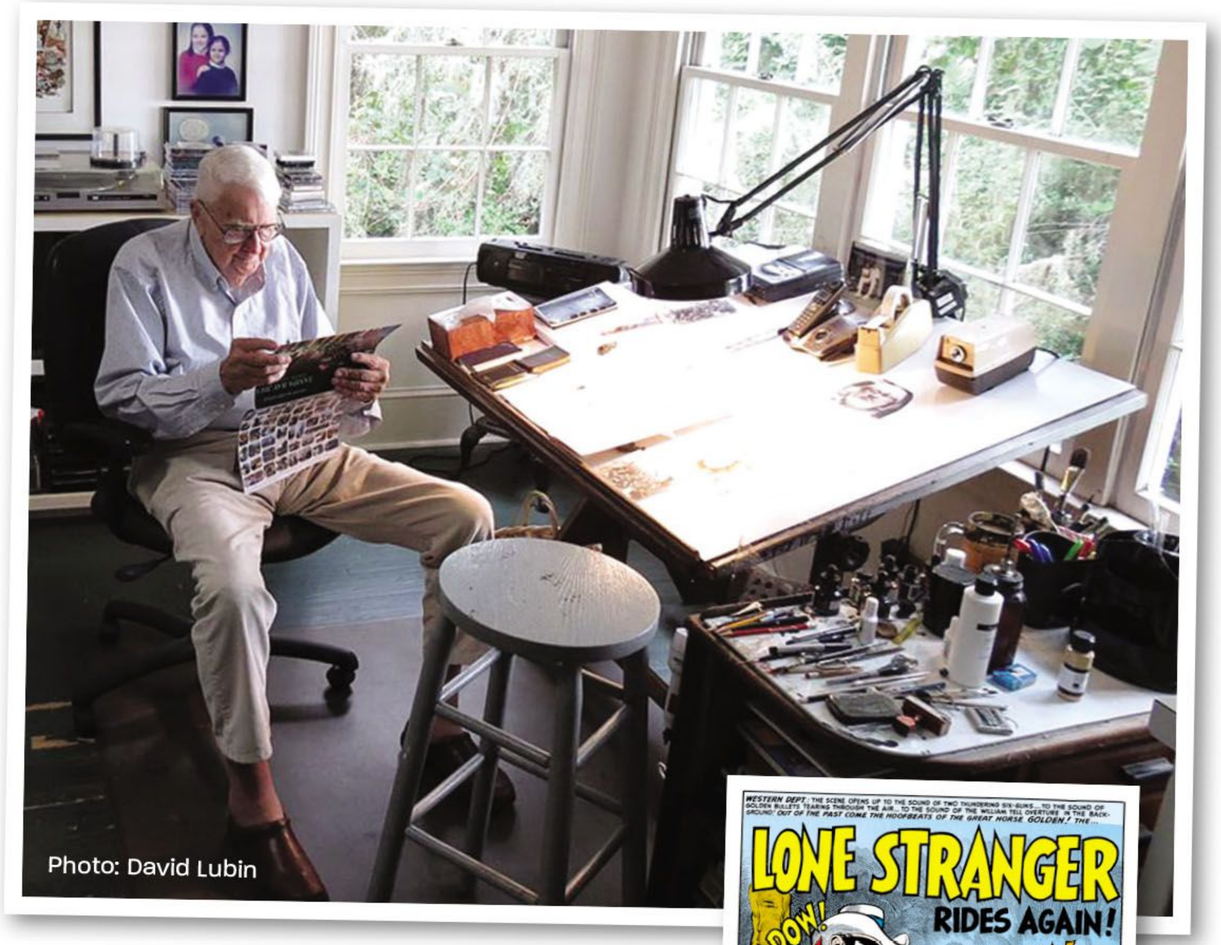

Jack was one of the founding members of MAD Magazine's "Usual Gang of Idiots." An enormously gifted and versatile artist, Davis' work appeared in the very first issue of MAD and virtually every issue over the next four decades.

A list of Jack's legendary pieces would run several pages in length. His most iconic parodies from MAD's comic book days are of The Lone Ranger and High Noon. From the magazine, his notable parodies include spoofs of Raiders of the Lost Ark, Gone with the Wind, and *M*A*S*H*.

Jack's final cover for MAD was issue #339 (September 1995) and depicted Howard Stern being plunged into a toilet bowl by Alfred E. Neuman. The cover hangs framed in Stern's office and remains a MAD classic.

Everyone at MAD and DC Entertainment send their heartfelt condolences to Jack's wife, Dena, and the entire Davis family.

What follows is a small sampling of the outpouring of condolences from fans who posted online, sent emails and wrote letters:

I was deeply saddened by the passing of my favorite artist, Jack Davis. Before MAD, I enjoyed his work in the earlier EC titles like Two-Fisted Tales, and, of course, Tales from the Crypt. I collected his magazine covers from Time and TV Guide and many other works I spotted throughout the decades. RIP Jack Davis.

Gene Phillip • Great Falls, VA

I just want to extend my condolences to the MAD family with the passing of a GREAT artist, Jack Davis.

E.S. Conte, MAD reader since 1962

It's with heartfelt sorrow to hear of Jack Davis' passing this week. I was lucky enough to meet and have a conversation with him in 2001. I mentioned I was from Oregon and he wanted to know if we still had Indians running loose at home. He said he had always wanted to be a cowboy and proved it by showing off his western belt he just happened to be wearing. An amazing, humble man with an amazing talent. His impact will be felt and seen for many generations to come. He will be missed.

John Jackson • Medford, OR

RIP Mr. Davis. Part of my childhood left with you, thanks for the great memories.

This is a very sad day in the history of classic humor and art.

Jerry Moore, via Facebook

Jack Davis was my all-time favorite MAD/EC artist. I started reading magazines and comics with his illustrations in them at an early age and continued into adulthood. Everything he did, from MAD Magazine to Tales from the Crypt, was amazing, energetic and masterfully rendered. There was and will never be an artist truly like him and I'm so thankful he was able to share his gift with the world. Thank you for all you did, Mr. Davis, you will be sorely missed.

William Lockwood, via Facebook

R.I.P. And thank you for all the memories.

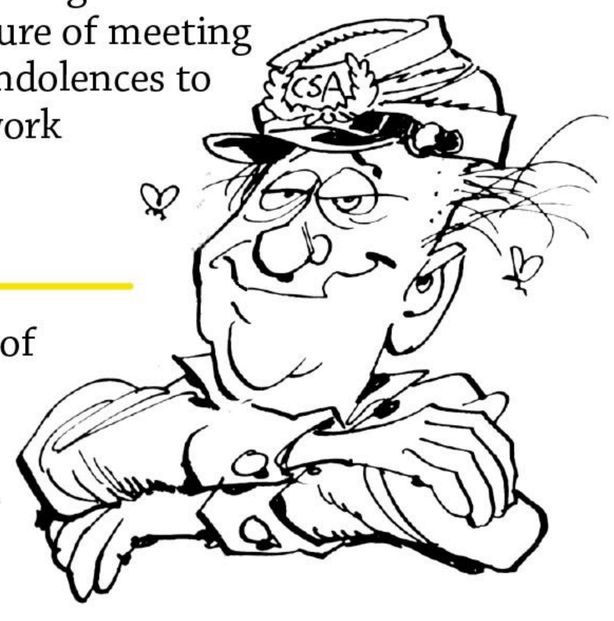

Eduardo Leon, via Facebook

Jack Davis is the reason I have been a cartoonist for over 40 years. I absolutely loved everything I saw that he did. I always wanted to have the pleasure of meeting him and shaking his hand. My condolences to his family. He will live on in the work he created.

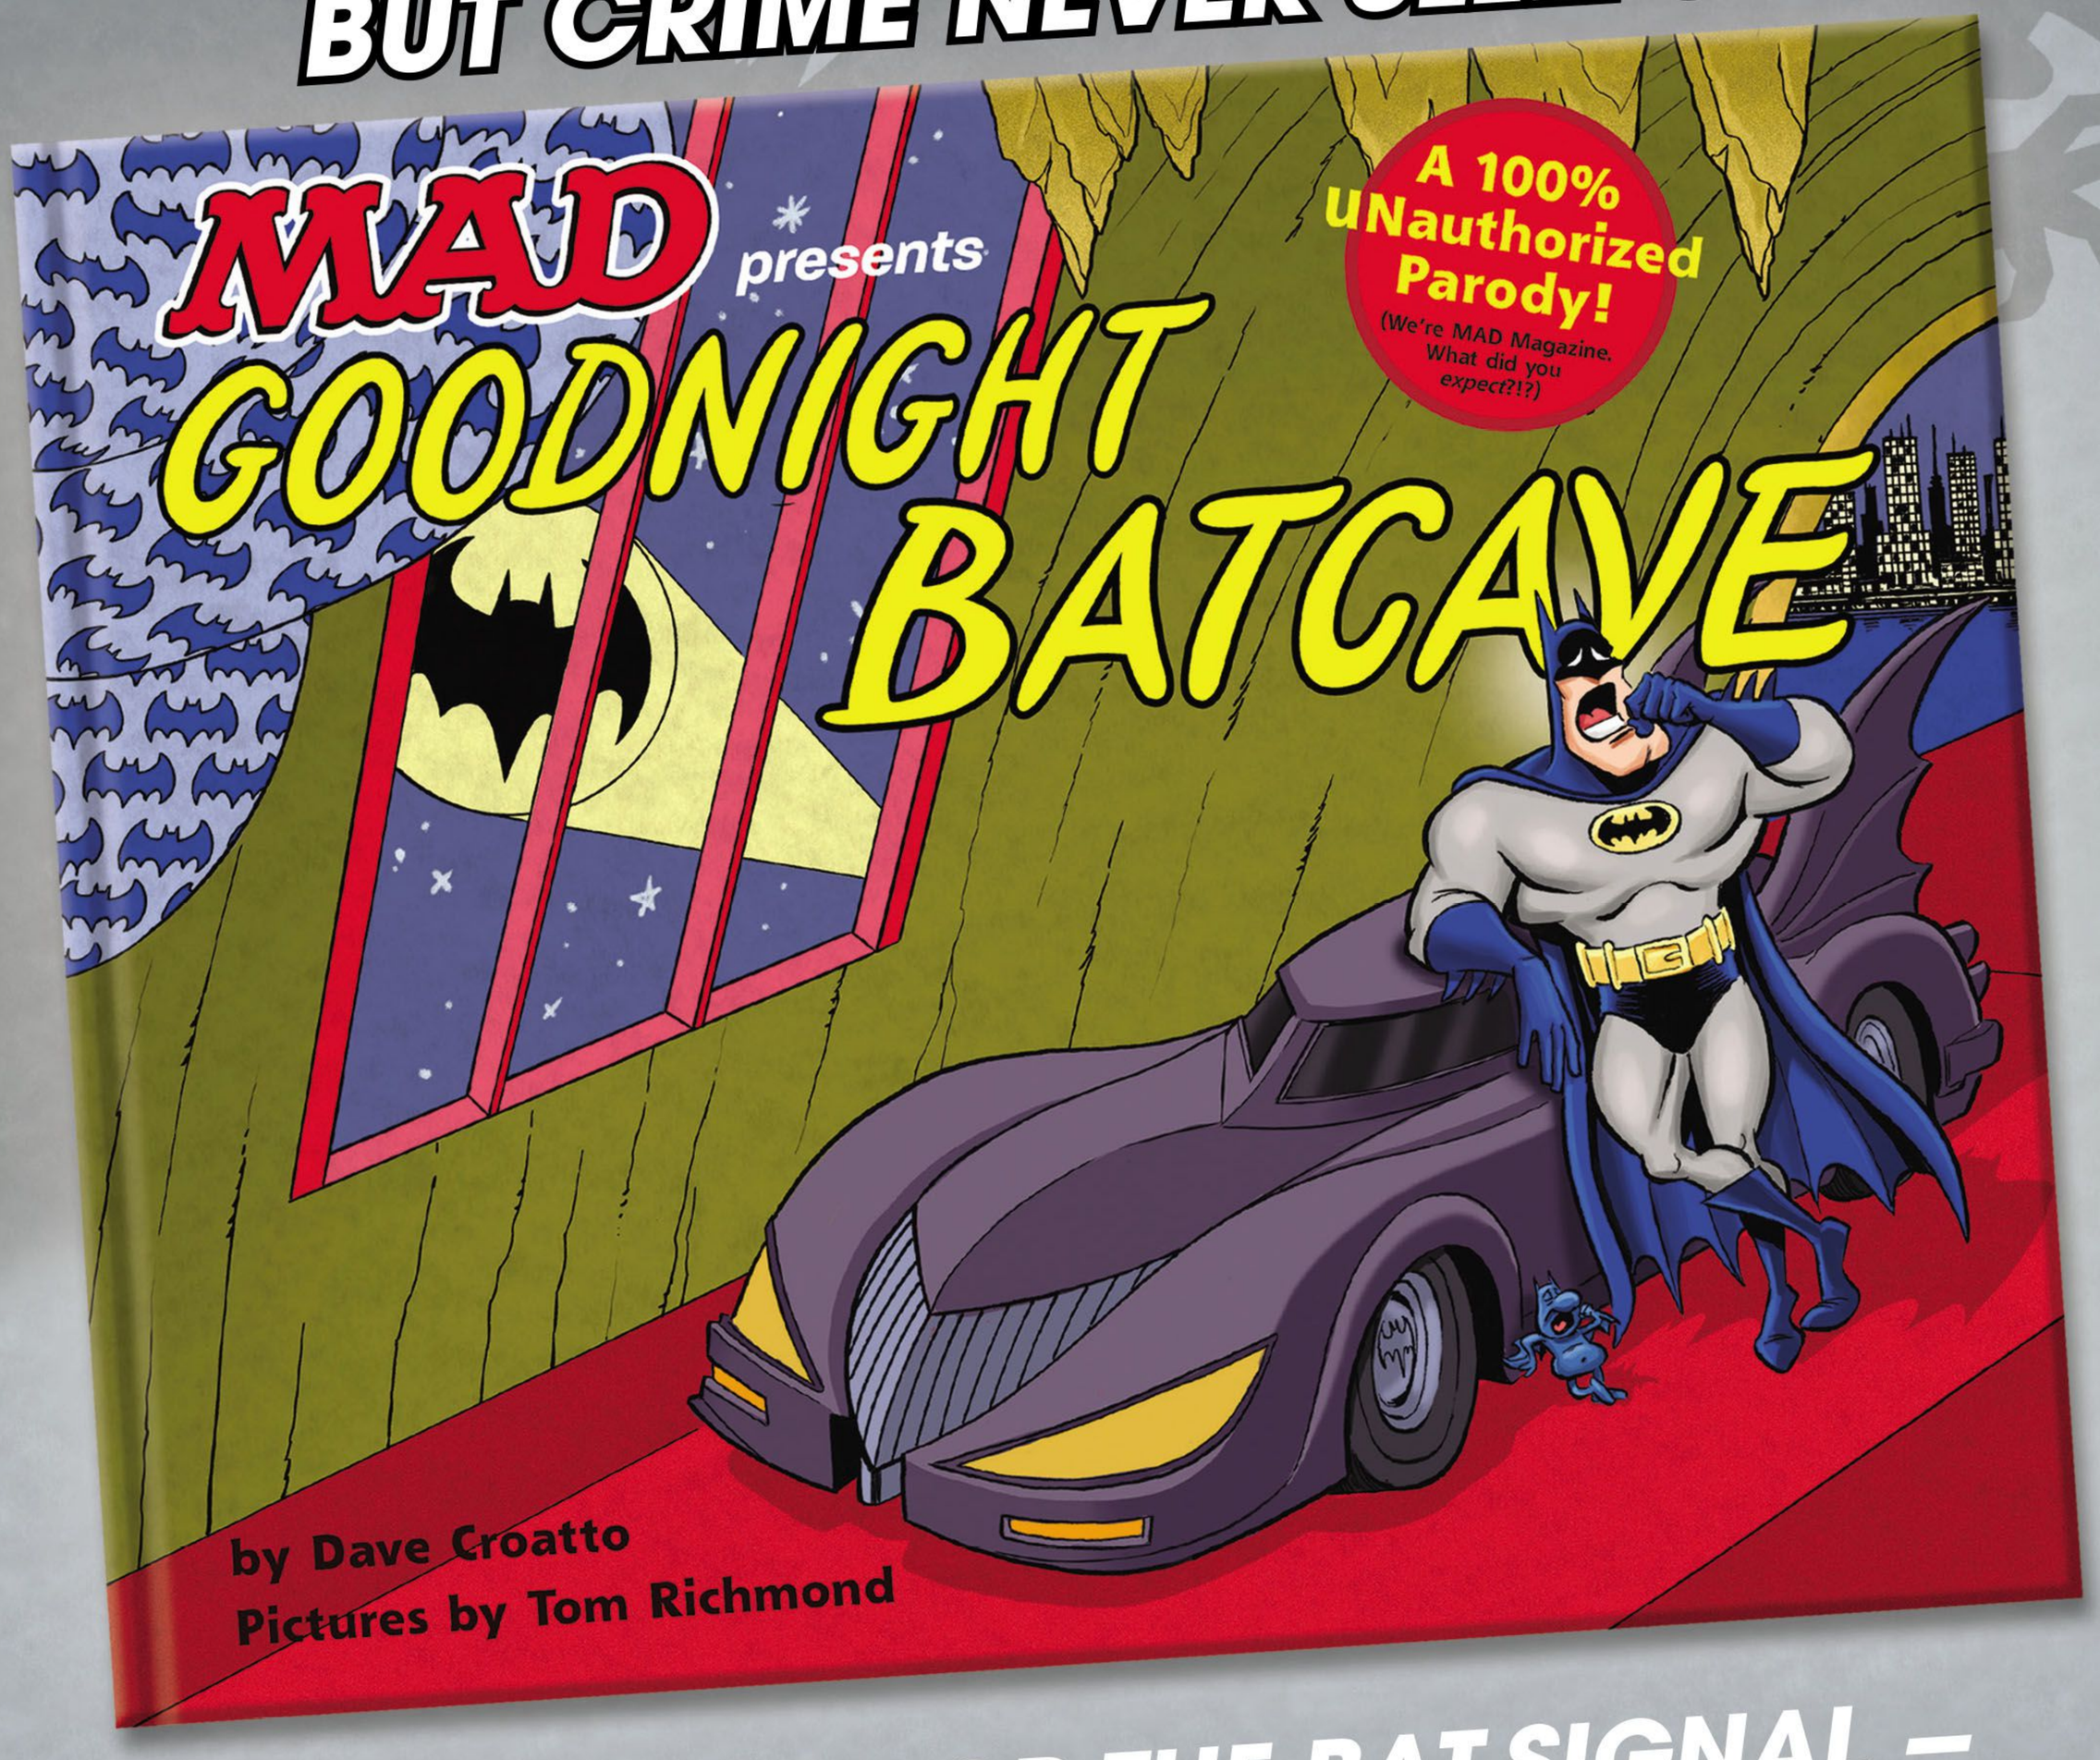

Charles King, via Facebook

A great talent, a wonderful sense of humor and a kind, gentle person. Rest in peace, Jack.

POIUYT OF NO RETURN

Artist Kenneth Curwood of Brooklyn, NY sent in pictures of this larger-than-life sculpture of the MAD "POIUYT" he made out of hardwood dowels. The "POIUYT" was first shown on the cover of MAD #93, March 1965 — and the sculpture was bought by an art collector who, we assume, has way too much money and way too much space!

IN THE FECAL POSITION

I've been reading MAD my entire 18 years (which may or may not have affected my social life). My father loves MAD even more than I do. So much so that he bought a framed picture of Alfred E. Neuman and promptly hung it across from the toilet. He spends a lot of time admiring the picture with the door closed. Please keep making MAD so my dad and I have something to read. Thanks!

Hannah Muratori • Hammond, IN

Finding Mura-tori — Yet again, a reader writes in to share the details of how MAD figures into their family's bathroom routine, and we're left feeling…unsettled by the information. Put yourself in our shoes, Hannah-bal! Imagine if someone told you they stared at a picture of YOU while they were "sculpting in brown"? Not a pleasant mental image, is it? We appreciate that your family enjoys MAD — but, PLEASE, there's no need to let us know about the next time your dad is "baking the devil's éclair." —Ed.

REASONS WHY THE PRICE OF EPIPENS INCREASED

1. Users could die at any moment — so it's important to squeeze them for as much money as possible while they're still alive.
2. It was felt that parents spend so much on back-to-school shopping, they wouldn't notice an extra $600.
3. Mylan execs were hoping to make enough money to buy that Wu-Tang album off pharma-douche Martin Shkreli.
4. The board members really wanted to see the New York Post headline "EpiPen-sive!"
5. Mylan CEO Heather Bresch was barely scraping by on her $2 million salary and needed a $16 million raise just to make ends meet.

For the past year and a half, Donald Trump has been traveling around the country pledging to "Make America Great Again!" It's a veterans, Latinos, Gold Star families, women and the disabled is time-consuming, so maybe he just hasn't had time to figure it all out. Well,

THE MAD "I WILL MAKE AMERICA

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by refusing to click on any web story promising "12 Incredible Wardrobe Malfunctions," even IF number 7 will make my "jaw drop!"

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by finding some little-known clause in the Child Labor laws and exploiting it to permanently ban those godawful "Kars 4 Kids" commercials!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by only saying "Whoever smelt it, dealt it" when I'm positive that's the case!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by swiping left on all vapers!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by not braking if some idiot playing Pokémon Go walks in front of my car!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by taking the extra ten seconds to fix idiotically autocorrected text messages!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by refusing to dress my terrier in a sweater that matches my own!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by not even trying to pretend that my tramp stamp is meaningful!

fine campaign slogan, but Mr. Trump has been woefully short of details on how exactly he'll do this. To be fair, alienating Muslims, we here at MAD know EXACTLY what's wrong with the U.S. AND how to fix it! And you will, too, once you rise, raise your right hand and recite...

GREAT AGAIN" CITIZEN'S PLEDGE

ARTIST: WARD SUTTON

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by never Googling "When will the McRib return?"

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by removing any campaign bumper stickers from my car if it is no longer the decade in which the election occurred!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by refusing to ever give the cashiers at Home Depot, Bed Bath & Beyond or any other nosy store my zip code, area code, phone number or any other personal information!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by never uttering the phrase "so much for global warming" during a snow storm

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by never again talking on the phone while sitting on a toilet!

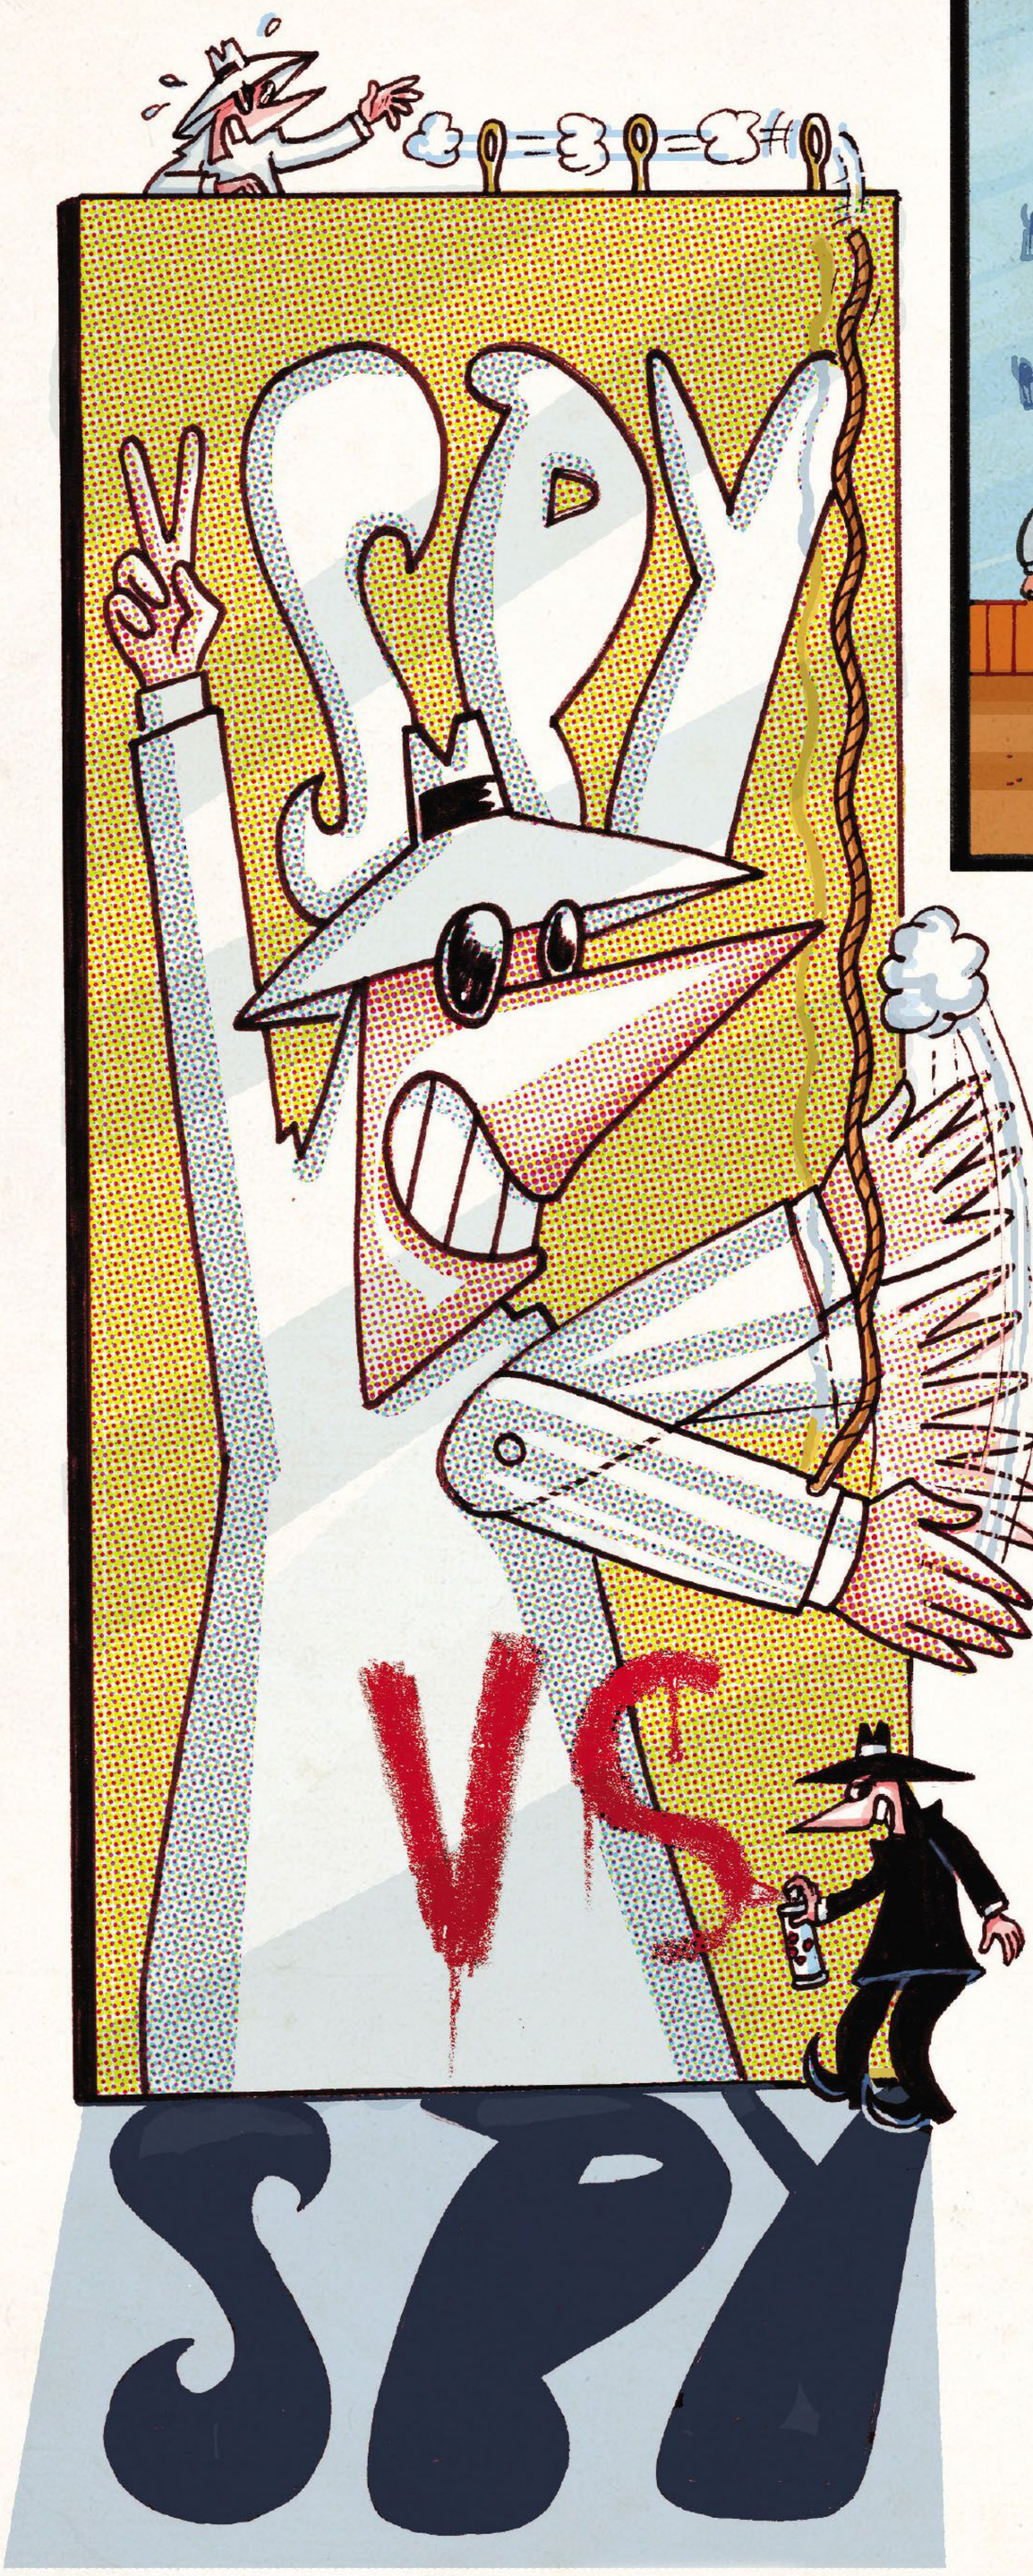

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by using no more than three emojis when sending a condolence text!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by lying through my teeth to every political pollster who calls me between now and election day!

I WILL MAKE AMERICA GREAT AGAIN... by never uttering the jingoistic, meaningless phrase "Make America Great Again!"

PLANET TAD!!!!!

»NAME: TAD »AGE: 14 »AGE IN MAYFLY LIFETIMES: 5,178

OCTOBER 3, 2016

Today we had a big assembly at school. They didn't tell us what it was beforehand, so everyone just assumed it was to tell us that the school librarian, Mrs. Ostrovsky, was dead. (Anytime there's an assembly, we assume that it's to tell us Mrs. Ostrovsky died.) But it turns out, it was to tell us that the school's having a raffle to raise money for new marching band instruments, "And you can all help out!", Vice Principal Hammond told us. "Isn't that on fleek?" (Vice Principal Hammond likes to use slang to make himself relatable.) Then he asked us to ask our parents to contribute things that could be raffled off, and said there'd be a contest: Whoever sells the most raffle tickets wins $250. And then he shouted "YOLO!", and the marching band played a song to thank us, and honestly, I don't think new instruments could help the marching band sound any better, but on the other hand, I guess they couldn't really sound any worse.

OCTOBER 6, 2016

So, the raffle prizes are beginning to add up. Britney Walters' dad, who runs a jet-ski dealership, contributed two jet-skis, which are now parked in front of the school, looking like what happens when a killer whale accidentally mates with a motorcycle.

I considered asking my parents to contribute stuff, but their jobs don't really lend themselves to this. My mom's a nurse in a nursing home, so I guess she could offer to come to someone's home and feed them applesauce, but that just seems weird. And my dad works as a "systems analyst." I asked him again today what that means, but just like always, he got about three words into the explanation and I kind of tuned out.

I also asked them to buy tickets to the raffle — my mom said, "Put us down for one." And I said, "One each?" And she said, "No. One for both of us." And I said, "The more you buy, the better your chance of winning a jet-ski!" And she said, "Where will we use a jet-ski?"

Anyway. My sales tally stands at one now.

OCTOBER 10, 2016

Today I called family members to sell them tickets. I tried my Aunt Andrea, who said she was so glad to hear from me, and kept asking questions about how school was going, and before I could ask her to buy a ticket, she said she had to get going and hung up on me. Then I called my Great-Uncle Walter, who told me all about the CIA and John F. Kennedy, before finally saying he'd buy two tickets, but he'd have to mail me cash because he doesn't believe in banks.

That's when my little sister Sophie came into the room and said, "What're you doing?" And I said, "Trying to sell raffle tickets." And she said, "I know. I overheard you. What are you doing? You don't call Great-Uncle Walter for these things. You've got to know how to work this. Here, let me show you." And she picked up the phone and dialed our Great-Aunt Carolyn, and said in a babyish voice, "Will you pwease buy some tickets for my schoow?" She nodded and listened a bit, then smiled and held up five fingers.

Then she pulled up a chair and said, "Go get me some Fig Newtons and a juice box. We've got a lot more family members to call."

Anyway, I've now sold 94 raffle tickets. Or, more exactly, I've sold three tickets and Sophie has sold 91.

OCTOBER 13, 2016

Tonight at dinner, I said I was in second place in selling raffle tickets, after Amber Harris. Sophie's eyes narrowed and she said, "How many has Amber sold?" And I said, "I dunno. 110, I think? 120?" And she said, "Which is it, Tad? 110 or 120?" And I said, "110." And she said, "Good. We can beat that."

I kind of tend to forget how crazy-competitive Sophie can be. When she was four I beat her at Candy Land once and she didn't speak to me for a month.

OCTOBER 15, 2016

Today was Saturday, and Sophie woke me up at 8 and said, "C'mon. We're going to the antique store." And I said, "But it's early, and I don't want to buy antiques." Both of which seemed like reasonable objections, but Sophie rolled her eyes and said, "You know who likes early mornings and antiques? Old ladies. And guess what else they like? Buying raffle tickets from little girls. Now put my hair in pigtails and get your coat."

And sure enough, Sophie sold 20 tickets at the antique store — and then we hit a used book fair, a tea shop, a buffet restaurant, my mom's nursing home, a medical supply store and a movie theater showing a Judi Dench movie.

We've now sold 243 tickets.

OCTOBER 16, 2016

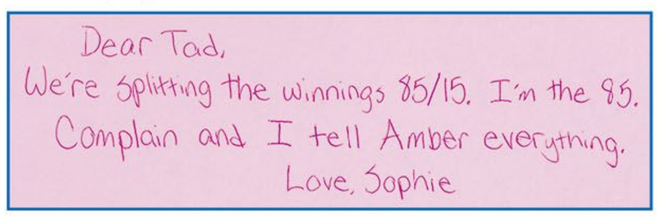

Today got a little ugly. Sophie and I were waiting outside a public pool that was having a water aerobics class, but when she approached the first old lady coming out, the woman said, "Oh, thank you, dear, but I already bought a ticket from her." And then she pointed inside the building, and we saw Amber Harris standing there, chatting up the old women. And Sophie turned to me looking like she wanted to murder someone and said, "What're you standing around for? Get your bike. We're going one town over."

OCTOBER 19, 2016

Well, the raffle deadline is lunchtime tomorrow, and I don't think I'm going to beat Amber. I've sold 347 tickets, and she's sold 380. My friends Chuck and Kevin were over for dinner tonight, and Chuck said, "That's a lot more than I sold. I've been too embarrassed to even turn my sales sheet in, I only managed to sell 21." And Kevin said, "Same here. I only sold 14." And I thought Sophie would make fun of them for selling so little, but she just got really quiet and thoughtful-looking.

OCTOBER 20, 2016

So, today at lunch, a bunch of weird things happened back to back: first, Chuck and Kevin weren't at our lunch table. Then, I could've sworn I saw Sophie in the hallway. And just as Chuck and Kevin finally showed up, Vice Principal Hammond came over the PA and made an announcement: "Congratulations to everyone on selling so many tickets! You were all very much swag and turnt! Now, two of you really outperformed in the sales contest, but there can be only one winner, so congratulations to the seller of 382 tickets..." And I waited to hear Amber's name, but then he said mine! I turned to Chuck and said, "But...I didn't sell 382 tickets." And he said, "No. But we did." And I said, "What do you...?" And Kevin said, "You didn't know? Sophie paid us a buck a ticket to give our sales to you. She said she'd pay us out of your share of the winnings." And I said, "My share...?" And Chuck handed me this note:

So, I made $37.50, out of which I had to pay Chuck and Kevin $35, and Sophie made $212.50 off of my school's raffle.

I'd say I was the biggest simultaneous winner and loser in that room, if I hadn't seen the librarian, Mrs. Ostrovsky, trying to figure out what she was going to do with two jet-skis.

If you're a pet owner, you probably cherish the unconditional love of your cat or dog. But you're being completely foolish! Just like your friends and family, your pet hates a lot of things about you (harsh, but true). We addressed this sobering truth when we ran "Some of Your Pet's Peeves" back in MAD #522. But that was just the beginning! A cat has nine lives, a dog year is seven human years and when it comes to gripes about you, your pet has more than you can count!

MORE OF YOUR PET'S PEEVES

STANLEY'S PEEVE: Hello! What's with all the sleeping?

Um, call me crazy, but you seem to waste some excellent night-time fun opportunities in your bed (which, by the way, could use a good vacuuming). I mean, most nights, I entertain myself — but you can only zoom around the house, all alone, so many times before you feel like a jerk. So, if I happen to jump off the dresser onto your head once in a while, read between the lines, man — it's a cry for help!

BUCKAROO'S PEEVE: Whiplash hurts and is embarrassing...for both of us

Hey — news flash — dogs smell stuff! Either you don't know this, you don't care about this or you are a spastic monster. I am sick to death of getting my neck choked every five seconds on my walk. I sniff a little pee on a leaf — YANK! I get slightly interested in a microscopic bird doo — YANK! I whiff a used condom — YANK! Chill out! Maybe if you had more control over your own existence, you'd lay off mine a little! I'm just sayin'...

BITTY'S PEEVE: Your offspring

I barely like people — but small children? I hate them. All of them. And all of their friends. It's a miracle that one of their tiny faces isn't eyeless at this point. The noise, the jerky movements, the constant invasion of my personal space — all of it is more than I can bear. So, maybe let them know that the next time one of them tries to carry me like a baby, I cannot be held responsible for the ensuing bloodbath.

MISS PAMELA EWING'S PEEVE: Grooming = Abuse

Well, really, why wouldn't I look forward to a day spent in a cage, surrounded by other trapped and terrified creatures, all waiting to get noosed up, shaved like common sheep and doused with unnatural scents? (Please, find me a single coyote that smells of fresh mint and cucumber slices.) And all the while, I'm doing my level best to hold in the gallon of fear-induced pee my bladder now houses, as I watch my cellmates take their turns on the torture table. Honestly, if this is your idea of "pampering me," I'd hate to see how you treat the dogs you DON'T like.

DOODER BOY'S PEEVE: Your stupid girlfriend

Listen, buddy, I'm really glad you're finally getting some — but this chick has got to go. She's got you so hump-blind that you actually kicked me off the couch the other day! Me! I have my own freaking DENT in that couch! And all of a sudden, drinking out of the can is "unsanitary"?!? What really hurt was when you yelled at me 'cause I kind of ruined ONE pair of panties...man, you never yell at me. Fidos before hos, dude. I feel like you made this mess, but I'M the one getting his nose rubbed in it.

LADY OLIVE'S PEEVE: You say "indoor cat," I say "hostage"

'Fraidy Cat? I don't think so. More like 'Fraidy Owner! God forbid I experience grass or bushes or fresh freakin' air! Oh no no, we don't let Lady O. out into the scary world of fleas, and traffic, and possibly making one friend in her entire life! And you're always saying how much I LOVE looking out the window...are you @*&%ing kidding me?!? I can't talk about this anymore...

One of the most inspirational songs of all time is John Lennon's "Imagine," in which the ex-Beatle visualized a world of peace, love and non-materialism. In other words, he never imagined Donald Trump! In his Presidential campaign, Trump has asked America to imagine a somewhat different world than Lennon did, which led us to imagine...

"imagine" rewritten by donald trump

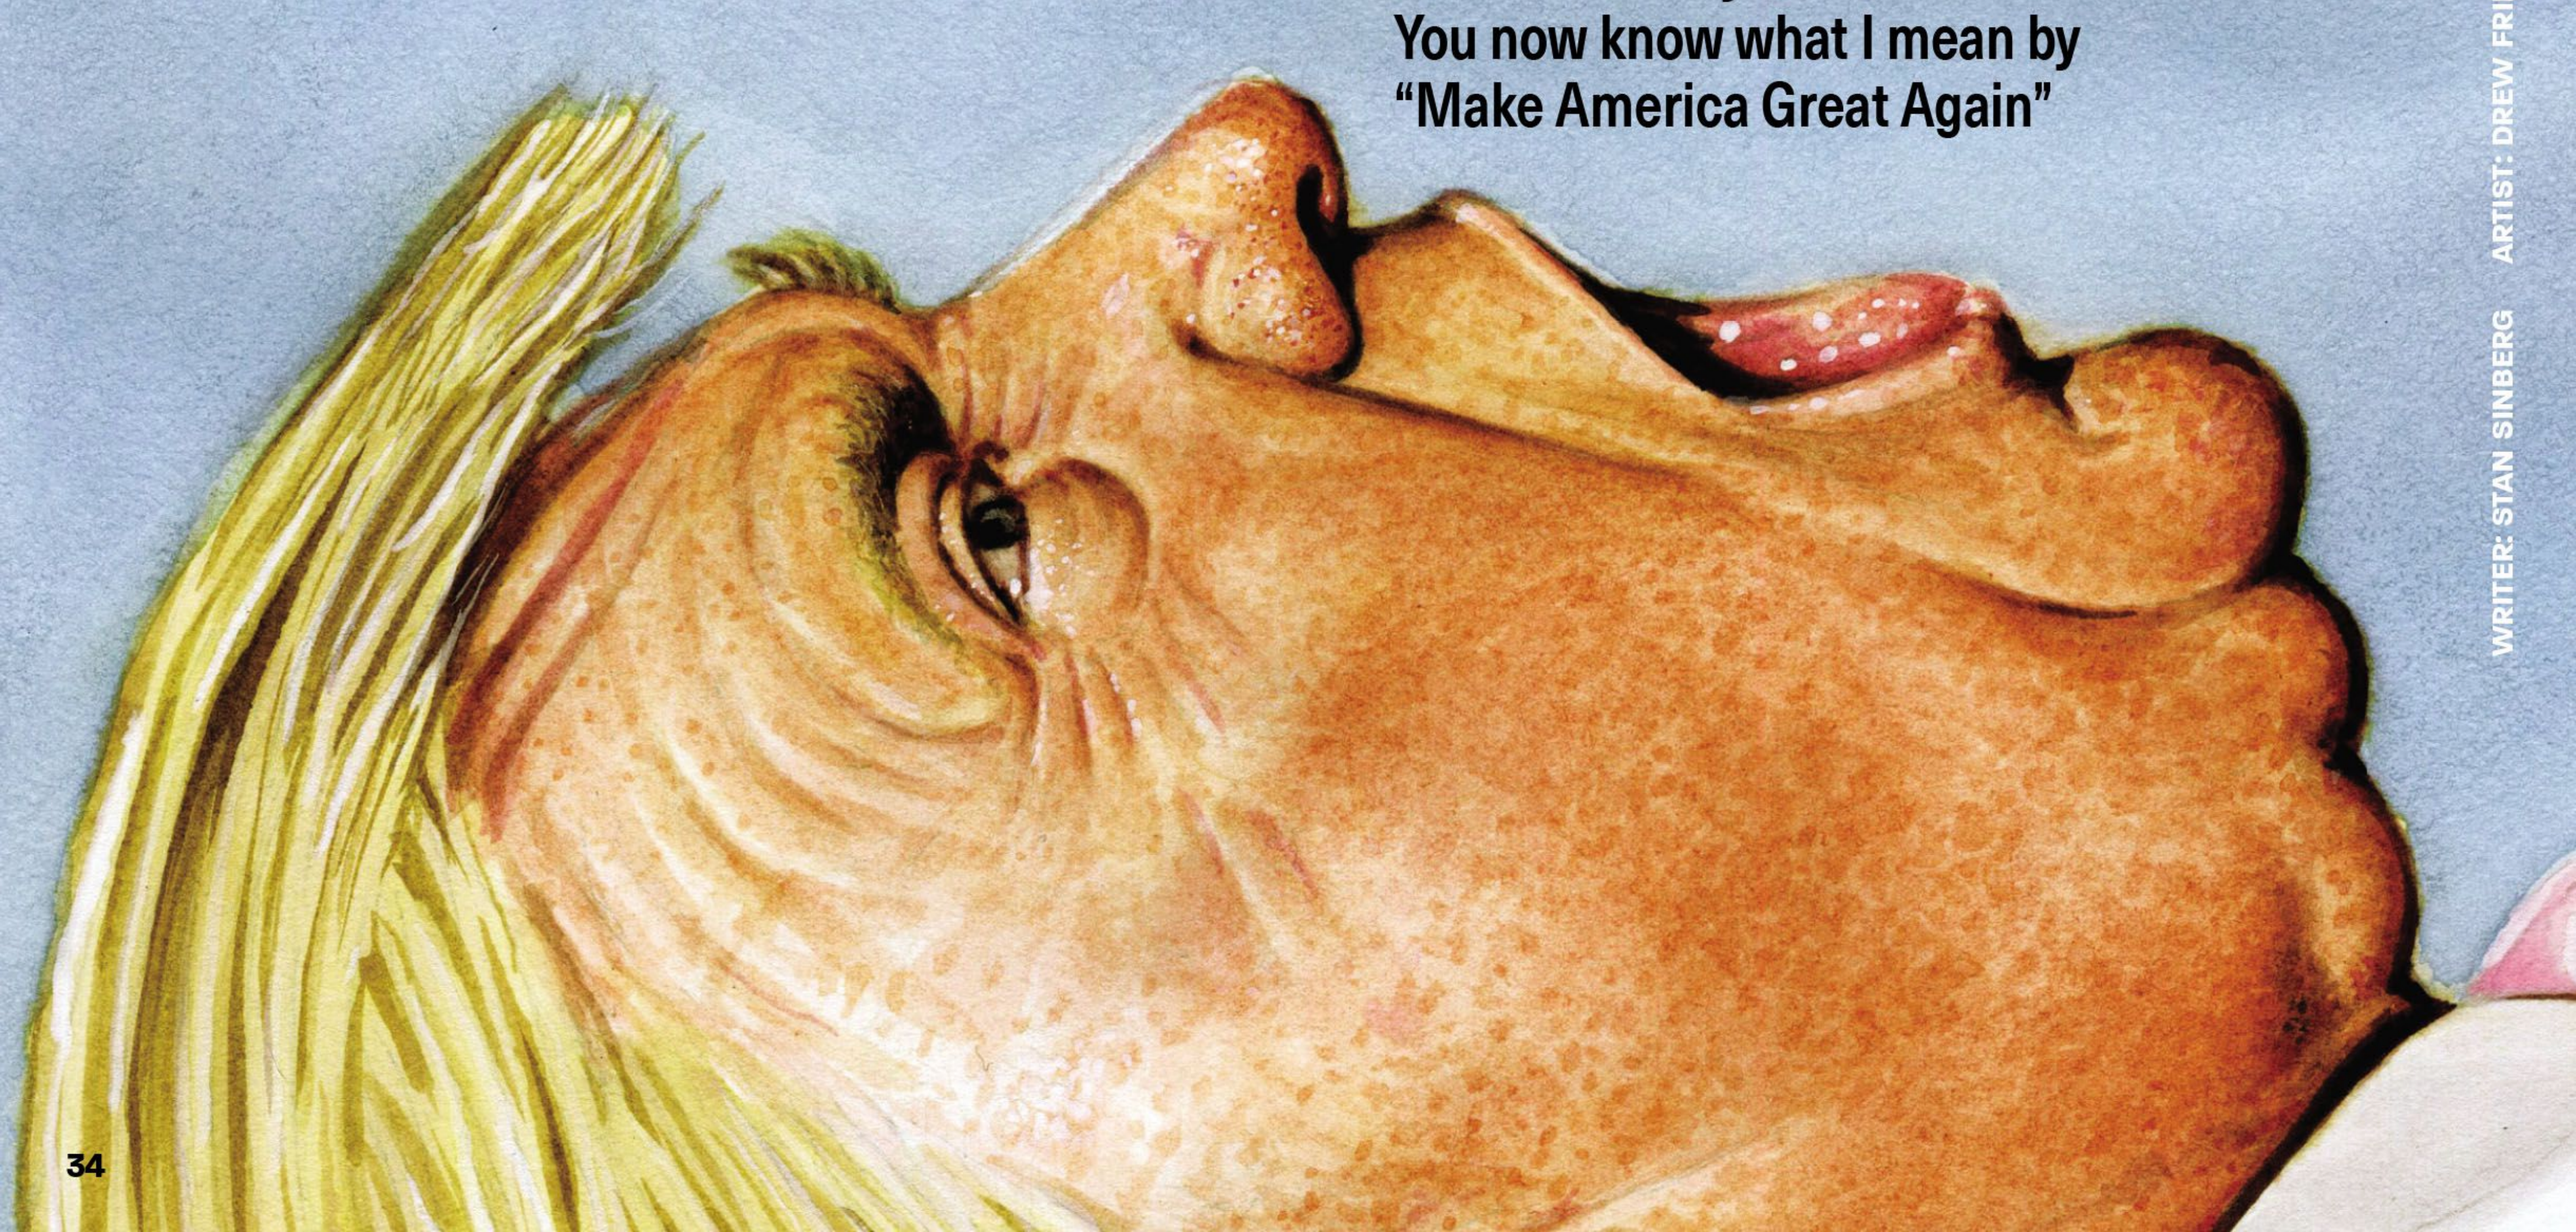

Imagine there's no Muslims
It's really great to do
No blacks or lib'rals
And no Hispanics, too.
Imagine just one country
white like me and you...whoo hoo-oo!

Imagine no more gun laws
"Yuge" tax cuts for the rich
No reason to be P.C.
Call every woman "bitch"
Imagine no more free press
Hillary in jail...whoo hoo-oo!

You might say I'm a fascist
A mad demagogue time-bomb
Like tyrants I admire
Stalin, Putin and Saddam

Imagine there's a big wall
For all the world to see
No one can leave or enter
Unless approved by me
Imagine the next world war
Started by my tweet...whoo hoo-oo!

You might say I'm a racist
Who cares only for white men
You now know what I mean by

SAFETY TIPS FOR EVERYDAY SITUATIONS

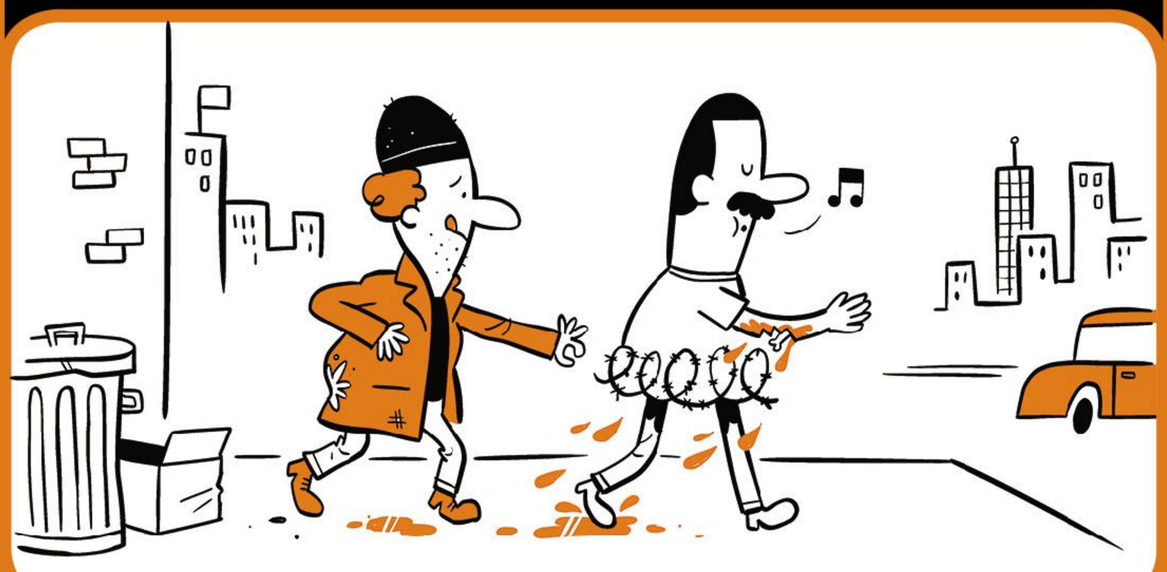

1 Always carry your purse or briefcase with the clasp or zipper facing in, held tight against your body. Move through crowds with determination.

2 When dining out, never put anything on a coatrack or on the back of a chair. Make sure all personal belongings are always in view!

3 Beware of pickpockets! A simple homemade barbed-wire belt usually foils most attempts.

4 Minimize the amount of cash you carry — but if you must carry large amounts, divide the cash between various pockets.

5 When approaching your home, always have your keys ready before you get to the door. For even better security, leave your front door unlocked. That way, when you return home, you can quickly open the door and get inside.

6 When withdrawing money at an ATM, protect your PIN by covering the keypad with both hands. Pick someone "honest looking" in line behind you and tell them your PIN so they can reach under your hands and punch it in for you.

Do television executives have any original ideas? In recent years, rebooted versions of Hawaii Five-O, The Odd Couple and Full House have infested our TVs — and CBS is now airing a completely unnecessary rehash of MacGyver. To commemorate this non-occasion, we're unnecessarily rehashing our own spoof of the first MacGyver, from MAD #302. Did you really think we were any better than those lazy executives?
